X... HANI FUNDAMENTALLY MISUNDERSTANDS THE CAYMAN PROCEEDINGS AND THE OPERATION OF CHAPTER 15	22

Arcapita Bank B.S.C.(c) (“Arcapita Bank”), Arcapita Investment Holdings Limited (“AIHL”), and related Debtors (collectively, the “Debtors” and each, a “Debtor”) hereby respectfully submit this Reply (the “Reply”) to the Second Objection of Hani Alsohaibi (with related joinders, the “Objection”) to the final approval of the Motion for an Order . . . Authorizing the Debtors to Obtain Replacement Postpetition Financing to Repay Existing Postpetition Financing (the “DIP Motion”) ¹ [Docket No. 1157]:

I. INTRODUCTION

Hani Alsohaibi’s (“Hani”) Objection is based on the false premise that, for this Court to approve the DIP Transaction, this Court must find that the DIP Transaction complies with the principles of Shari’ah. Based on that false premise, Hani next falsely assumes that the fatwa of Arcapita Bank’s Shari’ah Board (the “Fatwa”) concluding that the DIP Transaction does comply with Shari’ah is subject to review and may be vacated by this Court. From those two false predicates, Hani then argues that the principles of Shari’ah may be objectively determined, that Arcapita Bank’s Shari’ah Board was “wrong,” and that, based on unsupported arguments well outside the bounds of Bankruptcy Rule 9011, the DIP Transaction does not conform to the principles of Shari’ah. However, the DIP Motion does not ask this Court to make any finding that the DIP Transaction complies with Shari’ah, and no such finding is required under bankruptcy law or as a condition precedent to the DIP Transaction. The principal Dip Transaction Documents are governed by English Law, and compliance with the moral and religious principles of Shari’ah, on which there is no universal view (at least on earth), is not pertinent to the Court’s final ruling on the DIP Motion.

¹ Capitalized terms used but not otherwise defined herein shall have the meanings ascribed to such terms in the DIP Motion.

Hani is also asking this Court to do what cannot be done in Bahrain or by any other tribunal in the world. Hani is asking this Court to somehow vacate the Fatwa of the Arcapita Bank Shari'ah Board and to substitute Hani's differing view as to the proper application of the principles of Shari'ah with respect to Islamic finance. Hani has not cited any authority that would allow this Court, or any court or organization anywhere in the world, to vacate or even question the Fatwa. Shari'ah compliance for Arcapita Bank is satisfied by employing a Shari'ah Supervisory Board as prescribed by regulations promulgated by the Central Bank of Bahrain (the "CBB," and such regulations, the "CBB Regulations") and the conclusions arrived at under the authority of that board are then final and absolute.

Hani never addresses why the DIP Transaction should not be approved when the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors (the "Committee"), of which the CBB is a member, supports the DIP Transaction and the CBB itself—on whose regulations Hani heavily relies—has not objected. Hani also never addresses the devastating impact the ruling he seeks would have, not only on the Debtors' estates and the recovery of creditors in these chapter 11 cases, but also on the entire Islamic banking community.

II. RELEVANT BACKGROUND

The replacement DIP Transaction here, needed to repay and prevent a default under the existing Fortress Facility, is the product of an extensive and successful auction process involving multiple bidders, much of which was carried out in open Court. All interested parties have been well aware of the need for the DIP Transaction and its essential terms for some time. Indeed, on May 17, 2013, the Court entered an order approving the Debtors' entry into the Commitment Documents [Docket No. 1113]. Although structured in a similar fashion to the Fortress Facility, the replacement DIP Transaction offers significantly better pricing than the Fortress Facility, as well as a longer duration and greater flexibility. Transcript of Hearing, In re Arcapita Bank B.S.C.(c) (“June 10 Transcript”), Case No. 12-11076 (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. June 10, 2013) at 33. It also facilitates the Debtors’ exit from chapter 11.

All estate fiduciaries supported the Court’s entry of an order approving the DIP Motion. The Committee, whose members include the CBB and on whose regulation Hani relies, authorized the Debtors to represent to the Court that the Committee supported the relief requested and the Debtors’ entry into the DIP Transaction Documents. At the Interim Hearing, the Committee reiterated its firm support for the DIP Motion and the Debtors’ entry into the DIP Transaction Documents in the form presented to the Court.

At the Interim Hearing, the Debtors provided evidence of their need for additional financing, as well as the immediate and irreparable harm that would be suffered by the estates if the Court did not grant the relief requested. See Makuch Declaration ¶ 8 (attached to the DIP Motion). No party, including Hani, argued that the Debtors did not require the DIP Transaction, that failure to approve the requested interim financing would not cause irreparable and immediate harm to the Debtors’ estate, or that entry into the DIP Transaction is not a sound exercise of the Debtors’ business judgment. No party, including Hani, argued that prejudice would be suffered by anyone if the DIP Transaction were approved.

The Court overruled Hani’s objection to the DIP Motion being granted on an interim basis, noting that “Captain Hani Alsohaibi failed to timely object to the Motion, notwithstanding that he previously has filed pleadings in this case and notwithstanding that the Debtors’ request for replacement financing has been a subject of numerous prior pleadings and hearings that are reflected on the docket, thus giving more than adequate notice to Captain Hani Alsohaibi.” Interim Order . . . (I) Authorizing Debtors (A) to Enter into and Perform under Murabaha Agreement, and (B) to Obtain Credit on a Secured Superpriority Basis,

(II) Scheduling Final Hearing . . . and (III) Granting Related Relief [Docket No. 1245] (the “Interim Order”) ¶ 1 (emphasis in original). The proposed financing at issue “has been on notice very publicly through [the] docket as well as court proceedings to all interested parties.” June 10 Transcript at 33-34 (a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A).

The Court, in approving the interim relief requested by the Debtors, found that the Debtors’ entry into the DIP Transaction on an interim basis and initial draw of the full $175 million of the DIP Transaction was necessary to avoid immediate and irreparable harm to the Debtors pending a final hearing, and constituted a sound exercise of the Debtors’ business judgment. At the request of the Debtors, the Court scheduled the final hearing on the DIP Transaction for June 24, 2013, which is 18 days after the June 6, 2013 filing of the near final DIP Agreement attached to the second supplement to the DIP Motion and set June 17, 2013, as the objection deadline.

No stay of the Interim Order was sought or obtained by Hani or any other party. After all conditions precedent were met, on June 13, 2013, the Debtors, pursuant to the authority granted in the Interim Order, held a closing with respect to the $175 million in interim financing under the DIP Transaction authorized by the Interim Order. In excess of $105 million of that $175 million was immediately used to repay the Fortress Facility.

On June 17, 2012, Hani filed his Objection. On the same date, four other individuals, also represented by Hani’s counsel, filed a joinder to that pleading [Docket No. 1263].² (The Debtors’ reference to Hani also includes the four parties joining in Hani’s Objection.)

² Hani’s counsel has failed to file a disclosure as required by Bankruptcy Rule 2019, which makes it impossible to determine counsel’s connections or arrangements with her alleged clients, the circumstances under which those clients came to be jointly represented, or the nature of their economic interests in the Debtors or with respect to each other.

III. HANI NEVER ADDRESSES THE CONSEQUENCES OF THE APPROVAL OR THE DISAPPROVAL OF THE DIP TRANSACTION AND THE IMPACT ON THE ESTATE

Although Hani is quick to assert technical objections to the replacement DIP Transaction, Hani never addresses his purpose in objecting and never mentions the consequences of either (i) the Court's approval of a replacement DIP Transaction that he contends does not conform to Shari'ah or (ii) the Court's disapproval of the replacement DIP Transaction. The Debtors can only assume that Hani would have preferred for the Debtors to have defaulted on the Fortress Facility, which would have caused Fortress to pursue its collateral and would also doom the Effective Date of the Debtors' now confirmed Plan. Hani appears to contend the Court should allow the same result as to the interim funding now provided by Goldman, the majority of which was used to repay the Fortress Facility. Hani never addresses why this is the better course or how it will maximize the value of the Debtors' estate for the benefit of all creditors, or even why this is in Hani's best interests.

Conversely, Hani never addresses how he will be harmed if the DIP Transaction is approved on a final basis. Hani has no standing to be a champion defending the alleged rights of all creditors; on the other hand, the Committee (of which the CBB is a member) does have a fiduciary duty to all creditors and has fulfilled that duty with strong support for the DIP Transaction. However, even if Hani could speak for all creditors, he never explains the negative consequences or other harm to the estate generally that would result from the Court were to give final approval to the DIP Transaction, assuming it does not conform to Shari'ah. As discussed below, even if Shari'ah compliance were an issue, compliance with Shari'ah has no effect on enforceability of the DIP Transaction Documents, and the party most impacted by this possible issue, the Investment Agent for the DIP Transaction, has already unequivocally demonstrated its position by advancing the interim financing authorized by the Interim Order.

Under the maxim that “the squeaky wheel gets the grease,” Hani seems intent on complaining simply for the sake of doing so and hopes that someone will provide the grease to make the noise go away.

IV. THE PRINCIPAL REPLACEMENT DIP TRANSACTION DOCUMENTS ARE GOVERNED EXCLUSIVELY BY ENGLISH LAW AND NOT THE PRINCIPLES OF SHARI’AH

Parties to an agreement are free to agree on the body of law that will govern their agreement. Here, the principal replacement DIP Transaction Documents are all governed exclusively by English law and are enforceable under English law. Clause 23.1 of the DIP Agreement provides:

23.1 Governing Law

This Agreement and any non-contractual obligations arising out of or in connection with it are governed by English law.

DIP Agreement at clause 23.1.

Clause 30 of the Investment Agency Agreement provides:

30. Governing Law

This Agreement and any non-contractual obligations arising out of or in connection with it are governed by English law.

Investment Agency Agreement dated June 13, 2013 between Goldman Sachs International, as Investment, Arcapita Investment Holdings Limited, as the DIP Purchaser, Goldman Sachs International, as Arranger, and the Participants (the “Investment Agency Agreement”), attached hereto as Exhibit B, at Clause 30.

Because the relevant DIP Transaction Documents are governed by English law, English law also controls the analysis of the role of Shari’ah. Fortuitously, as discussed in more detail below, the English Court of Appeal (the “English Court”), reviewing a case essentially on all fours with the Debtors’ cases, has provided an extensive analysis as to the proper application of Shari'ah in financing documents. See Shamil Bank of Bahrain EC v. Beximco Pharmaceuticals Ltd., 2004 1 W.L.R. 1784, 1795-96 (Ct. App.) (a copy of which is attached as Exhibit C for the convenience of the Court).

Although Hani argues that, to be approved, the DIP Transaction must comply with the principles of Shari'ah, there is no support for this argument either in the DIP Transaction Documents or in applicable law. As the English Court in Shamil Bank concluded, an agreement may only be controlled by one set of laws. Id. at 1795-96. In the case of the DIP Transaction Documents, that law is English law. The few references to Shari'ah in the DIP Transaction Documents do not contradict the clear expression of the parties in the DIP Transaction Documents that English law governs, and in any event the references to Shari'ah do not provide that Shari'ah governs the enforceability of the DIP Transaction Documents.

Even if the references to Shari'ah did purport to suggest that "Shari'ah law" governed the DIP Transaction Documents, Shari'ah may not be applied in determining the applicable law in a conflict of laws analysis. Id. at 1798 (Shari'ah "is not on the face of it applicable to a choice between the law of a country and a non-national system of law, such as the lex mercatoria, or 'general principles of law,' or as in this case, the law of Shari'ah."). Shari'ah, which is subject to differing interpretations, evidences religious and moral precepts that some followers of Islam use to guide their actions and behavior. It does not purport to be the applicable law of Bahrain, the country in which Arcapita Bank is incorporated; to the contrary, Bahrain is a civil law jurisdiction. Bahrain is a civil law jurisdiction whose civil code was based on the Egyptian civil code which itself was based on the French civil code.

Moreover, Hani acknowledges that AIHL—not Arcapita Bank—is the DIP Purchaser under the DIP Agreement. See Objection ¶ 40. As the Court is aware, AIHL is a Cayman entity, and to the extent the laws of a Debtor's national origin could be held to override the express choice of law provisions in the DIP Transaction Documents and govern the DIP Transaction, it would be the laws of the Cayman Islands and not Bahrain. Hani has not and cannot argue that Shari'ah would have any bearing on enforceability under Cayman Islands law, which is based heavily upon English law.

V. NOTHING IN THE MOTION REQUIRES THIS COURT TO MAKE ANY FINDING AS TO SHARI'AH TO APPROVE THE DIP TRANSACTION

Hani appears to merely assume the premise that a finding by this Court as to Shari'ah compliance is a prerequisite to the approval of the DIP Transaction. Hani therefore assumes that, if he can convince this Court that the DIP Transaction fails to conform to principles of Shari'ah, this Court will then refuse to approve the DIP Transaction on a final basis. However, Hani's initial premise is flawed because nothing in the DIP Transaction Documents or in the Motion requires any finding by this Court that the DIP Transaction complies with Shari'ah.

There is no condition precedent that the DIP Transaction somehow objectively conform to Shari'ah, nor any requirement that the conclusion reached by the Arcapita Bank Sharia Board in the Fatwa be "correct" as measured against some objective standard for Shari'ah compliant agreements. In fact, this could never be the case because there is no "objective" unified notion of compliance with Shari'ah with respect to financial instruments.³

As to Shari'ah, the only condition precedent in the DIP Transaction Documents is that the Obligor themselves independently and unilaterally conclude that the Agreements comply with Shari'ah as evidenced by "[a] fatwa from Arcapita Bank's Sharia'a Board approving the Finance Documents and the transactions contemplated thereby." See DIP Agreement, Annex I, Schedule

1 ¶ 8.1. This condition precedent has been satisfied.⁴ Moreover, this condition precedent is consistent with the manner that Arcapita Bank, throughout its existence, has approached Shari'ah compliance. The DIP Transaction Documents do not attach a "form of fatwa" that must be used. Similarly, the DIP Transaction Documents do not provide that Arcapita must follow any particular procedure or analysis to obtain it. The mere issuance of the Fatwa conclusively establishes that, at least for purposes of satisfaction of the conditions precedent to the DIP Transaction, Arcapita Bank has complied with Shari'ah.

Indeed, the DIP Transaction Documents expressly negate any ability of the Obligors to argue that the DIP Transaction is not in compliance with the principles of Shari'ah and, therefore, unenforceable. The DIP Transaction Documents provide that the Obligors shall make their own determination as to compliance with Shari'ah and that

No Obligor has relied on any representation by or any written declaration, Fatwa, opinion or other documents prepared by, on behalf of, or at the request of, the Investment Agent or any other Finance Party as to the Shari'ah compliance of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement or any other Finance Document and the Obligors have independently made their own assessment as to whether such transactions are compliant with the Shari'ah and no Obligor will claim any dispute on the grounds of Shari'ah compliance of the Finance Documents.

DIP Agreement at Clause 12.28 (emphasis added).

Similarly, the Investment Agency Agreement provides as follows:

16.4 (a) Unless expressly agreed to the contrary, an Existing Participant makes no representation or warranty and assumes no responsibility to a New Participant for... (iv) the Shari'ah compliance of the Finance Documents and the transactions contemplated thereby.

17.16 Shari'ah compliance

⁴ The DIP Agreement also includes as a Conditions Precedent to Exit Conversion Date: "A fatwa from the Exit Purchaser's Sharia'a Board approving the Finance Documents and the transactions contemplated thereby and a pronouncement by a Sharia'a Advisor to the Investment Agent approving the Finance Documents and the transactions contemplated thereby." DIP Agreement, Annex 1, Schedule 1 ¶ 8.2.

(a) Each Participant and the Purchaser confirms that it has not relied upon any representation made by the Investment Agent as to the Shari'ah compliance of the transactions contemplated by this Agreement and the other Finance Documents.

(b) Each Participant and the Purchaser acknowledge that the Finance Documents and the transactions contemplated by them have been pronounced compliant with the principles of Shari'ah by a Shari'ah adviser approved by the Purchaser and it has not and will not dispute or contest such pronouncement or seek to otherwise challenge the validity or enforceability of any Finance Document on the basis of non-compliance with the principles of Shari'ah.

Investment Agency Agreement at Clause 16.4, 17.16.⁵

If, as here, the parties to a financing agreement agree that it shall be governed by the laws of a particular country, here the laws of England, then whether the agreement complies with the principles of Shari'ah is not relevant to the enforceability of the agreement or the approval of the agreement under the Bankruptcy Code. See Shamil Bank, 1 W.L.R. 1784.

VI. THE RULING OF THE ENGLISH COURT IN SHAMIL BANK CONCLUSIVELY DEMONSTRATES THAT HANI'S OBJECTION SHOULD BE OVERRULED

In Shamil Bank, Murabaha financing agreements entered into by a Bahraini bank provided that “[s]ubject to the principles of the Glorious Sharia’a, this agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of England.” Id. at 1787. The defendant

⁵ The reference to Shari'ah in the definition of Commodities provides as follows:

“Commodities” means, in relation to a Purchase Contract, the commodities specified in a Transaction Request, which may comprise Shari'ah compliant London Metal Exchange metals, platinum group metals or such other Shari'ah compliant commodities as may be agreed from time to time by the Purchaser and the Investment Agent and, in any event, will only include allocated commodities physically located outside of the United Kingdom and the United States of America.

DIP Agreement at Clause 1.1.

The Investment Agency Agreement also provides that the Security Agent/Investment Agent shall use reasonable efforts to invest cash in Shari'ah compliant profit bearing accounts and the parties waive any rights to receive “interest.” Investment Agency Agreement at Clause 19.27(b).

Neither of these references provide that the DIP Transaction Documents shall be governed by Shari'ah or require any finding by the Court that the DIP Transaction Documents comply with Shari'ah.

borrowers and guarantors argued that, as structured, the financing agreements were disguised loans that improperly charged interest or “riba” in violation of Shari’ah and, therefore, they were not enforceable. The lower court and English Court in Shamil Bank addressed whether the financing agreements were only enforceable to the extent they complied with both English law and Shari’ah. Id. at 1793. The English Court found that the financing agreements were controlled exclusively by English law and, therefore, Shari’ah was not relevant and, even if they did not comply with Shari’ah, the financing agreements were fully enforceable. Id. at 1800-01.

In its analysis, the English Court found that the principles of Shari’ah are far from settled and are the subject of considerable disagreement among clerics and scholars. Unlike Hani, the parties in Shamil Bank each presented expert testimony as to the requirements of Shari’ah. Shamil Bank’s expert, Dr. Lau, the former director of the Centre of Islamic and Middle Eastern Law testified that “the precise scope and content of Islamic law in general, and Islamic banking in particular, are marked by a degree of controversy within the Islamic world, best exemplified by the fact that the actual practice of Islamic banking differs widely within the Islamic world.” Id. at 1793-94. “[T]he Glorious Sharia’a refers to the divine law as contained in the Qur’an and Sunnah. However, most of the classical Islamic law on financial transactions is not contained as ‘rules’ or ‘law’ in the Qur’an and Sunnah but is based on the often divergent views held by established schools of law formed in a period roughly between 700 and 850 CE.” Id. The English Court summarized the testimony of Dr. Lau as follows:

In the absence of any agreement on the boundaries of “Islamic banking” or, indeed, on what ought to be the precise ingredients of a Morabaha agreement, it is in practice up to individual banks to determine the issue. In the absence of any legal prescription as to what does and what does not constitute Islamic banking or finance, most Islamic banks, including those in Bahrain, seek the advice of Islamic scholars who examine and approve particular agreements and forms of agreement, the role of the [Bank’s Shari’ah Committee] being to formulate the bank’s interpretation of the Sharia’a.

The particular form and content of Morabaha agreements varies. If a bank's religious supervisory board is satisfied that the bank's activities are in accordance with Sharia law, that concludes the matter, there being no provision in Bahrain law, or Islamic law generally, for an appeal by a customer of the bank against the board's rulings and certifications.

Id. at 1794 (emphasis added).

Dr. Lau concluded, “[i]n my opinion for the Morabaha agreements to be in accordance with Islamic law all that is required is that they are certified as such by Shamil Bank’s Religious Supervisory Board and the principal amounts are disbursed in accordance with the terms of the 1995 and 1996 Morabaha agreements.” Id.; see also LMA Users Guide to Islamic Financing Documents ¶ 2.4 (September 2007 ed.) (“LMA Guide”) (a copy of the LMA Guide is attached as Exhibit D for the Court’s convenience) (“The relevant Shari’a board will issue its “fatwa” (religious order) as a condition to the transaction proceeding. Following this initial approval, there is usually no need for any subsequent review as to whether a particular financing remains Shari’a compliant in the opinion of the relevant Shari’a board.”).

In comparing the testimony of the defendants’ opposing expert, the lower court in Shamil Bank observed:

The position of the defendant’s expert, Mr Khan, formerly Khan J, chairman of the Sharia Appellate Bench of the Supreme Court of Pakistan . . . acknowledged that “wherever a question of interpretation of the principles contained in the Qur’an and Sunnah is involved, the application of the rules of Sharia’a has and will continue to give rise to disputes between different jurists.” He also did not contradict the assertion of Dr. Lau that most of the classical Islamic law on financial transactions was not to be found in the Qur’an and Sunnah.

Shamil Bank at 1794.

The lower court also reasoned that “it is improbable, in the extreme, that the parties were truly asking this court to get into matters of Islamic religion and orthodoxy. This is especially so when the bank has its own religious board to monitor the compliance of the bank with the board's own perception of Islamic principles of law in an international banking context.” Id. at 1796.

Just as in Shamil Bank, no one in the Debtors' chapter 11 cases, except Hani, is asking this Court to make pronouncements of Shari'ah compliance based on Islamic religion and orthodoxy. And unlike Shamil Bank, the DIP Transaction Documents do not state that they are subject to “the principles of the Glorious Shari'ah.” Therefore, it is even clearer in this case that the relevant DIP Transaction Documents are subject only to English Law.

The lower court in Shamil Bank held that, like the parties to the DIP Transaction Documents in the Debtors' chapter 11 cases, the parties in Shamil Bank agreed that English law governed their agreements and, therefore, no matter what moral code Shamil Bank and the defendants elected to follow in their business practices, the court need not decide compliance with the disputed and uncertain principles of Shari'ah. In upholding the ruling of the lower court, the English Court concluded that a disagreement between the parties as to the tenets of Shari'ah is not surprising and does not give rise to a proper issue of law for the courts to resolve.

[S]o far as the “principles of . . . Sharia” are concerned, it was the evidence of both experts that there are indeed areas of considerable controversy and difficulty arising not only from the need to translate into propositions of modern law texts which centuries ago were set out as religious and moral codes, but because of the existence of a variety of schools of thought with which the court may have to concern itself in any given case before reaching a conclusion upon the principle or rule in dispute.

Shamil Bank at 1801.

Just as in Shamil Bank, no one in the Debtors' chapter 11 cases, except Hani, is asking this Court to make pronouncements of Shari'ah compliance based on Islamic religion and orthodoxy. And unlike Shamil Bank, the DIP Transaction Documents do not state that they are subject to “the principles of the Glorious Shari'ah.” Therefore, it is even clearer in this case that the relevant DIP Transaction Documents are subject only to English Law.

VII. HANI ASKS THIS COURT TO INVALIDATE WIDESPREAD PRACTICES GENERALLY FOLLOWED IN ISLAMIC BANKING

Hani never objected to the original Fortress Facility, which has now matured and been paid. Without regard to the consequences to the Debtors' creditors or Islamic banking generally, Hani is now asking this Court to refuse to approve the DIP Transaction which is structured in a similar fashion to the Fortress Facility. Both facilities use a finance structure widely accepted throughout the Islamic banking world. Indeed, the finance structure that Hani alleges does not comply with Shari'ah and the regulations of the CBB is the very same structure by which the CBB itself, in March of 2009, invested $250 million pursuant to a Murabaha facility, and thereby became one of the largest creditors of Arcapita Bank. See First Amended Disclosure Statement, p. 48-49, for a description of the CBB Facility. The effect of sustaining Hani's Objection based on Hani's view of Shari'ah would mean that Murabaha-based claims against Arcapita Bank, including the claim of the CBB, are not enforceable and should be disallowed.

Hani's argument simply ignores commercial reality, the best interests of the Debtors' estates and, in fact, any objective measure of Hani's own best interests. Absent the DIP Facility, the Debtors would have insufficient funds to continue to operate and the possibility of a chapter 7 liquidation of the Debtors would be heightened. As the Court found in confirming the Debtors' chapter 11 plan, a chapter 7 liquidation would result in less value for creditors of the Debtors, including Hani. Moreover, this Court's ruling accepting Hani's argument would necessarily mean that the CBB itself violated Shari'ah in investing in Arcapita, undermine Bahraini banking law and, more generally, create havoc in world-wide Islamic banking, a substantial part of which is based on the fundamental form of financial transaction evidenced by the DIP Transaction Documents.

A. General Bahraini Banking Law Condones Practices Necessary to Meet Commercial Reality

The organization and operation of Shamil Bank is very similar to Arcapita Bank, and the reasoning in Shamil Bank could just as easily have applied to Arcapita Bank.

[Shamil] bank is incorporated under the laws of Bahrain and licensed to act as a bank by the Ministry of Commerce and Bahrain Monetary Agency. The Kingdom of Bahrain is a constitutional monarchy and 95% of its population are muslims. None the less, while embracing and encouraging Islamic banking practice as a national policy, the principles of Islamic law, in particular the prohibition of Riba, have not been incorporated into the commercial law of Bahrain and there is an absence of any legal prescription as to what does and does not constitute “Islamic” banking or finance. In his survey of the commercial laws of the Arab Middle East, Professor Ballantyne (Commercial Law in the Arab Middle East: The Gulf States (1986), p 133) states that:

“In our other jurisdictions, banking interest is, in practice, tolerated (Saudi Arabia) and even sanctioned by banking laws (Bahrain, Qatar and Oman), while any theoretical or hypothetical conflicts have been largely ignored.”

Shamil Bank at 1788. Just as in Shamil Bank, Sharia’ah has no relevance to the enforceability of the DIP Transaction or its final approval by this Court.

B. LMA Users Guide to Islamic Financing Documents Contradicts Hani’s Arguments

To promote compliance with Shari’ah while at the same time adhering to English law, the Loan Market Association (“LMA”), the leading organization that deals with primary and secondary syndicated loan transactions in Europe, the Middle East and Africa, has established guidelines and forms that are widely followed in structuring financing agreements in the Islamic world to be syndicated in the UK market. See generally LMA Guide. The form and structure of the documents comprising the DIP Transaction Documents here, and the intermediate transactional steps they contemplate, conform to the guidelines in the LMA Guide. In fact, the form of the Murabaha documentation comprising the DIP Transaction Documents was based on the LMA Guide form of loan agreement as adapted for Shari’ah transactions.

As a preface to discussing methods of compliance, the LMA's overview of Islamic banking again confirms the lack of a universal view as to Shari'ah:

Islamic banking transactions are based on Islamic principles and jurisprudence (Shari'a) which are derived from a number of sources, including, primarily, the Qu'ran. These principles must be kept in mind when trying to determine the Islamic acceptability of proposed financing techniques. Shari'a is not a codified system of law and interpretations of the key principles can vary, particularly between the different "schools of thought". The four main schools are Shafi (followed predominantly in the Far East e.g. Malaysia), Hanbali (followed predominantly in the Middle East e.g. Saudi Arabia), Hanafi (followed predominantly in South East Asia e.g. Pakistan) and Maliki (followed predominantly in Africa).

For many years, Islamic banks have dealt with avoiding "riba" and have adopted processes including the use of internal Shari'ah boards to comply with Shari'ah. See LMA Guide § 2.4 at p. 4. Similar to Shamil Bank, Arcapita Bank complied with Shari'ah through the use of a Shari'ah supervisory board.

In the absence of legal prescription as to what does and what does not constitute "Islamic" banking or finance, most Islamic banks create religious or Sharia supervisory boards which review annually the operations of the bank and determine whether or not these have been carried out in accordance with Islamic law. They examine on a test basis each type of transaction entered into by the bank and evidence to show that the transaction and dealings entered into by the bank are in compliance with Sharia rules and principles, submitting an annual report to the shareholders in that respect.

Shamil Bank at 1789.

In the case of Arcapita Bank, adherence to the principles of Shari'ah is satisfied by the institution and application of procedures through the Shari'ah Board. Under the Articles of Arcapita Bank, the conclusions reached by the Shari'ah Board as to a particular transaction are dispositive when determining Shari'ah compliance. See Article 43 of the Articles of Association of Arcapita Bank B.S.C.(c) (a copy of the relevant portion is attached hereto as Exhibit E).

C. This Court Need Not Determine Whether the DIP Agreement Creates a Murabaha Or Tawarrug Transaction.

Common financing mechanisms used in Shari'ah compliant Islamic banking include:

- Murabaha (cost plus financing)
- Tawarruq/Reverse Murabaha
- Ijara (lease)
- Musharaka (equity financing)
- Mudaraba (participation financing)
- Istana'a (construction financing)
- Sukuk (Islamic bond)
- Bai salam (Forward financing)

LMA Guide § 2.5 at p. 4-10.

Without conceding whether the DIP Transaction Documents create a Murabaha or Tawarruq financing transaction, the LMA Guide expressly recognizes both as acceptable Shari'ah compliant financing structures. The Arcapita Bank Shari'ah Board has found the DIP Transaction to be Shari'ah compliant. That conclusion is final.

VIII. BY TAKING THE REQUIRED ACTIONS, ARCAPITA BANK HAS FULLY COMPLIED WITH THE PRINCIPLES OF SHARI'AH

Shari'ah is satisfied by employing a Shari'ah Supervisory Board as prescribed by CBB Regulations and the conclusions reached by that board are then final and absolute.

A. Hani Admits that Arcapita Bank Has Fully Complied With CBB Regulations

Hani admits that, to comply with CBB Regulations and Sharia'h, Arcapita Bank must:

1. "establish an independent Shari'a Supervisory Board consisting of at least three Shari'a scholars complying with AAOIFI's Governance Standards for Islamic Financial Institutions No.1 and No. 2" Objection ¶ 25; citing to CBB Rule HC-9.1.2
2. "receive their Sharia'a Supervisory Board Fatwa on all new financing proposals that have not been proposed before or amendments to existing contracts Objection ¶ 26; citing CBB Rule RM 2.2.14

3. “comply with all [AAOIFI] issued accounting standards as well as Sharia’a pronouncement issued by the Sharia’a board of the AAOFI.” Objection ¶ 26 citing to CBB Rule 1.3.15.

Hani admits that Arcapita Bank did indeed have a properly formed Shari’ah Board consisting of four eminent Shari’ah scholars as provided by CBB rule HC-9.2.1. Hani also admits that the Arcapita Bank Shari’ah Board issued the Fatwa approving the DIP Transaction, as it had the Fortress Facility and many other financing transactions. Objection ¶ 41. Although mentioning the AAOFI standards, Hani never explains what they are and never even alleges that Arcapita Bank did not fully comply with AAOFI standards. Therefore, under the CBB Regulations cited by Hani, Arcapita Bank has fully complied with CBB Regulations and its pronouncements as to Shari’ah. Indeed, the CBB has never and does not now question Arcapita Bank’s compliance with the CBB’s regulations as to Shari’ah or the efficacy of the Fatwa issued by the Arcapita Bank Shari’ah Board.

Based on a misreading of a CBB Regulation, Hani’s only argument is that the Fatwa issued by the Arcapita Bank Shari’ah Board is flawed, because it is signed by only one member of the Shari’ah Board. Hani then misstates the CBB Regulation and contends that “the signature by only one of the Sharia’ah board members fails to comply with the CBB rule that requires Shari’ah approval from at least three Shari’ah scholars.” Objection ¶ 43. However, there is no such rule. As cited by Hani several times in the Objection, including in paragraph 42, CBB rule HC-9.2.1 requires that a Shari’ah board have at least three members; Arcapita Bank’s Shari’ah Board has four. CBB Rule HC-9.2.1 does not say that a Fatwa issued by a Shari’ah Board must be signed by all board members.

As discussed above, a Shari’ah Board acts as a general supervisor of the policies of the bank; it does not address every transaction in which the Bank engages and a Fatwa does not need to be signed by all board members to represent the actions or approval of the Shari’ah Board. In the ordinary course of the business of Arcapita Bank both pre and post-petition, a Fatwa issued by the Arcapita Bank Shari’ah Board (including the Fatwa approving the Fortress Facility) has rarely been signed by all members of the Shari’ah Board.⁶

B. The Conclusion of the Shari’ah Board, Whatever it is, May Not be Disputed

Simply because he disagrees with its conclusion, Hani dismisses the Fatwa of the Arcapita Bank Shari’ah board, despite the fact that he admits that its members are all preeminent Shari’ah scholars. Objection ¶ 34. Hani asks this Court to accept Hani’s view of Shari’ah in place of the pronouncements of the scholars on the Arcapita Bank Shari’ah Board who issued the Fatwa.

As demonstrated above, opinions as to Shari’ah are subject to considerable disagreements and even well founded or reasoned disagreement does not negate the opinion of a Shari’ah Board. The conclusions and oversight of a properly constituted Shari’ah Board are not subject to dispute or appeal and their conclusions are neither “right or wrong,” they are simply final. Similar to the United States Supreme Court, a Shari’ah Board’s conclusion is “right” simply because the Board is the last resort—there is nowhere else to go.

The fatal flaw in the logic in Hani’s Objection is that, even if his view of Shari’ah were well founded, there is no mechanism or procedure in Bahrain to overturn or reject the opinion of the Arcapita Bank Shari’ah Board, and Hani has not provided any authority that would allow any tribunal anywhere to reject the Fatwa of a Shari’ah Board. But Hani asks this Court to do what cannot be done in Bahrain or under Shari'ah—Hani asks this court to somehow vacate the Fatwa of the Arcapita Bank Shari'ah Board, to itself adjudicate the moral and religious issues underlying conclusions under Shari'ah, and to substitute Hani's judgment as to the proper application of the principles of Shari'ah to the DIP Transaction in place of the scholars on the Arcapita Bank's Shari'ah Board. It is difficult to even conceive the staggering, extensive and far reaching impact on the Islamic financing markets of the action Hani urges this Court to take.

IX. EVEN IF THIS COURT (OR ANY TRIBUNAL) COULD REVISIT THE SHARI'AH BOARD'S FATWA, HANI HAS CITED NO ADMISSIBLE EVIDENCE OR AUTHORITY TO SHOW THE SHARI'AH BOARD WAS "WRONG"

Hani's Objection is devoid of any evidence supporting his several factual assertions and his very limited citation to legal authority, such as the Enron case, is not authority at all. Hani bears the burden of establishing the basis of his objection, and he could have provided evidence of foreign law in compliance with Rule 44.1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure or even provided copies of the obscure material he cites as "authority." Instead, Hani relies on flawed and incomplete citations and on references to edicts by the Organization of Islamic Cooperation and opinionated articles regarding the acceptable structure of transactions under Shari'ah. From this alone, Hani argues that the DIP Transaction does not comply with Shari'ah. Hani has not cited one authority of any kind where a fatwa, once issued, has been overturned, vacated, rejected or even questioned by any tribunal of any kind.

A. Hani's Citation to Allegations in a Complaint Filed in an Avoidance Action in Enron Exposes the Fundamental Weaknesses of His Entire Argument

At paragraphs 27 and 28 of his Objection, Hani argues that the structure of the DIP Transaction creates a Tawarruq rather than a Murabaha transaction. In paragraph 29, Hani argues that, in In re Enron Corp., "a similar transaction was objected to in the Reorganized Debtors Fourth Amended Complaint for the Avoidance and Return of Preferential Payments and Fraudulent Transfers” Hani then cites the allegations of this unspecified Enron complaint as if they were law or other conclusive findings that are somehow binding on this Court. In a complete non sequitor, Hani argues that these unsubstantiated allegations, made in the context of a complaint which had nothing whatsoever to do with Shari’ah or a Shari’ah-compliant transaction, prove that the Murabaha transaction intended here is actually a Tawarruq and that, contrary to common Islamic finance practice and the position of the LMA (which Hani conveniently ignores), a Tawarruq is not Shari’ah compliant.

Hani’s arguments are not remotely on point and demonstrate that Hani misunderstands both the nature of a mere allegation in a complaint and the requirements of Bankruptcy Rule 9011.

Because Captain Hani failed to provide a citation to the specific adversary proceeding or docket number, the Debtors can only assume he was referring to the complaint filed in Enron Corp. v. Citigroup Inc., et al. (In re Enron Corp.), Case No. 01-16034 (AJG), Adv. Pro. No. 03-09266 (AJG) (Bankr. S.D.N.Y. Jan. 10, 2005) [Docket No. 257] (the “Enron Complaint”). According to the Enron Complaint, certain defendants had participated in and/or assisted the debtors in furtherance of a prepetition scheme wherein the debtors, among other things, wrongfully recorded cash flows from debt obligations as income from business operations in order to manipulate their financial statements and deceive investors. Enron Compl. ¶ 2. Accordingly, the plaintiffs sought to avoid and recover payments made to the defendants as fraudulent transfers and preferential payments. Enron Compl. ¶¶ 743-855.

While the scheme described in the Enron Complaint might be interesting and is responsible for subsequent heightened accounting and corporate regulations,⁷ the allegations in the complaint simply have no bearing on the present matter. The Enron Complaint never once mentions Shari'ah law and has nothing to do with debtor-in-possession or exit financing, and the Enron Complaint's contention that, for purposes of a chapter 5 cause of action, the court should collapse a series of transactions has no relevance to the propriety and validity of the Arcapita Bank Shari'ah Board's analysis of the DIP Transaction or issuance of the Fatwa.

B. Opinions Expressed in Periodicals and Alleged Edicts by Trade Organizations Are Neither Evidence Nor Authority

From the scant citations provided, the Debtors could only locate some of the publications relied upon by Hani. (See Objection, at 16 n.12, 13 & 14 for the citations provided to the authorities on which Hani relies.) But none have the weight of law and, as presented, these publications are nothing but inadmissible hearsay and unsubstantiated opinion. By contrast, Hani ignores the LMA Guide discussed above. At best, Hani's reliance on articles and the opinions of organizations that adhere to one of the four schools of thought under Shari'ah prove nothing except considerable disagreements exist in what Shari'ah scholars contend is acceptable conduct under Shari'ah. It is for this reason that the CBB Regulations provide for the satisfaction of Shari'ah by appointment of a Shari'ah board and adherence to a process—both of which Arcapita Bank satisfied when it obtained the Fatwa related to the DIP Transaction—rather than subjecting the conclusion in a Fatwa to review.

X. HANI FUNDAMENTALLY MISUNDERSTANDS THE CAYMAN PROCEEDINGS AND THE OPERATION OF CHAPTER 15

Without explanation, basis or authority, and based only on the pendency of the provisional liquidation proceeding in the Grand Court of the Cayman Islands (the "Cayman Court"), Hani assumes that chapter 15 applies to AIHL's bankruptcy case and that AIHL must comply with chapter 15. Objection ¶ 17. Hani then erroneously asserts that this Court approved the DIP Transaction “on the basis it had been approved in the Cayman Islands.” Id. Based on those false premises, Hani suggests that this Court had no authority to enter the DIP Order because AIHL is not properly before the Court as a chapter 11 debtor.

The Debtors have never requested the Court to approve the DIP Transaction on the basis that it has been approved by the Cayman Court. Rather, the Debtors have sought this Court’s approval in accordance with the applicable requirements of the Bankruptcy Code and have sought authorization of the Cayman Court in accordance with the Court’s Order Pursuant to Section 363(b)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code Authorizing AIHL to Enter Into a Cross Border Protocol With the Joint Provisional Liquidators in the Cayman Proceedings [Docket No. 471].

Hani’s argument, made with absolutely no evidence or consideration of the over 15 months of history in AIHL’s chapter 11 case, reflects (i) Hani’s complete misunderstanding of the relationship of AIHL’s chapter 11 case to AIHL’s ancillary provisional liquidation in the Cayman Islands and (ii) the lengths to which Hani will go to make meritless and unfounded arguments to this Court well outside the bounds of Bankruptcy Rule 9011.

As extensively discussed in the First Amended Disclosure Statement and several times in pleadings filed in this Court beginning with the inception of the chapter 11 cases, AIHL first commenced a chapter 11 case before this Court and subsequently sought ancillary relief for AIHL from the Cayman Court “with a view to facilitating the US Bankruptcy Proceedings” See Order of the Cayman Court, March 19, 2012 (the “AIHL Cayman PL Order”), at 1 (a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit G). The Cayman Court appointed the Joint Provisional Liquidators, who have appeared repeatedly before this Court, to “oversee, monitor and assist the directors [of AIHL]” but specifically did not displace [the directors] from their role as or capacity as representatives of AIHL, as debtor in possession under chapter 11 of the Bankruptcy Code.

Given the AIHL Cayman PL Order, Hani's arguments as to the applicability of chapter 15 of the Bankruptcy Code to AIHL are, at best, uninformed. Paragraphs 2 and 5 of the AIHL Cayman PL Order clearly and unequivocally slam the door on these arguments. Pursuant to paragraph 2 of the AIHL Cayman PL Order, the Cayman Court ordered:

The directors of the Company are authorized to continue to exercise all powers of management conferred on them by the Company immediately prior to the date of this Order and to remain the representatives of the Company in its capacity as debtor in possession under s.1107 of the US Bankruptcy Code, subject to the Provisional Liquidators overseeing, monitoring and assisting the directors in the exercise of such powers (but not superseding the directors or their authority to control and direct the Company's US Bankruptcy Proceedings). Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing, the directors of the Company are authorized to take all necessary steps with a view to formulating and presenting a compromise or arrangement to the Company's creditors and, in particular, to take such steps and proceedings on behalf of the Company as may be required in relation to the US Bankruptcy Proceedings.

Cayman Order ¶ 2.

Paragraph 5 of the AIHL Cayman PL Order is even more direct in its rejection of the contention that the commencement of the Cayman Islands provisional liquidation proceeding means that chapter 15 is the proper procedural vehicle for AIHL in the United States. The Cayman Court ordered:

For the avoidance of doubt, this Order shall not be deemed to have initiated a foreign proceeding, as that term within the meaning of s.101(23) of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, the Provisional Liquidators' role shall be limited to assisting the Company's directors and reporting to this Court as provided herein, and the Provisional Liquidators are not being appointed as "foreign representatives" within the meaning of s.101(24) of the US Bankruptcy Code and are not authorised or required to seek recognition under Chapter 15 of the US Bankruptcy Code.

Cayman Order ¶ 5.

The provisional liquidation in the Cayman Islands was filed, not to defeat, but rather to facilitate, AIHL's chapter 11 case. The purpose of obtaining Cayman validating orders, including the one related to the DIP Transaction, is to insure that, even in a subsequent AIHL liquidation proceeding in the Cayman Islands, the transactions approved by the Court will be recognized in the Cayman Islands and not invalidated or avoided. Throughout the course of the Debtors' chapter 11 cases, the Cayman Court has entered many validating orders to facilitate AIHL's chapter 11 case in the United States, all with the goal of maximizing the value of recoveries to AIHL creditors. It is in this spirit of cooperation that the Cayman Court, on May 31, 2013, validated the provisions of the Plan related to AIHL and, on June 6, 2013, validated the DIP Transaction (a copy of this order is attached hereto as Exhibit H).

P R O C E E D I N G S

UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: We're here in Arcapita Bank B.S.C. et al for a hearing on a few different matters including the debtors motion for financing -- replacement post petition and financing as well as a hearing on an issue that's related to confirmation and subordination but is sufficiently discreet that I asked for folks to tee it up today in advance of two hours confirmation hearing. And I just want to let folks know what we were doing before we came out here. There is a request for a bench conference -- I'm sorry chamber's conference which sometimes can be useful in cases of parties want to have more candid conversations consistent with my practice of always in those instances having every party who is a party in interest to a particular matter be present for the chamber's conference. Everybody was so present in related to the financing motion and at that time I shared thoughts that I was going to share and will share now at the hearing. The financing motion is not -- is -- has been teed up for today. There's one objection to it and that objection as I understand is -- is at this point procedural although certainly Captain Honey's counsel can speak for herself. I perceive there's procedural saying essentially we didn't get the -- the

1 agreement itself until after the objection deadline and we 2 haven't had sufficient time to look at it. And what I 3 mentioned to parties back in the chambers conference is you 4 know the rules about this rule 4001(c)1 which walk about a 5 motion to obtain credit shall be accompanied by a copy of 6 the credit agreement as well as a proposed form of order.
7 They are what they are and that I always tried my best to 8 see if I can cure any procedural issues because we all have 9 plenty of other things to fight about on substance is 10 normally the case. And I threw out the notion that in many 11 large cases on the first day financing's addressed on an 12 interim basis and -- and that's certainly something that 13 would -- might resolve a procedural objection and then we 14 can tee this up for a final hearing at some other date. And 15 then I asked exactly when the financing expired. The 16 existing financing expired and was told that that was later 17 in the week. Although some time was needed to close. So 18 Friday when the financing ends might not be an appropriate 19 date, so.

20 All that's what was discussed earlier and so with 21 that let me get appearances from counsel and I think it'd 22 probably make sense to address the financing motion first.

23 MR. WILLIAMS: Good afternoon, Your Honor, Matthew 24 Williams of Gibson Dunn and Crutcher for the debtors. With 25 me are my partners Michael Rosenthal and Craig Millet.

1 MR. FLECK: Good Aft -- good morning, Your Honor, 2 Evan Fleck of Milbank Tweed, Hadley and McCloy on behalf of 3 the official committee of unsecured creditors and I'm joined 4 by my partner Al Piza (Phonetic).

5 MR. SEIDER: Good day, Your Honor, Mitchell Seider 6 of Latham and Watkins with Adam Goldberg of Latham and 7 Watkins for Goldman Sachs International.

8 THE COURT: Good day is -- is wonderfully
9 straddling the line. So anytime you can start to eat lunch 10 I'm happy to go with morning, afternoon or good day.

11 MS. WEINER: And good day, Your Honor, I'm Tally 12 Mindy Weiner here for Captain Honey also (Unintelligible).

13 THE COURT: All right.

14 MR. WOODS: I'm Richard Morrissey for US Trustee.

15 THE COURT: All right good day to you all. All 16 right so we've turned over to debtors to talk about the 17 financing motion.

18 MR. WILLIAMS: Good afternoon, Your Honor, Mathew 19 Williams for the debtors. Originally what I had planned was 20 to go through the you know why we need the financing which 21 is set forth in the motion and to go through the terms and 22 the financing which is also set forth in the motion and 23 supplement that we filed yesterday, I'm sorry, last weekend 24 there's a further supplement yesterday and then I was going 25 to deal with the objection. I think that given Your Honor's

1 comments what might make more sense is to just deal with the 2 objection first and then answer any questions Your Honor has 3 but I'm happy to do which ever you think is appropriate.

4 THE COURT: Well maybe you could do a -- a highly 5 abbreviated version of -- of the motion and what you're 6 planning to do but you can certainly keep it short, I've 7 read the papers.

8 MR. WILLIAMS: Okay. So here we are today the 9 motion was filed on May 27th. The motion for replacement 10 DIP financing with Goldman Sachs International. The 11 objection deadline was June 3rd at 4:00 p.m. No objections 12 were timely received. Although the creditors -- neither the 13 creditor's committee not the ad hoc committee filed anything 14 in response to the motion but I think I've got authority to 15 say and certainly my understanding that both the committee 16 and the ad hoc committee fully support the relief requested 17 herein.

18 Four days after the objection deadline on Friday, 19 June 7th, we got an objection filed by Captain Honey, Al 20 Shoaibi (Phonetic). I'm just going to refer to the 21 objecting party as Captain Honey given the -- I don't want 22 to butcher the pronunciation.

23 So briefly where we are we need the DIP financing 24 for two reasons. The first as Your Honor just mentioned is 25 we're running out of time with our current DIP financing.

1 Our current DIP financing provided by Fortress terminates -- 2 matures on Friday of this week. We've got a hundred and 3 fifty million dollar ($150m) financing package with Fortress 4 of that right now approximately a hundred and five million 5 dollars ($105m) is outstanding.

6 As set forth in the Macau Declaration filed with 7 our objection we don't have the money to pay that come June 8 14th. So absent the relief requested in this motion we 9 would be in default under the Fortress facility absent some 10 extension that facility which right now we don't have 11 authority for.

12 There's another reason we need the money as well, 13 Your Honor, the hundred and seventy five million ($175m) and 14 the reason for that is even though the Fortress facility was 15 a hundred and fifty million dollar ($150m) facility we've 16 repaid approximately forty five million dollars ($45m) of 17 that as part of mandatory prepayments under that DIP 18 facility. So right now we owe about a hundred and five 19 ($105) we only had access to that one O five ($105).

20 The good news about the Goldman facility that will 21 be provided pursuant to this motion is it's providing a 22 hundred seventy five million dollars ($175m) which will 23 bridge us not only past June 14th but past consummation of 24 the plan.

25 As Your Honor knows my colleagues will be here

1 tomorrow pursuing confirmation of a plan that has wide 2 creditors support although we've got the confirmation 3 hearing tomorrow that's likely to -- consummation, it's my 4 understanding is going to take a while. And so because of 5 that we're going to need additional liquidity. This 6 facility will provide us with the ability not only to pay 7 off Fortress but give us the liquidity going forward. So 8 from a business perspective I don't think anybody could 9 reasonably challenge the fact that we need the money. I 10 think that's uncontroverted.

11 Just briefly on the terms of the replacement 12 facility, Your Honor, again not only does it solve our two 13 looming problems which is the maturity and the liquidity but 14 it sounds substantially better terms than our current 15 facility. You know what's the same about it? Quite a bit.
16 We have the same debtor obligors. We have the same priority 17 we -- which in essence their placement DIP will have super 18 priority and expenses pursuant to 364(c)(1) and 503 (b) of the 19 bankruptcy code. The claims will be subject to the same 20 carve out which is the fifteen million dollar ($15m) post 21 default carve out that we had with the Fortress facility.

22 Like the original DIP facility the providers have 23 also agreed to in essence the same treatment with SCB as 24 Your Honor knows there's been a lot of back and forth with 25 SCB and how we deal with the collateral. So there in

1 essence stepping into that same position. Being subordinate
2 to SCB with respect to AEID 2 Rail Invest and Wind Tervine 3 (Phonetic).

4 They also have the same security package under the 5 original DIP facil -- I'm sorry under the current -- that 6 provides DIP facility the liquidity of providers will 7 receive a first lien priority on all encumbered assets.
8 Secondly in priority on encumbered assets. No liens on 9 avoidance actions again like the Fortress facility. And the 10 liens like the administrative claims will be subject to the 11 same carve out, the fifty million dollar ($15m) carve out.

12 We also have a -- a -- if -- almost identical 13 budge covenant which is basically -- it's not line item 14 tested and we have a ten percent variance and that's the 15 same. The good news is what's better are a lot of the 16 commercial and legal terms, Your Honor. As you'll remember 17 last month at the commitment letter hearing after a spirited 18 auction we ultimately chose after going back and forth 19 between two bidders we ultimately chose the -- this 20 facility. And the reason we did that is because it provided 21 materially better economic and legal terms for the debtor.

22 We realized at the time that it was going to be a 23 lot of work to get the Goldman facility done and we took 24 that into account and we determined well you know is it 25 easier to go with Fortress you know because we knew that we

1 we're going to have timing issues and the like but the truth
2 of the matter is this facility was a really, really -- it 3 provided a substantial incremental benefit over the current 4 facility that we had. For instance as I said earlier we 5 have the hundred seventy million dollars ($175m) as opposed 6 to the hundred and fifty million dollars ($150m).

7 In addition we have substantially better pricing, 8 Your Honor. Right now we've got under the -- under the 9 current DIP facility we had labor plus ten percent with a 10 two percent labor floor. Under this facility the 11 replacement facility we would have labor plus 8.25 percent 12 with a lower labor floor of 1.5 percent. So it's better 13 pricing.

14 The default profit is better as well. We've got 15 two percent under this -- under the new facility as opposed 16 to six percent in the old. As I stated earlier we'll have a 17 longer duration right? I mean it's not going to be at 18 maturity (Unintelligible) we've got a maturity date of July 19 31st and the good news is to the extent that consummation 20 gets delayed even further we can extend that out for an 21 additional two months with no fee which is a big benefit for 22 the estate.

23 Under the old DIP facility we would be subject for 24 any extensions for among other things a 1.5 percent fee. The 25 financial covenants, Your Honor, it really -- the 1 replacement facility really incorporates two financial and 2 covenants, two principle financial and covenants. The 3 first is a minimum liquidity covenant of fifteen million 4 dollars ($15m) and a second is the minimum loan to value

5 coverage ratio. We -- in discussions with the debtor's 6 financial advisors the debtors are more than comfortable 7 that we'll be able to meet these covenants. We don't see 8 them being an issue.

9 We have less restrictive prepayment provisions.
10 I'm happy to go through them if you want, Your Honor, but I 11 feel like I'm getting into details a little bit more --

12 THE COURT: No that's not necessary thank you.

13 MR. WILLIAMS: It -- it's a long -- the -- so we've 14 got much better terms. We -- I think everyone would agree 15 both the committee, the ad hoc committee, certainly the 16 debtors and all the advisors. And we've got substantially 17 better terms here.

18 And so what we're left with is a procedural 19 objection filed late by a party who complains that we didn't 20 technically comply with rule 4001(c). Now I heard Your 21 Honor's comments and I'm happy to -- you know we have tried 22 to resolve it both with the objecting party and with the DIP 23 lenders we've pushed to give the objecting party more time 24 to actually read the credit agreement. We also have been 25 pushing the DIP lenders to maybe do an interim -- interim

1 order like Your Honor said. We haven't gotten either yet.
2 I will tell Your Honor that a couple of things -- one and to 3 the extent it's relevant the reason we didn't file the DIP
4 credit agreement with the motion is that one it wasn't done
5 yet. But two we did file a 27 page agreed upon term sheet 6 with detailed terms, very detailed terms.

7 And that was an agreement between the parties. We 8 also, Your Honor, one of the reasons we couldn't file it 9 even as we got closer is given the fact that this agreement 10 is subject to syndication. Once you file that agreement, 11 once you make the agreement completely public lenders get 12 wed to the terms and from the estate's perspective both from 13 the committee's perspective and the debtors perspective 14 filing that agreement, right the quote -- the form agreement 15 inhibits our ability to get better terms as we continue to 16 negotiate. So that was one of the principle reasons why we 17 didn't file it even after we had a relatively good working 18 draft.

19 Now understand technically we did not comply with 20 4001(c) there is case law out there Your Honor that provides 21 that you know to the extent that a party doesn't technically 22 comply with 4001(c) you know I would quote a case that we 23 even found it was called in re Plaza Di Ritero (Phonetic) 24 and it's 2009 WL 363356, where the court found that the 25 failure to -- by the party to raise the 4001 (c) objection

1 timely precluded that part -- precluded the moving party
2 from being aware that such non compliance would be an issue 3 and thus from fixing the problem timely with the second 4 amended motion.

5 So you know I -- I -- I understand that the 6 technical objection, the procedural objection. And if we 7 could solve it we would either with the party objecting or 8 with the DIP lenders. It's unclear to me yet and maybe when 9 the objecting party steps up to the podium here they'll 10 explain their position in the case. What exactly their 11 creditor position is because it wasn't clear to me at least 12 in the motion -- in the objections and maybe they can 13 explain that but you know given the extraordinary 14 circumstances here you know the debtors would ask that you 15 approve the motion on the final basis. And I know that 16 Goldman wants to be heard on the interim final issue as well 17 so maybe after the objecting party speaks we could hear from 18 the DIP lender and the committee as well.

19 THE COURT: All right let me hear from the objector 20 first.

22 THE COURT: Thank you.

23 MR. WOODS: Your Honor, may I just add one point?

24 THE COURT: Sure.

25 MR. WOODS: I -- I know it's adding something to my

1 -- to my partner's comment. He said a couple times and I 2 just want the court to be clear that confirmation may go on 3 for a long time. I don't think that's the case. We intend 4 to present our confirmation case pretty succinctly tomorrow.
5 There have been limited objections filed. I think what he 6 meant was that the effective date may not occur for a long 7 time.

8 THE COURT: No that's how I understood it.

9 MR. WILLIAMS: Your Honor, I apologize. I thought I 10 said consummation but I --

11 THE COURT: No I got it. All right let me hear 12 from the objector.

13 MS. WEINER: Good day again, Your Honor. I ask at 14 the outset for equal time. I'll try to be brief.

15 THE COURT: Well say what you need to say and we'll 16 figure it out.

17 MS. WEINER: Okay. Well I understand that -- 18 Arcapita position is that my client has filed a procedural 19 objection that was late and that I'm calling them out on 20 technical non compliance. Now I don't agree with that 21 characterization there's a substantive issue here and I 22 think that if Your Honor looks at the case that was cited 23 it's clearly distinguishable. I haven't seen the case but 24 from the description it's distinguishable. What should have 25 been filed by the debtors here --

1 THE COURT: No I know what the rule says. My 2 question for you is where have you been? Certainly I've 3 seen a pleading that your client filed earlier on the case 4 so I know your client's been following the matters. We had 5 a -- a rather lengthy financing beauty pageant for lack of a 6 -- of a better term in which the -- the details and the 7 terms were being fought about in open court with a wonderful 8 situation for the estate and a more frustrating situation 9 for most lenders where there were coming in with better and 10 better terms in such that we actually had to set a last and 11 final deadline where rather ceremoniously people provided me 12 with the last and best offers. So that was pretty much out 13 there it in -- in this courtroom as to what was going on as 14 well as in -- in the docket. So if you're following the 15 docket there were -- there were lots of pleading back and 16 forth by -- by the debtors, by the committee, by parties who 17 were seeking to be the financing parties. Your client was - 18 - was nowhere to be seen in connection with that. And then 19 there was a 27 page term sheet that was filed and certainly 20 an objection could have been made timely that would have 21 said that's insufficient and we object. No such objection 22 was -- was lodged. And so when the inevitable happened 23 which is the actual agreement was filed -- which was -- 24 which was clearly going to be what was going to happen there 25 was a filing after that that didn't comply with the -- the 1 rules in terms of time. So you understand from my point of 2 view that I -- I've tried to resolve procedural objections

3 and I'm a big fan obviously of due process and of people 4 getting things -- an opportunity to address things but you - 5 - you will understand you're not in the best position to 6 make that argument given the factual circumstances.

7 MS. WEINER: I -- I thank you, Your Honor. To 8 address some of the points that you've made here. You've 9 asked firstly where's the client. Ben Captain Honey has 10 been in Jeddah, Saudia Arabia where -- where --

11 THE COURT: I -- I didn't mean that. If --

12 MS. WEINER: -- where he --

13 THE COURT: -- wait, wait. If -- I'm asking a 14 question, I'm telling you what's on my mind so you get a 15 chance to address it substantively. If we -- if we're going 16 to get -- go down the road of being snarky then I -- I 17 don't think this is going to be a very productive 18 discussion. So I -- I'm -- I'm asking you how you want me to 19 consider your objection procedurally. And in that same vein 20 I'd also like to ask if there is -- you're clients view 21 about how long and how much time would be necessary to 22 review the agreement that is already been previewed in the 23 27 page term sheet.

24 MS. WEINER: Okay and Your Honor, I -- I apologize.
25 I don't mean to be getting snarky --

1 THE COURT: No I don't need an apology. I just 2 want to have a -- a legitimate discussion on the merits.
3 And I have my views, sometimes I'm right, sometimes I'm 4 wrong, sometimes people point out things that I haven't 5 thought of so I -- when I ask a question I actually do want 6 a substantive answer because there may be something you're 7 going to tell me that's going to change my mind so that's 8 why I ask.

9 So -- so let me ask again, procedurally how you 10 view your client's situation in terms of making this 11 objection at this time. And secondly from a practical point 12 of view how much time is your client requesting to look at 13 this to the extent that I order it be interment final?

14 MS. WEINER: Okay, Your Honor, firstly the debtors 15 -- even as of right now have not put on file everything that 16 they're supposed to put on file. The cross references 17 required by the rule went on file I think at 10:26 p.m. last 18 night that woke me up as I was going to sleep. I heard the 19 ping on my phone. As of when I handed my phone to security 20 that had not been served. So I just want to be clear that 21 even putting aside the lateness issues as of this morning 22 there wasn't a complete file. I don't even know that you 23 got a chambers copy but I shant belabor that because I think 24 you understand the -- the -- there's been what's being 25 called procedural non compliance.

1 And in terms of how much time is needed to review
2 this agreement, late Thursday night the debtors filed a 186 3 page PDF, I think about a 180 some odd pages of that were --

4 THE COURT: I -- I'd like to say it's unusual in 5 this courthouse but I -- I'm sad to say I would be lying if 6 I said so but how much time is it that your clients 7 requesting?

8 MS. WEINER: I -- I am hopeful that we can do this 9 in a week or two. I would need to find a Sharia -- someone 10 who's sharia knowledgeable. This case is --

11 THE COURT: But -- but why would the finding of 12 somebody who is Sharia knowledgeable be something that would 13 have waited until this point in time given the finance -- 14 wouldn't that person -- it have been wise to retain that 15 person when the financing motions were being filed and so 16 you knew additional financing was going to be obtained?
17 And on terms that were different than the existing 18 financing? So I -- I'm -- I'm not -- that argument I will 19 say does not persuade me. It persuades me that -- that you 20 need some time to take a look at things and I'm thinking of 21 sometime this week. That's what I'm willing to do is to try 22 to work out something where there would be a hearing at the 23 end of the week. I'm going to take everybody's views and 24 I'm going to make a ruling. So I'm asking for your view but 25 if it's one or two weeks I'm going to tell you two weeks is 1 -- is not happening.

2 MS. WEINER: Okay well perhaps this would help.
3 Your Honor's is correct that Captain Al so Hiabib (Phonetic)
4 has written to the court before. I was engaged by my client 5 on Wednesday. So in terms of telling what have you been 6 waiting for I haven't been waiting for anything. I've 7 started acting --

8 THE COURT: Yeah but I can't -- I can't do that if 9 you're client is -- waits till the last minute to get 10 counsel. I -- I empathize with the position that you're in 11 but your client's certainly has been in notice since I've 12 seen filings from your client. And I believe they relate to 13 the disclosure statement but don't quote me on that. But I 14 know I've seen some several months ago. So your client has 15 been following this matter and certainly has -- those -- 16 those pleadings if I remember correctly exhibited an 17 understanding of exactly what we were doing here. I believe 18 they were all pro se, that's correct but I -- I'm not going 19 to consider except perhaps as a practical matter the fact 20 that that you were retained Wednesday which is I think after 21 the objection deadline, that -- that's your client's choice.
22 And unfortunately your -- your stuck with your client's 23 choices. I appreciate your candor on that but -- but I -- 24 I'm not going to -- that's of limited beauty (Phonetic) 25 in this circumstance.

1 MS. WEINER: One -- one further thing with respect
2 to the delay here which is Goldman Sachs from what I 3 understand had been diligencing this DIP months ago, months 4 ago. And indeed it sought and obtained a substantial 5 contribution claim even though -- I'm sorry, substantial 6 contribution award even though it didn't close. So if the 7 question to me is well what is your client been waiting for.
8 I don't understand why the debtors are teeing this up for 9 you as an emergency. Why it's a sprint to the finish line 10 because Goldman could've been negotiating --

11 THE COURT: Well let -- let -- let --

12 MS. WEINER: -- this months ago.

13 THE COURT: The financing issue has been the 14 subject of multiple discussions going back to the hurricane 15 in the fall so I will say it has been teed up at the last 16 second so I think in -- in view of the pleadings would show 17 -- and the docket would show that that's not the case. So 18 to the extent that -- I'm not quite sure how that relates to 19 what I have in front of me which is a very set motion 20 response time and -- and a hearing date. This has been 21 fairly well noticed. And so I -- I'm going to reject the -- 22 the that somehow this has been crammed down everybody's 23 throat. It's been pretty much well noticed. And I'll ask 24 the parties who are of -- of interest to sort of straighten 25 me out to the extent that I have my dates wrong but I think

1 it's been on for a while. So anything else that you want to 2 -- want to tell me?

3 MS. WEINER: Yes, to address three more things and 4 then I'm happy to sit down. In terms of the noticing in 5 this case, we ourselves served our papers over the -- the 6 weekend. And we observed the master service list has been 7 kept -- that's on the court's website is all messed up. So 8 if you look at how the services have gone out in this case 9 by Garden City Group on behalf of Arcapita --

10 THE COURT: Look do you have a specific argument as 11 to your client? I didn't see this in the objection so I'm 12 -- I'm a little in the dark as to what your argument is as 13 to your client on this issue.

14 MS. WEINER: What I've been trying to -- to argue 15 throughout here, Your Honor, is transparency, due process 16 and fairness and if Your Honor's saying to me well these 17 things have been noticed and people have known about this 18 for months now --

19 THE COURT: No, no, I -- I want to hear --

20 MS. WEINER: -- I'm telling you that the service 21 list is messed up.

22 THE COURT: Messed up as to your client? Or I'm 23 not interested in you policing the universe here. And I'm 24 trying to get this back to the objection to the motion that 25 I have. I didn't see anything in the objection mentioning

1 services and issue, I'm always concerned about due process 2 but I'm always weary of -- of a particular creditor deciding 3 to serve as ombudsman to everybody's rights in a way that -- 4 that -- that might be perceived as -- as leverage. So what 5 about service is it that you want to tell me as it pertains 6 to your client if anything?

7 MS. WEINER: Okay. Your Honor, I'll tell you about 8 service and notice as it pertains specifically to my client 9 and not as -- as some kind of cop here that I'm not which is 10 from what I understand the grand court in Cayman approved 11 the Goldman financing on Friday --

12 THE COURT: What's this -- wait a minute, we've now 13 segwayed into something else that's not -- you were talking 14 about the master service list so let's finish the point and 15 then we can move on to the Cayman Islands.

16 MS. WEINER: The point, Your Honor, is that there's 17 been an assumption here that things are proceeding in a 18 transparent manner and in a way that gives people time -- 19 you know what, I'm -- I'm happy to move on with that point 20 because if no one in this courtroom cares that the master's 21 service list is messed up I'm not going to make them care.
22 We can move on to what's going on in the Cayman.

23 THE COURT: All right, you can do whatever you'd 24 like to do counsel, it's up to you.

25 MS. WEINER: Your Honor, this is my first

1 appearance be -- before you and I -- I really -- really 2 don't want to go down this way. I'm a three time federal 3 law clerk I have the highest respect for the system and 4 process and the Judges --

5 THE COURT: No, no, that -- that's fine just tell 6 me what you want to tell me and I'll -- I'll hear it and 7 then I'll make my decision.

8 MS. WEINER: Okay. I appreciate that. From what I 9 -- I understand from friends in Cayman the grand court in 10 Cayman approved the Goldman financing on Friday I believe 11 that was not disclosed to parties in interest. It certainly 12 was not disclosed to my client who has a direct interest in 13 that because the liquidation of the company on the back end 14 of the chapter 11 I believe will be going on in Cayman. I 15 think it is disingenuous at best for them to ask Your Honor 16 to approve this financing without disclosing to you and the 17 other parties and interest that the Cayman court has already 18 approved it. There's also not a chapter 15 in place so I 19 don't think that you -- you have the authority technically 20 to recognize that but you can enter your own approval order.
21 I agree that that rather creates some -- some chaos, two 22 different courts approving agreements on two different 23 terms. It's important to Captain Al Shoaibi for me to let 24 you know that he is in this case at all because he was 25 unlawfully solicited in Saudi Arabia that is the subject of 1 an investigation in Saudi Arabia. The debtors do not 2 dispute this by the way. So he's rather astounded that this 3 court would -- would keep -- keep this case going and keep 4 the protections of the automatic stay in place for a company 5 that is breaking the law in his native country. He never 6 wanted to come into this case. He got dragged into it by an 7 unlawful solicitation.

8 And what we would like to see happen is a 9 liquidation. We posit Your Honor that the company they keep 10 telling you you should approve this because we need the 11 money, we need the money, we need the money. Every time 12 they get money they waste the money. If you look at 13 operating reports they are losing money. So --

14 THE COURT: I believe we've segwayed into a 15 confirmation objection. So which we're going to get to 16 tomorrow. So just anything else on this particular motion?
17 You're -- you're advocating liquidation rather than 18 reorganization that's fine you can make that argument 19 tomorrow. So anything else on this particular motion?

20 MS. WEINER: Your Honor, I would be willing to take 21 adjournment if the other parties are to try to work this out 22 yet again but if not I -- I have nothing further unless 23 someone else wants to be heard here as well. In which case 24 I'd like to be able to reply to that. Thank you very much.

25 THE COURT: Thank you.

1 MR. SEIDER: Your Honor, Mitchell Seider of Latham
2 Watkins on behalf of Goldman Sachs International. I'd like 3 to be heard for just a moment or two in support of the 4 debtors motion for actually the final order today.

5 Your Honor, the motion requesting the relief was 6 filed on May 27th and Your Honor is of course correct at the 7 time the motion was filed the credit facility was not 8 attached to the motion. And the objection deadline for the 9 motion was set at June 3rd. between May 27th and June 3rd, 10 the credit facility was not filed with the court and on the 11 objection deadline it had not been filed.

12 The objector has filed its objection four days 13 after the deadline. I've had the opportunity to read the 14 objection and Your Honor is of course correct as to what 15 rule 4001(c) provides with respect to timing. Rules 16 however, Your Honor also become the subject of cases. And 17 the case law on procedural deadlines in bankruptcy cases is 18 fairly clear. When a deadline that's been set by a court is 19 missed, it's incumbent upon the objecting party to 20 demonstrate and substantiate excusable neglect for not 21 meeting the deadline. There is nothing in the objection 22 explaining or substantiating why there has been or even 23 alleging why there has been or even alleging excusable 24 neglect in this case.

25 One further point, Your Honor, it is typical at 1 least in my experience that when a party files a pleading 2 before the court, the party sets forth the precise nature of 3 its connection to the case. In the objection there is a 4 statement that the objector is a party in interest. There 5 is no statement in the objection that the objector is a 6 creditor or how much the objector's claim as a creditor may 7 be for.

8 It is entirely possible that the objector here is 9 a creditor or an equity holder in a non debtor affiliate of 10 the debtors. Those non debtors of course are not before 11 Your Honor. So just to make this very brief and to sum it 12 up Your Honor, there's been no showing of excusable neglect 13 for missing the deadline. The entry of the final order 14 today is important for reasons I know Your Honor understands 15 and it's not even clear as to what the connection between 16 the objector in the case is, thank you.

17 THE COURT: Anyone else wish to be heard?

18 MR. FLECK: Your Honor, once again Evan Fleck on 19 behalf of the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors.
20 Mr. Williams was -- was correct the committee is supportive 21 of the relief requested by the debtors in the motion. In 22 particular, Your Honor I wanted to note that this is not the 23 type of case where the committee was looking over the 24 debtors shoulders as the debtor negotiated with the lender 25 regarding the terms of the agreement. The committee has

1 been involved through its advisors indirectly in every step 2 of the -- every step of the negotiation, every step of the 3 documentation as a fiduciary for all the unsecured creditors 4 we are comfortable with the terms that are before the court 5 today for approval are appropriate. And are in the best 6 interest of the estates. We take seriously as the committee 7 -- as the fiduciary for unsecured creditors the issues that 8 were raised by the objectors counsel today. Particular with 9 respect to transparency and the appropriateness of the 10 process. The committee was -- was comfortable with the 11 timing of the motion as well as the filing of the -- the 12 detail term sheet and then the definitive documentation. We 13 think that that was appropriate for purposes of advancing 14 the dialogue with respect to the negotiation. We think 15 creditors were on notice. That issue was discussed with the 16 -- with the committee directly and the committee was 17 comfortable proceeding in the fashion that -- that we 18 actually did receive in the case.

19 The -- the issues with respect to service in the 20 case are also important. The committee members themselves 21 have -- have -- have actually inquired of their advisors to 22 be sure that service is appropriate particularly given the 23 international nature of this case. And -- and not only have 24 the -- is it our view that the debtors have handled that 25 issue appropriately throughout the case but the committee

1 has also taken independent steps to be sure that -- that 2 those issues are handled appropriately both with the respect 3 to this proceeding as well as when action is taken in the 4 Cayman court.

5 I know that's a little bit afield of what's before 6 the court so I wanted to first speak in favor of the motion 7 and make clear that notwithstanding the fact that the 8 committee didn't file a separate pleading other than the one 9 Your Honor referenced in support of the commitment letter, 10 we are firmly in support of the relief that's being 11 requested. But given the other comments that were made with 12 respect to process in the case generally I thought it was 13 important that -- that Your Honor hear from the committee 14 our perspective with respect to the operation of the case 15 throughout -- I know some of them are confirmation issues we 16 can deal with them tomorrow but the committee has been kept 17 apprised, we have used our website, we have used outreach 18 and we've had a dialogue with -- with creditors throughout 19 the case to be sure that they're informed with respect to 20 the case generally and specifically with respect to 21 financing because it has featured so prominently in -- in 22 the proceedings of this case. Happy to answer any 23 questions from the court.

24 THE COURT: Thank you. Anyone else who wishes to 25 be heard?

1 MR. WOODS: Your Honor, I can't let the Cayman
2 notice point go. So just a quick -- a quick response.
3 There was a hearing in the Cayman as the court knows.
4 Whenever we do something for AIHL that involves a potential 5 transfer of AIHL property we need a Cayman validation order.
6 It always comes in conjunction with an order from this court 7 that we're seeking today with respect to all the debtors.
8 But in the Cayman court it only relates to AIHL.

9 There may be many things that Captain Honey as we 10 know he's not a creditor of AIHL. And the -- and the notice 11 procedures that were followed in connection with the Cayman 12 proceeding for the Cayman validation order complied with 13 Cayman law, that is the basis of that Cayman joint 14 liquidation proceeding.

15 THE COURT: All right, thank you.

16 MS. WEINER: Your Honor, AIHL is a debtor both in 17 Cayman and here in this court. So I'm -- I'm not really 18 appreciating with the significance is of saying that what's 19 going on in Cayman affects only AIHL, I don't really get it 20 because it's a here too.

21 In terms of responding to the comments of Goldman 22 counsel the Captain Al Shoaibi is indeed a party in 23 interest. He was sent a proof of claim from what I'm told, 24 I haven't seen it yet. He was also sent a plan ballot or 25 some kind of paper work in connection with the plan. In

1 terms of exact position I think that's in the papers he 2 filed pro se but in any event parties are not being required 3 to file claims publically the claim register is under seal

4 And in terms of who needs to show excusable --

5 THE COURT: Well I don't think it's under seal, I 6 think it's just not on the docket which is not uncommon in 7 large cases.

8 MS. WEINER: I think I can't access it like in the 9 Leeman case, I do some work in Leeman, I can pull up the 10 claims register online. In this case I can't.

11 THE COURT: Well it's not under seal. There's been 12 no sealing order relating to any of the claims so that's -- 13 I can tell you that for a hundred percent certainty.

14 MS. WEINER: Is -- is that right?

15 THE COURT: I don't think we need to get -- Yeah 16 I'm not going to have a -- an inquest on it --

17 MS. WEINER: Okay.

18 THE COURT: I'm just clarifying the facts.

19 MS. WEINER: Further with respect to excusable 20 neglect, well -- we've explained that a motion was not fully 21 on -- on -- on file so the financing motion -- so I don't 22 believe that I need to show excusable neglect and indeed 23 that I think that Arcapita and Goldman Sachs need to excuse 24 their own neglect in not attaching the mandatory filings.
25 That's all I have unless you have questions.

1 THE COURT: All right, no I don't.

2 MS. WEINER: Thank you very much.

3 THE COURT: All right anyone else wish to be heard
4 on this motion? All right, I have in front of me a motion 5 for financing that is to replace the existing financing with 6 other financing. And the existing financing matures on 7 Friday. There is no dispute about several facts relating to 8 the financing. One is that it has significantly better 9 terms for the estate than the existing financing. This 10 includes better pricing, longer duration as well as 11 flexibility also includes more money. There has been no 12 dispute that the debtors need the money although there is 13 clearly a -- a disagreement about the proper path of the 14 case that Captain Honey wishes to pursue in a confirmation 15 objection.

16 There's also no dispute that the financing has 17 been the subject -- financing in this case has been the 18 subject of many, many pleadings and many proceedings. I 19 remember extensive proceedings up in White Plains where we 20 had a hearing in this case as a result of the hurricane in 21 the fall and there were many discussions at that time and 22 there continue to be many discussions including the -- 23 essentially auction that was held on financing in this very 24 courtroom not -- a few weeks ago.

25 So the matter has been on notice very publically

1 through docket as well as court proceedings to all 2 interested parties.

3 So I am -- I do not adopt Captain Honey's
4 objection about the -- the transparency issue. I -- I think 5 it has been transparent the need for financing, the terms of 6 the financing and I think Captain Honey has essentially been 7 missing in that dialogue or even monitoring those 8 proceedings. So unless he's been talking to the creditors 9 committee in which case he would know the creditors 10 committee is supporting -- essentially the path has been 11 taken in this case on financing.

12 I find problematic many the objections that have 13 been set forth in the pleadings as well as presented for the 14 first time here today including things relating to the 15 master service list and service in the case. I believe if 16 my memory serves that in fact I have -- I tweaked the 17 service at one point not permitting service simply by email 18 but required packages to be sent overseas because of my 19 concern about service.

20 I also reject any allegation thus far is unproven 21 and unsubstantiated relating to the Cayman court. I -- I 22 think I've been very well informed as to what's gone on in 23 the Cayman court. It's been the subject of pretty much 24 every hearing that we've had in this case. I've gotten an 25 update and it is not -- it's not a simple dance back and

1 forth between a Chapter 11 in this jurisdiction in a 2 proceeding in the Cayman Island's court but it is also not a 3 rare one.

4 This is not a chapter 15, I think that comment 5 misunderstands the nature of the relationship between a 6 chapter 11 in this jurisdiction and a Cayman Island 7 proceeding.

8 I have no view on the merits of any allegations
9 regarding events and solicitations Saudi Arabia, not facts 10 have been presented to me. Those -- those -- it is what it 11 is. And that's being investigated as been -- Captain Honey 12 has stated.

13 So I am -- the one thing I do have a hang up with 14 which is what I said from the very get go this morning is 15 the requirement of the rule. I do believe that debtors and 16 the committee and Goldman given the facts and circumstance 17 of this case thought it was beneficial to do something 18 different than what the rule provided. There were no 19 objections to that or timely objections I should say. A 27 20 page term sheet is a fairly robust view of the financing.
21 So they can't have it both ways and complain 27 pages 22 doesn't give you enough but a 181 pages is too burdensome.
23 I'm not quite sure what the magic page number in that range 24 becomes.

25 But that said the rules are the rules which is

1 what I said from the get go. So what I am willing to do is 2 to approve on an interim basis the financing here today and 3 schedule a hearing later this week with sufficient time that 4 for closing by Friday so that Captain Honey and his counsel 5 can take a look at Shari compliance issues that they're 6 interested in. I reject the notion that a week or two is 7 the appropriate deadline for such a adjournment.

8 The merits on the final financing to the extent 9 that Captain Honey has decided to retain counsel at the last 10 minute despite knowing of the proceedings and monitoring 11 them. That is a choice that he has made. This confirmation 12 hearing has been set for some time and financing as I said 13 has been the subject of -- of ongoing discussions for many, 14 many months. So Wednesday is something that leaps out to 15 me, Wednesday afternoon to the extent that that would work 16 with parties schedules. If I understand the -- the 17 deadlines right that would give some two days both for 18 Captain Honey to take a look at the pleading that was filed 19 on -- on the -- I believe the 6th or the 7th -- the 6th and 20 it would also give hopefully sufficient time for the parties 21 to close any financing as is appropriated if it is approved 22 on a final basis.

23 So I'm happy to let parties chat among themselves 24 if they want to do that before telling me what their view is 25 on that but that's my current inclination.

1 MR. WILLIAMS: Good afternoon, Your Honor, Matthew
2 Williams, Gibson Dunn for the record for the debtors. I -- 3 just one question I had with -- and again I have to speak 4 with the DIP lenders and maybe a shorter term -- it would 5 make sense but we -- to the extent we could get the DIP 6 lenders to agree would Your Honor be willing to enter the 7 interim order today so that the --

8 THE COURT: Yes.

9 MR. WILLIAMS: -- okay, all right. I just wanted 10 to make sure.

11 THE COURT: Yeah, no, no. That -- an interim order 12 today just -- justice is not -- not at all uncommon in fact 13 the -- the routine way of doing it in first day, you should 14 come in you need financing you get an interim order and then 15 there's a final order which gives people sufficient time to 16 take a look at things.

17 MR. WILLIAMS: Okay I'm sorry, I just misunderstood 18 --

19 THE COURT: No, no, no I don't think I was very 20 clear. So I would enter and interim order today and then 21 have a final hearing with the thought of entering a final 22 order if appropriate the same day right after the conclusion 23 of that hearing. That's normally how -- how I handle 24 financing in -- in Mega Chapter 11 cases. It's just sort of 25 a standard course.

1 MR. WILLIAMS: Understood, Your Honor. I just 2 needed that clarified.

3 THE COURT: That's fine.

4 MS. WEINER: That is one -- can you hear me from 5 here?

6 THE COURT: You -- you may want to come around to 7 just get a microphone, any microphone will do. You can use 8 whatever works for you. Just -- I don't know if it counts 9 for purposes -- I'll hear you but I don't think it counts 10 for purposes of a transcript which is important.

11 MS. WEINER: I thank you. I'll certainly take the 12 opportunity to speak with counsel if they would like to.
13 Since from what I understand Your Honor is entering a -- an 14 interim order today. I suppose I cannot appeal that 15 immediately because I would need to bring a motion for leave 16 to appeal. So I would ask if that could -- if you would 17 grant leave to --

18 THE COURT: If you -- if you -- if you want to 19 appeal it I'll need a motion asking for leave to appeal it 20 because I -- I confess I -- I don't have -- I need somebody 21 to look at the law, you need someone with the laws and 22 people can respond. I question really the utility of doing 23 so if I'm going to have a final hearing on Wednesday but 24 obviously you're free to do whatever you think you'd like to 25 do.

1 MS. WEINER: Your Honor, the utility is that 2 there's going to be a confirmation hearing tomorrow and so 3 it's just sort of a sequencing thing. Which is if Your 4 Honor confirms a plan tomorrow and I don't get -- get to put 5 my objection on file till Wednesday the debtors no doubt 6 will argue that I'm mooted out somehow. So I'm just trying 7 to avoid getting mooted out.

8 THE COURT: I -- I -- just file your motion and 9 I'll figure it out.

10 MS. WEINER: Thank you.

11 THE COURT: So thank you. All right I don't know 12 if the lender wants to weigh in on this or if anybody want 13 chat or how you want to do this. Again that -- that's up to 14 you.

15 MR. WILLIAMS: Thank you, Your Honor. Thank you 16 for your willingness to enter the interim order today under 17 the circumstances I think that's the best course and we will 18 of course be supportive of entry of the interim order today.
19 If Your Honor will allow us a few minutes to have a 20 discussion with Captain Honey's counsel around when we can 21 set the final hearing using your suggestion of Wednesday as

23 THE COURT: All right.

24 MR. WILLIAMS: As a good base from our perspective.

25 THE COURT: All right I -- I have matter Wednesday

1 morning but let me just check to see -- I have one thing at 2 2:00 that's a status conference and I confess -- one moment.
3 I confess that that's not a hearing on a contested matter, 4 it's a status conference. So that if you all came in at 5 2:30 I think that would be fine.

6 MR. WILLIAMS: I'm sorry, Your Honor. I apologize -

8 THE COURT: No, that's all right. I was saying I 9 have --

10 MR. WILLIAMS: -- counsel --

11 THE COURT: -- matters on at 10:00 on -- on 12 Wednesday and I have one matter on at 2:00. If memory 13 serves that should be fairly brief. So I would expect to be 14 free as in about 2:30 on Wednesday afternoon.

15 MR. WILLIAMS: Thank you, Your Honor. With that in 16 mind may we have a few minutes to speak --

17 THE COURT: Sure.

18 MR. WILLIAMS: -- to the debtors, the committee, 19 and the objector's counsel.

20 THE COURT: So what I will do is I will take a 21 short recess and then when we come back you can let me know 22 if there's anything else we need to discuss on that motion 23 and if not we'll proceed with the subordination.

24 MR. WILLIAMS: Thank you, Your Honor.

25 (Whereupon the court recessed)

1 THE COURT: Please be seated.

2 MR. WILLIAMS: Good afternoon, Your Honor.

3 THE COURT: Good afternoon.

4 MR. WILLIAMS: Matthew Williams, Gibson Dunn and 5 Crutcher for the debtor. Captain Honey's counsel is not 6 back in the courtroom yet. We've got somebody out looking 7 for her.

8 THE COURT: That's fine. We'll wait a minute.

9 MR. WILLIAMS: Okay. I will -- while we're waiting 10 for Captain Honey's counsel if -- well I guess we're not on 11 the record. We -- it's probably better if we wait --

12 THE COURT: Yeah, it's the -- let's just give it a 13 -- give it a second.

14 MR. WILLIAMS: We appreciate it. Thank you, Your 15 Honor.

16 THE COURT: Shuffle some papers in the meantime.

17 MR. WILLIAMS: Your Honor, if I can be excused for 18 a second I'll go join the search.

19 THE COURT: Sounds like Sea Quest.

20 MR. WILLIAMS: Your Honor, may I suggest -- I mean 21 one alter -- one thing we can do as we're looking for her is 22 move to the subordination matter unless you wanted to 23 adjourn --

24 THE COURT: All right I have no problem with that 25 if everybody's present who has an interest in that matter,

1 that would be fine.

2 All right so it is the debtors request under the 3 plan to subordinate so I would imagine I'd hear from the 4 debtors first and the committee and then from Tide. And I 5 assume that all the folks from Tide are in the courtroom?
6 I -- I --

7 MR. WOODS: Good afternoon, Your Honor. Troy Wood
8 on behalf of Tide.

9 THE COURT: Afternoon, all right.

10 MR. WILLIAMS: Good afternoon, Your Honor, Craig
11 Millet from Gibson Dunn Crutcher on behalf of the debtors.

12 THE COURT: All right how can such a short 13 obviously clearly drafted statute create such confusion? I 14 had a number of questions that I thought might be worth to 15 throw out and then folks can address then as they go 16 through. One thing was it's clear in addressing the case 17 law that many of the things that are talked about are not 18 actually relevant to the actual decisions of those courts.
19 So are of varying degrees of utility. And so what I'm 20 trying to get is a -- a sense of how you read the entire 21 statute in terms of giving effect to all of its parts. And 22 there's been various arguments back and forth that 23 somebody's reading something out of the statute. I know 24 Tide makes that argument explicitly but also the questions 25 had her to read it in a way that makes it most -- much

1 common sense out of out it as -- as we can.

2 So that's one point I'd like the parties to 3 address. In terms of if there's language in there and it 4 may not be implicated here but how does it relate to the 5 overall results and -- and what -- what should it mean. I 6 also would like folks to address the corporate sort of 7 structure here in the sense that the arguments about who is 8 structurally senior or not senior. And the parties have 9 different views about that. I believe Tide says it's 10 structurally senior because it's stock. And I believe the 11 debtors say that it says something different so I'd like a 12 little more detail on that because that was -- that was 13 really addressed in passing in the papers.

14 And then the third thing that I think is sort of a 15 common question that I had was does your position require 16 the creation of a new class that's not contemplated in the 17 existing plan and if so do you have any -- what's your 18 support for -- for that or is it something that as long as 19 you're subordinated to who you're supposed to be 20 subordinated to that you fall into the next class. So those 21 are the three things that I think cut across all parties 22 positions. So when you get a chance to work that into your 23 presentation whenever that is I'd appreciate it.

24 MR. MILLET: Very good, Your Honor. Hopefully I 25 will be able to address all those -- those three. I think -

1 - I think my presentation will in fact do that.

2 Your Honor, I think first I would like to note 3 that the briefs do reflect that the parties at least have 4 some common ground here and I hope to show the court that by 5 working through that this really is going to come down to at 6 least as to this case, I'm not sure how to solve the 7 problems or the statute as to every case but as to this case 8 we'll come down to one fairly narrow issue.

9 We certainly know or at least it's been presented 10 there was no issue or material factor that needs to be 11 resolved and this is a legal issue. The subordinate issue 12 can be decided procedurally as part of the confirmation of 13 plan that's not longer in dispute. And that section 5 can 14 be clearly applies at least to the claims and issue here. So 15 that's not something that we have to fight about.

16 THE COURT: All right am I also right in saying I 17 think for different reasons the parties both say the common 18 stock exception does not apply. I think you say it for 19 different reasons one because -- one's concern about being 20 pulled down, the other's concerned about being pulled up but 21 I think you both say it doesn't apply.

22 MR. MILLET: Well, Your Honor, I think what we 23 would say is that if you follow the analysis that I think 24 the parties actually have some common ground on it may not 25 matter. Whether you apply it or don't apply it, you get to

1 the same place. And that's what I hope to show the court 2 here by going through the analysis.

3 THE COURT: Well but I think the debtors opening 4 brief said we don't think the common stock analysis applies.
5 I think it was a preemptive position thinking that Tide 6 might say it did and then Tide came back and said, no, no we 7 don't think it'll --

8 MR. MILLET: I understood your question backward, 9 Your Honor. Yes that's true.

10 THE COURT: Okay all right.

11 MR. MILLET: That's exactly why it does not apply 12 to act as a saver here if you will to elevate the claim back 13 to the level of common stock.

14 THE COURT: So then the only issue that I have is - 15 - is how to read the statute when it does apply -- clearly 16 does apply and the common stock exception doesn't apply to 17 the level of subordination.

18 MR. MILLET: Well, Your Honor as the court 19 commented at the beginning the cases here have been less 20 than uniform in their approach. And 510(b) is clear if you 21 will when it -- it deals with a security of the debtor 22 itself. Of course when you get into the area of dealing a 23 security of an affiliate of the debtor the area becomes much 24 more murky.

25 And we get into having to determine what is the 1 claim or interest represented by set security? And that 2 becomes the key issue in the case here today. Here as the 3 Falcon of course it's what is the claim or interest

4 represented by the Nortex (Phonetic) LLC membership interest
5 as to Falcon. Once we determine that section 510 (b) says 6 that of course we subordinated to all interest or claims 7 that are equal to our (Unintelligible) so then it should 8 step down somewhere between that and then figure out what 9 happens with the common stock exception whether it applies 10 or not to be elevated back up.

11 Like we said the cases have been anything other 12 than uniform in this approach they oddly enough get to 13 somewhat of the same result. Although they do it in very 14 different ways but in continuing to look for some common 15 ground and I think this happens to this will also help 16 answer one of the courts questions is Tide claims that the 17 National Farm case represents a correct reading of the 18 statute. It applies every element of the statute. It reads 19 every element in and applies under the analysis that it uses 20 correctly applies the elements that 510 (b) would do in a 21 case where you have -- have an affiliates stock being 22 considered as to a parent. That's at page 11 paragraph 22 of 23 their brief.

24 Of course National Farm arose in the context of a 25 motion to appoint a Trustee as opposed directly as to a 510

1 (b) issue. And the opposition raised issues as to whether 2 or not a joinder in the motion or that that joinder had 3 standing because their claim should be subordinate. And so 4 the court did address some of the 510 (b) issues and -- but 5 never the less in the interest of having some common 6 analytical ground that we can apply here, ground that Tide 7 says applies every element of the statute gives meaning to 8 the words of the statute. I think we can use 510 (b) at 9 least for argument sake in an analytical approach and see 10 where it takes us since that would be something that both 11 parties agree upon.

12 The of course the approach in -- in National Farm 13 was a follow the security approach. And -- and that is the 14 approach that Tide says is the most appropriate case to 15 follow. So looking at National Farm quickly and then 16 applying it to our case here at National Farm was a breach 17 of a stock purchase agreement with respect to its wholly 18 owned subsidiary.

19 Similar to our case except in our case of course 20 we have the consummation of the actual sale of the wholly 21 owned subsidiary. The buyer there obtained a prepetition 22 judgment for damages. The debtor filed of course the assets 23 of the debtor at the time it filed its chapter 11 petition 24 still included, the stock of the subsidiary. And it was in 25 fact the valuable asset of the debtor.

1 The court analyzed the 510 (b) issues in the 2 context (Unintelligible) appoint a Trustee but reasoned when 3 it looked at those issues that set security means that the 4 claim follows the security.

5 So in stating it as to that case the court said 6 the claim represented by set security arising from the 7 purchase of common stock of the debtors subsidiary has the 8 same priority as the common stock of the subsidiary.

9 Okay. That sounds all right but exactly what does 10 that mean? The court then went on to say of what value 11 does that represent in that case? And the court there 12 decided that the case turned upon whether or not the 13 subsidiary which was still owned by the debtor in that case 14 was solvent and therefore had value or what value does that 15 stock represent to that entity.

16 The court said if that entity, if the affiliate -- 17 if the subsidiary that is still owned by the debtor has 18 value, if there is equity in that entity then the claim is 19 not subordinated to the extent of the debtors equity in the 20 subsidiary. In other words to the extent of that value.

21 National Farm went on to say however if the 22 subsidiary was not solvent and hence the parent's interest 23 had no value then -- and this is quoting from the case, "The 24 claim would be subordinated at the parent level." Further 25 quoting, "And the claim would have the priority of the 1 subsidiaries common stock at the parent (Unintelligible)".

2 And then the court finally said, "And shares of a subsidiary 3 create no interest in the assets of the parent."

4 So then applying that analysis to our case here we 5 have -- of course Tide purchased one hundred percent of the 6 LLC membership interest in Nortex. The sale was consummated 7 and the Nortex interest are no longer held by Falcon in this 8 case.

9 Unlike National Farm there was no value left in 10 Falcon with respect to Nortex. Like the National Farm case 11 Tide is also said here but we don't have a judgment yet. We 12 do have claims pending before the district court which we 13 had decided including fraud and the inducement, breach of 14 contract and importantly whether Tide was excused from 15 performing the escrow as a result of fraud and therefore 16 whether the money in escrow was property of the estate, 17 property of the Falcon Estate or not. And Judge will -- 18 will tell us at some point whether it's property of the 19 estate or not.

20 And therefore we'll know whether or not those 21 proceeds at some point are assets of the parent. So the 22 first step is as to Tide was the claimer and just 23 represented by the hundred percent membership interest in 24 Nortex will follow the security. We know that it's whatever 25 it is that Falcon still holds in Nortex. Of course Falcon

1 holds nothing in Nortex.

2 Now Tide says -- and this is the key point of 3 disagreement and this comes down to the key issue that 4 needs to be decided by the court is Tide says, "The escrowed 5 money represents the equity in Nortex." But that really 6 can't be the case. First of all is -- if that statement is 7 made by Tide in one clause, one half of a sentence in their 8 brief no authority of any kind decided for the proposition 9 that proceeds of the sale of an affiliate are themselves 10 equity in the affiliate.

11 And it sort of begs the question because the 12 district court's going to tell us whether or not those 13 assets are property of the estate. If they're property of 14 the estate they are just that. They are assets of the 15 parent. The same assets of the parent that the National 16 Farm case referred to when it said stock and the subsidiary 17 creates no interest in the assets of a parent.

18 So Tide has to prove to show that there is still 19 some interest here represented by the equity in Nortex that 20 the proceeds are themselves equity in Nortex. And again 21 we've had no case law whatsoever from Tide on that. There's 22 no case showing the tracing is appropriate. There's no lien 23 claimed in those proceeds. In fact Tide has represented to 24 the district court and earlier proceedings that it does not 25 claim a lien in those proceeds.

1 And in fact the law does provide that you can't 2 trump 510 (b) by claiming a constructive trust interest in 3 the proceeds of the sale based upon fraud and the 4 inducement. Which is exactly the situation we have here.
5 In that case at least the court considered whether or not 6 the parties had even made a case for constructive trust and 7 then went and said you haven't -- but even if you did -- 8 even if you did you can't trump 5 -- section 510 (b) by 9 claiming that there -- that there is some sort of interest 10 here that trumps 510 (b) by saying that's my specific 11 property. Here we have no claim for constructive trust. We 12 don't even get to square one.

13 Second, even if we did for -- for Tide to say the 14 cash proceeds of the sale represent the interest in Nortex 15 of what was sold but be creating a constructive trust. But 16 be creating a lien. When we think of an interest in 17 specific money that is property of the parent assets of the 18 parent which is exactly what National Farm said the stock 19 does not represent.

20 And this really has an important aspect for both 21 the bank as well as the claims against Falcon. And I think 22 this is an important distinction here for confirmation 23 purposes, Your Honor. Is -- whatever happens to Falcon, 24 whatever the court does with respect to subordination the 25 falcon plan can be confirmed because it's a direct waterfall

1 plan, how would they fit in.

2 In the bank case here we need to have -- because 3 otherwise if we create a new class we're going to have 4 issues with whether that's a consenting class and various 5 things. But there clearly isn't a new class at least as to 6 the bank. We'll talk about the new class issue in a minute 7 that the court talked about. But at least as to the bank I 8 know the analysis of National Farm which has been adopted by 9 Tide there really can't be because whether or not that 10 seventy million dollars ($70m) represents equity in Nortex 11 that Falcon holds it doesn't represent anything that our 12 Arcapita Bank holds. Arcapita Bank itself doesn't have that 13 money. Its not alleged to have that money, it can't 14 possibly have that money. So whatever that money represents 15 in terms of being equity and Nortex at the Falcon level over 16 at the bank level it repre -- there's nothing there. So 17 there is no asset of the parent derivative of Nortex to 18 which Tide can look to to say that's my claim and so 19 therefore I should be anything senior other than common 20 stock.

21 Now the important part and this is what I meant a 22 moment ago by you don't necessarily need the common stock 23 exception to apply or not apply to get the point that 24 they've made in National Farms. National Farms says if 25 there is no equity, if that Nortex stock in this case does

1 not represent any value to the debtor. Then, subsidiary -- 2 then that stock in the subsidiary the Nortex stock here has 3 the -- the priority of the Nortex stock. And then as we've 4 said many times, because that does not create any interest 5 in the assets of the debtor that means it goes below common 6 stock. It actually drops down. And that's what follow the 7 security means. That's even what Lernout (Phonetic) said, 8 "Follow the security" means.

9 So as to Tide -- pardon me as to Falcon we clearly 10 have the issue where if there's no equity in Nortex as we're 11 still being held by Falcon then the priority of the claim 12 represented by the Nortex Security goes below common stock.
13 The same is true at the bank that we don't even have an 14 allegation, there's something at the bank level that would 15 represent an equity interest in Nortex. So it goes down.

16 Now if perchance as argued to be very passive with 17 common stock that's when the common stock exception here 18 we'd have to argue whether it implies or not and because 19 such interest here, set security is LLC interest and not 20 common stock the U.S. commercial cases reading the plain 21 text of the statute and giving meaning to it it doesn't save 22 it and bring it back up. 510 (b) says it must go below the 23 claim represented by set security unless it's common stock.

24 Now the reading of which way you use the common 25 stock exception of push if you will claim I think the only

1 case that's ever used up to push something down was the VF 2 case. And that's sort of an outlier in terms of this entire 3 analysis. But that case really does not give --

4 THE COURT: And what's your understanding of VF is 5 that in looking at it I got the sense that the Judge being 6 on the verge of having a discussion about the level of 7 subordination said it's covered by the common stock 8 exception and -- and stocked her analysis and therefore in 9 terms of an actual holding while it has many holdings in it, 10 it doesn't really have a holding about the level of 11 subordination as I understand it. Is that something you 12 agree with or disagree with?

13 MR. MILLET: Generally, Your Honor, it's difficult 14 to see -- it's looked there like the Judge had a result in 15 mind and then sort of backed into an analysis if you will.
16 Because the Judge even assumed there that you start with the 17 presumption that the claim represented by set security is at 18 the general unsecured level because she reasoned there the 19 court ruled that reason there that -- because if you didn't 20 have 510 (b) at all that's where it would be. However we do 21 have 540 (b) and it says, you started at different places 22 the claim represented by set security. Doesn't say the 23 claim that would have existed but for section 510 (b).
24 Could have said that but congress didn't say that. It said 25 the claim represented by set security. So you can't simply 1 plug the starting point in at general unsecured drop it down 2 and then say okay I also have common stock so it goes here.

3 Now whether the court really did this kind of one, 4 two, three step analysis it just says well it's got to be 5 subordinate at something and the common stock exception says 6 it goes at common stock -- I've got common stock that's one 7 that'll put it.

8 And so I think the court got there by parking at a 9 common stock and ending the analysis. Lernout got to a -- 10 the similar result in a wholly different way. And National 11 Farm gets there but it depends upon what equity is still 12 left in the parent, you know the affiliate, not even how you 13 get there.

14 THE COURT: All right now I know that -- that 15 Tide's analysis of 510(b) is not your analysis so I -- I 16 assume what you just basically did is say to the extent you 17 follow their analysis we -- we still prevail so I assume 18 you're going to get to your analysis of how the statute 19 should work.

20 MR. MILLET: Your Honor, we tried to lay that out 21 in our papers. And we think under whatever analysis -- I 22 mean whether you VF, whether you pick Lernout, whether you 23 pick even National Farm you more or less get to the same 24 place. But the interest represented by the security is 25 because figuring out what that means at the parent level it

1 should be then over because here of course we have one 2 hundred percent of the assets of Falcon in effect being 3 sold. It's almost the same as selling Falcon.

4 It should come in at the Common Stock level if you 5 will and be at the Common Stock level. And then look to see 6 whether the common stock exception, once you have to put it 7 below because 510 (b) says we have to subordinate the claim 8 to everything equal to or seniors (Unintelligible) does the 9 common stock exception and push it back up. And here 10 because we have in essence a hundred percent of the equity 11 being sold comes in at common stock drops down, common stock
12 exception doesn't apply because set security is LLC 13 membership interest so it doesn't go back up, it comes 14 insubordinate. So under that analysis or National Farm end 15 up in the same place is our view.

16 THE COURT: All right.

17 MR. MILLET: Now I -- I looking at the court's 18 questions. We talked -- I think I talked about corporate 19 structure a little bit. If I haven't answered that question 20 I'd be happy to do so. We talked about giving effect to all 21 the parts of the statute because we said okay assuming we 22 take National Farm which Tide says give effective part to 23 the statute.

24 THE COURT: Well let me back up for the corporate 25 structure. Is there any dispute among the parties as to how

1 to understand the corporate structure here in terms of 2 seniority. I know they don't agree with the outcome but I'm 3 just trying to get a sense on whether there's a dispute as 4 to how you consider that question.

5 MR. MILLET: Not that I'm aware of, Your Honor. I 6 think it's quite clear that these were in fact LLC 7 membership interest. And the -- the structure of Falcon is 8 relatively simple as well. There are no debentures or other 9 securities that might come above it in that sense. We have 10 general and scribd claims and then we would have these 11 claims.

12 THE COURT: So it's really just a matter of -- well 13 I'll -- I'll hear from Tide in a minute about -- about that 14 question. So in terms of your reading of the statute Tide 15 does make the argument that the debtors read that file the 16 language about equal -- equal to the claim or interest 17 represented by security that language out. So what's your 18 response to that?

19 MR. MILLET: Not at all, Your Honor, in fact we -- 20 we very heavily rely on that because we are trying to look 21 at the claim represented by the security. What does it mean 22 over at the Tide level and partly at the Falcon level. We 23 have to try to figure out what that is and under National 24 Farm of course talked about what equity and just what value 25 does it represent at the Falcon level, represents none so it

1 ends up down believe.

2 Under a different analysis followed by the other 3 cases because this involved a hundred percent of the 4 securities or a hundred percent of the assets it's the same 5 as common stock it's like buying Falcon. So it would come 6 in at the common stock level. Its subordinated down and not 7 pushed back up by the common stock.

8 So we are actually looking very carefully and 9 saying what is represented by that security much like they 10 did in National Farm. So I'm not at all reading it out, in 11 fact heavily relying on it. We think VF read it out of the 12 statute. And in fact then said well we're going to treat it 13 as if there was no statute and say okay now apply the 14 statute. Start at general and scribd claim it out from 15 there. And we're saying no the statute does say claim 16 represented by set security. It doesn't say the claim would 17 have been filed but for 510 (b). And therefore we're in 18 fact saying very much so they're relying on that language.

19 THE COURT: So in your view your reading of it 20 means that in most cases the result unless its common stock 21 is going to be -- that it's going to be just allowed?

22 MR. MILLET: In most cases and -- and depending 23 upon if you have a more senior level of security perhaps and 24 the -- and the structure of the debtor in a simple case like 25 this it may very well be disallowed and unfortunately that's

1 what the case law has paid lip service to and said as they 2 did in Geneva Steel that this is a very important issue for 3 investors because often in cases there's no distribution to 4 certain class levels. And so you have to worry about the 5 same thing that USA commercial said.

6 And -- and also the final question of the court, I 7 didn't want to ignore that about should there be some new 8 class? No case has created sort of if you will a new 9 class. No -- there's been no support for that. Every case 10 no matter what analysis they've employed have -- is in 11 essence plugged in. The claim represented by such security 12 at some existing level of claim within the structure of the 13 debtor and work within that.

14 If you didn't do that and you didn't create a new 15 class you -- you could create all kinds of havoc in terms of 16 confirmation issues and acceptance by that class and what 17 the plan would mean and a whole variety of issues.

18 THE COURT: But when you plug it in and then say 19 its subordinate to the claim equal or interest equal to, 20 that means you just go down to the next level whatever the 21 next class is, whatever that may be.

22 MR. MILLET: Yes and that's what the courts have 23 done with it and it -- and it is difficult to reconcile if 24 you will simply looking at the statute with -- but National 25 Farm does it by saying if you follow the security and

1 therefore the value that it represents and sort of figure 2 out where it goes. National Farm to the extent there was 3 value in you know in that issue the (Unintelligible) trust 4 company or here in the security -- in Nortex itself -- not 5 just because there's proceeds in the -- in the company but 6 because of the ask itself would just simply say it's not 7 subordinated period to the extent of that value. So it 8 doesn't create a new class if you will. It just says it's 9 not subordinated to the extent of that value.

10 So yes otherwise if there is no value there it 11 would go down and let's say by common stock based upon the - 12 - the reading of the statute. That's what the statute says.
13 Now one can say well perhaps that's not the intent of the 14 statute but whenever you have the -- the -- really look at 15 the intent of the statute is but you look at the statute 16 itself and it says, "Subordinated to all claims senior to or 17 equal to." And that equal to language is hard to see right 18 there in the statute and then reconcile it with all the 19 pundits who've commented upon the purpose of the statute 20 because the -- to really make the statute work with what 21 others say or its purpose it's very difficult to do so with 22 those expressed words that congress put in there so --

23 THE COURT: Well and there's a lot of cases that 24 talk about the purpose and it seems clear that the purpose 25 is to -- to -- since you as an investor have the upside you

1 shouldn't get the protection that a creditor would get. And 2 I think beyond that it's -- it's -- I wouldn't say its 3 silent but there's just -- there's not a whole lot of 4 clarity so I feel like in terms of legislative intent which 5 as -- as Justice Scalia would -- would -- would cringe at 6 this very conversation.

7 But I don't know that there's a whole lot to go on 8 beyond that fundamental principle in any event which I guess 9 is a -- if you -- if you took the legislative intents and 10 used it as your touch stone then you probably are -- are VF 11 -- you follow VF I would think.

12 MR. MILLET: And you -- you -- I'm glad you did but 13 you sort of stole the point I was going to make cause the 14 legislative history speaks to when you first -- how you 15 first knock it out of a class but it doesn't talk about 16 where it ends up. And the courts then struggle with that.
17 And that's the -- the assistance we're trying to provide the 18 court in terms of an (Unintelligible) today.

19 THE COURT: Remind me what the plan says. I know 20 there's a super subordinated class which I assume is the 21 debtors view of where Tide's claim should end up but there's 22 also a subordinated class which is above that. And what 23 does that consist of?

24 MR. MILLET: As to Falcon that -- that's a class of 25 employee interests in Falcon itself. In other words, they

1 had common stock interests in Falcon. So applying 2 subordination there we place them in -- in a class but it's 3 not -- it's a different class but it's not above common 4 stock. It shares pari passu with common stock. So it 5 effectively applies the statute. Because of their 6 employment claims or their unemployment rights they have in 7 affect common stock in Falcon that would them be at the 8 Falcon's common stock level. It would get subordinated to 9 that level except that there because it is common stock in 10 Falcon, their employees are Falcon, you could save back the 11 common stock.

12 That class that they're in shares pari passu with 13 common stock even though it's numbered 8 and this one's 14 numbered 9 it's the same.

15 THE COURT: All right.

16 MR. MILLET: So that's the classes --

17 THE COURT: So it's subordinated but not to common 18 stock?

19 MR. MILLET: Correct.

20 THE COURT: All right.

21 MR. MILLET: Down to an equal level of pari passu 22 with common stock as well.

23 THE COURT: All right.

24 MR. MILLET: As to Falcon. That's an important 25 distinction. One final comment, Your Honor, is I may have

1 spent too much time about Arcapita Bank because in reading
2 Tide's opposition I'm not sure I necessarily understand them
3 to be objecting to the Arcapita Bank plan. There's nothing 4 in the opposition that says it expressly objects to the 5 Arcapita Bank plan. So I did explain that if they are -- 6 well it shouldn't matter because there is certainly is no 7 equity in Arcapatia Bank as to Nortex but perhaps its not 8 even -- an objection's been made because I -- I don't even 9 really see an objection to class 10(a) the "A" class is 10 (Unintelligible) Arcapital Bank classes.

11 THE COURT: All right. Thank you. All right let me 12 hear from Tide unless the committee wants to add something 13 at this point. Maybe I should hear from everybody on one 14 side.

15 MR. FLECK: I can just -- I can do it from here, 16 Your Honor. Evan Fleck on behalf of the committee. Your 17 Honor, we filed a brief joinder to set the position of the 18 committee first of all to join in the arguments that the 19 debtors made also to set out what we believe is the fact 20 that the -- the statute is clear we -- we don't think we 21 need to look for legislative intent but then further if you 22 do we think if you look at the progression of the statute we 23 think it is helpful and aids in the debtor's argument with 24 respect to the application of the exception. But other than 25 that, Your Honor, we'll -- we'll join the debtor's argument

1 and support the position that was laid out by Mr. Mellit.

2 THE COURT: All right let me just answer your 3 question about that. I did read your chart. Can you sort 4 of summarize how in your view the progression of the -- of 5 the statute supports the argument.

6 MR. FLECK: Well, Your Honor, it's just that -- 7 that the -- the -- congress spent -- spent a great deal of 8 time with respect dealing with this section, 510 (b) but the 9 common stock and we think that if there was a desire to -- 10 to modify the common stock exception that would have been 11 done. We see the language elsewhere within 510 (b) being 12 modified with this common stock exception that remains as -- 13 as it was intended. And -- and -- well remains static.

14 THE COURT: All right thank you. Now let me hear 15 from Tide.

16 MR. WOODS: Good afternoon, Your Honor. Troy Wood
17 on behalf of Tide.

18 THE COURT: Afternoon. Let me start out with 19 asking the question that I think Mr. Millet ended with is 20 your take on the Arcapita Bank plan and whether this is a -- 21 I didn't understand this to be a -- a Falcon only objection 22 but let me ask you.

23 MR. WOODS: The argument applies to both. We 24 objected to that -- to the -- in our plan objections we did 25 object and our objection is that really you asked what --

1 there's not a new class that needs to be created it's just 2 that class 8 just doesn't need to share pari passu with the 3 shareholders.

4 They mentioned the -- the individual claimants.
5 The debtor hadn't sought to subordinate those claimants.
6 They -- they sought to disallow them. They filed plan 7 objections -- I mean claim objections. So the only party in 8 class A is (Unintelligible).

9 They objected to the individual shareholders 10 claims and said that they -- they equal equity and -- and 11 they don't have valid claims. They do not seek to 12 subordinate those claims. They have not filed any 13 subordination to those claims. So the only class -- the only 14 part in class in Falcon is my client. And all you had to do 15 to the plan is to say we don't share pari passu with the 16 shareholders. That's the only change. You don't have to 17 create a new -- a new class. All you have to do is just say 18 that we don't share pari passu with shareholders which is 19 the law. That's how the courts have interpreted. That's 20 what National Farm did and that's what VF Brands did.

21 THE COURT: All right.

22 MR. WOODS: Your Honor, going to your question is - 23 - the other thing you brought is what provision they ignore 24 and as put in our papers. They do -- they did strike out 25 that are senior or equal to the claim or interest

1 represented by such security. And you asked the debtors 2 counsel a very important question is if not here when would 3 an affiliate security ever have priority or ever have 4 entitlement to a claim in the debtor. And -- and they said 5 well most of the time. And then his answer was you have to 6 look at the corporate structure. Well that's exactly what 7 we're doing here. And that's our argument is -- is to 8 determine when an affiliate's claims based on a cell of an 9 affiliates security is senior or equal to other claims of 10 the debtor and other interest of the debtor. You have to 11 look at the corporate structure. And here --

12 THE COURT: Why don't you walk me through it as to 13 each of the debtors from your point of view?

14 MR. WOODS: Okay. Your Honor, I have a 15 demonstrative evidence.

16 THE COURT: Sure.

17 MR. WOODS: May I approach? May I approach?

18 THE COURT: Sure. Actually do you have one more 19 copy?

20 MR. WOODS: I do.

21 THE COURT: Since I have made someone else suffer 22 with me in discussing the wonders of subordination. Thank 23 you.

24 MR. WOODS: Your Honor, the -- the importance and 25 what distinguishes this case from all of the other cases

1 that the debtor relies on is that we bought an asset of -- 2 of the debtor Falcon. And so our interest the equity in 3 Nortex is structurally superior as it relates to the 4 purchase price that was paid for that equity is structurally
5 superior to all interest above that. And that's what VF
6 Brands recognizes. And that's -- that's what National Farms 7 recognizes is what 510 is pro -- is intended to prohibit is 8 if Nortex was a debtor in this bankruptcy it would prohibit 9 us from jumping ahead of that equity and having a claim 10 against Nortex and its assets and debtors. It doesn't -- it 11 doesn't prohibit us from following the security. Meaning 12 following back behind. In fact the one case they rely on is 13 U.S. Commercial Mortgage.

14 And what that case said is you're subordinated to the 15 level immediately below your -- your interest. So in this 16 instance in the corporate chart we bought equity in Nortex 17 and so if we have to fall back behind Nortex that gives you 18 a claim against Falcon. That's the -- that's the seniority 19 based on corporate structure of the debtors in this case.
20 What VF Brands says is okay then you have a claim that's 21 equal to the unsecured creditors Falcon and so you're 22 subordinated to those unsecured creditors.

23 Now she was -- Judge Walrath (Phonetic) was very 24 clear on the two step process. I think to answer the court's 25 question is absolutely she addressed the common stock. And 1 used it as a sword in that case but for the common stock

2 exception used as a sword by Judge Walrath the -- the claims 3 of those creditors in that case would have stopped 4 immediately behind the generally unsecured creditors and 5 that's what we're asking in this case is that we're 6 subordinated to the general unsecured creditors but not to 7 the level of equity by --

8 THE COURT: But doesn't that create a new class?

9 MR. WOODS: No. It's class 8 its just it doesn't 10 share pari passu that's all it is.

11 THE COURT: I don't know how that works if class 8 12 does -- is supposed to share pari passu. If you have a 13 class and you say it's in this class but it's treated 14 differently then I don't -- how is it the same as -- as 15 things in that class?

16 MR. WOODS: It -- in class 8 either it should not 17 share pari passu or if -- if the debtor wants to keep class 18 8 then there will have to be another class that's in between 19 the general unsecured creditors in equity. The debtors 20 could have just as easily said class 8 doesn't share pari 21 passu. It -- there's nothing in the bankruptcy code that 22 says class 8 has to share pari passu. We're the only 23 creditor in that class. They've objected to every other 24 claim in the case.

25 THE COURT: Well but if I -- if I haven't ruled on

1 the objections they -- they are still in a class. So if 2 there's a claimant who -- who's in a class there's an intent 3 to object to it but it hasn't been objected, right now 4 they're accounted for in that plan in that class so you're 5 not the only person in that class. You may someday be the 6 only person in that class but you're not currently is my 7 understanding of that.

8 MR. WOODS: The -- the -- I think the court's 9 remedy is either to say class 8 doesn't share pari passu and 10 these other creditors would be class 9. They would 11 essentially be -- they would be treated because that's what 12 they are they're equity. That's what the hopper parties are 13 and that's what these claimants are. They -- they have -- 14 they have equity interest in -- in the debtor Falcon and 15 they want to share in the pro rata distribution. And -- and 16 so they would go into class 9.

17 And so I think the court -- the remedies for this 18 court would either change class 8 so it wouldn't be pari su 19 or create another class that says -- but I think that -- 20 that -- that would resolve our objection if there was a 21 class in between the general unsecured creditors and the 22 subordinated credit claims that share pari passu.

23 THE COURT: And your support for creating a 24 separate class is -- is -- what do you rely on for that?

25 MR. WOODS: It's just that following the bankruptcy

1 code. The banks play the points --

2 THE COURT: Well but subordination can mean a 3 couple different things right? It could mean for the sake 4 of simplifying the hypothetical that there are three classes 5 and class two is -- is -- is where it lines up in terms of 6 such security and if you're subordinated below class 2 you 7 could either just fall into class 3 or you could be 8 essentially class 2 (b), so --

9 MR. WOODS: But there's no -- I'm sorry. I didn't 10 mean to interrupt you.

11 THE COURT: -- so that's -- I guess my question is 12 in -- in your view what -- what should happen here?

13 MR. WOODS: Either a new class be sub -- to be 14 created which would resolve our objection and allow the 15 confirmation to be --

16 THE COURT: All right that's the 2(b) methodology, 17 okay.

18 MR. WOODS: Okay or change class 8 to not share 19 pari passu.

20 THE COURT: But how do I -- how do I -- I mean I 21 have a plan that has other claimants in class 8 right? So 22 you're saying I would -- I would affect those rights or I 23 would change the plan of the debtors to say that we propose 24 class 8, class 8 has voted on the plan or done whatever it's 25 going to do not object based on the understanding that it is

1 going to share pari passu but then I'm going to sua sponte 2 take them and -- and change their rights after -- after the 3 plan has sort of -- I mean do it at confirmation?

4 MR. WOODS: There are class -- Your Honor, if you - 5 - if you deny the objections of those claims they fall in 6 class 5 not 8.

7 THE COURT: But I don't have any objections in 8 front of me.

9 MR. WOODS: Correct, Your Honor.

10 THE COURT: I -- I know you've said that but you -- 11 you're -- you're --

12 MR. WOODS: But there's no --

13 THE COURT: -- linking two things that aren't 14 linked for purposes of the plan. People object to claims 15 before sometimes during, usually after and until I have an 16 objection that's been ruled on, a claim is prima facia valid 17 and its accounted for in a plan right? I mean that's the 18 way I understand that it works unless somebody has some 19 really interesting authority to tell me to the contrary.

20 So -- so I can't -- I'm just struggling with your 21 alternative. I understand the creating a 2 (b) class a 22 separate class but I'm wondering if under your world view 23 that there really is no choice but to create a -- a new 24 class. Because I would have to -- I would have to -- I 25 would have to address it. And because otherwise you'd be

1 asking me to come in and change the rights of folks under 2 the plan after all this time at a confirmation hearing.

3 MR. WOODS: Correct, Your Honor. To the best way
4 to address the courts concerns would be to create class 8 5 (a) and class 8 (b).

6 THE COURT: All right.

7 MR. WOODS: That essentially -- or 1 and 8 (1) and 8 8 (2).

9 THE COURT: And what -- what case authority do you 10 have from my ability to create a new class in that plan 11 confirmation context?

12 MR. WOODS: Well the court would either deny 13 confirmation of Falcon it's a liquidating plan or the debtor 14 to -- to overcome that objection it would resolve our 15 objection and allow the liquidating plan to -- to -- to be 16 confirmed. And so the court would either say I'm going to 17 deny confirmation because it does not adequately provide -- 18 apply 510 (b) or I'll let you amend it and -- and at that 19 point we would consent to the amendment and -- and the court 20 would confirm the plan.

21 THE COURT: All right and for Arcapita Bank?

22 MR. WOODS: I think a similar resolution could be 23 had but the courts correct. I don't know if there's any 24 distribution above to get to our claims up at Arcapita Bank.
25 Our main concern is the seventy million dollars ($70m), Your

1 Honor.

2 THE COURT: Right well that may be not as important 3 to you but its -- its important to me in terms of trying to 4 figure out what I have to resolve and what I don't have to 5 resolve so if you -- if you pursue a claim in the Arcapita 6 Bank situation in that case then I deal with it whether 7 you're like well I'm not that -- all that interested in it 8 or very interested in it, it's all the same to me so --

9 MR. WOODS: It would be the same result, Your 10 Honor.

11 THE COURT: No, no, no I -- I understand that but 12 what I'm -- what you're saying is it's -- it's not really 13 what you're after but it really -- that doesn't matter to me 14 either you're pursuing that argument as to Arcapita Bank or 15 you're not and I understand you are so that my question then 16 is how does it -- how does your world view apply to Arcapita 17 and you're saying it's the same thing either say deny 18 confirmation because it doesn't apply to 510 (b) or -- or I 19 guess that's probably -- probably it.

20 MR. WOODS: Or create class 8 (1) and 8(2).

21 THE COURT: All right well I think that's a new 22 plan though. If I -- I think about got 8 (1) and 8 (2).
23 That -- that's fine I mean it -- but I'm just -- I'm just 24 trying to understand the implications that's all.

25 MR. WOODS: Your Honor, you know all the cases have

1 gone to great lengths not to interrupt the statute to 2 provide for disallowance. And in the -- if the -- if -- if 3 congress wanted to just say look all affiliate claims, 4 claims arising from sales of affiliates are just simply 5 disallowed except for the common stock exception. Well one 6 they didn't do that and so the court shouldn't interpret the 7 statute to provide that. And again if you adopt their 8 interpretation it's not that most of the time affiliates 9 claims would be disallowed it is all of the time affiliates 10 claims.

11 If -- if you don't say that equity in a wholly 12 owned subsidiary and the claims that arise there can be 13 senior to or equal to claims of a debtor then in no 14 circumstances could a claim from in any affiliate ever be 15 allowed except for the common stock exception. And that 16 just wasn't what congress intended. Why would congress 17 draft the statute that is dead as opposed to just saying 18 what we want to do is disallow claims from sale of all 19 affiliate debtors except for the common stock. What is so 20 special about common stock first all? And they even admit 21 in their -- in their -- in their pleadings that its probably 22 just an oversight cause at the time that the congress in 23 acted this that -- that -- you know LLC interests were just 24 not as popular as they are now. And -- and there's a lot of 25 talk about well if congress wanted to amend the statute it

1 could. The fact of the matter is -- is you know as this 2 court's aware it just -- this issue doesn't arise very often 3 in bankruptcy cause normally there's not distribution up to 4 equity and so what happens in all of these cases that are 5 being cited to the court is they're saying all right you're 6 claims are subordinated to the general unsecured creditors.
7 Well the general unsecured creditors are getting cents on 8 the dollar so you're out of the money.

9 So the fact that congress hasn't amended it is 10 quite frankly if this issue hadn't made its way up to the 11 circuit courts --

12 THE COURT: Well it -- for my purposes doesn't 13 really matter why they haven't amended it they just haven't 14 amended it so -- so I'm stuck with a statute that other 15 courts have struggled to interpret. So --

16 MR. WOODS: That's fine --

17 THE COURT: Mr. Mellit had gone through his -- his 18 take on value using the follow the security approach. And - 19 - and I think I can probably guess a number of things you 20 would say but I wanted to get your take on where you part 21 company with him on that analysis. That is he goes through 22 and talks about the value saying well if you're going to do 23 it that way you -- you look for the value and you look to 24 solvency and then you apply to each debtor and he thinks 25 it's very easy on the Arcapita front to reach the result and

1 that -- but even as to -- to Falcon you reach the same 2 result so where you part company with them on that analysis?

3 MR. WOODS: Down at the Falcon level, Your Honor, 4 clearly the seventy million dollars ($70m) represents the 5 alleged equity in the debtors interest in -- in Nortex 6 equity, in their stock. I mean that's what we did. We 7 bought -- we didn't buy assets of Nortex, we bought Falcon's 8 equity in Nortex. So by very definition the proceeds of 9 that equals the equity.

10 Our position is that we overpay a hundred and 11 twenty million dollars ($120m) because of their fraud, 12 they've admitted that. For the purposes of today they're 13 saying you're correct. You overpaid by a hundred twenty 14 million dollars ($120m). Fifty million dollars ($50m) of 15 that has already been dispersed to Arcapita. So they have 16 already guiding Arcapaita and its creditors they've already 17 received four hundred and forty five million dollars ($445m) 18 which we believe and what they've admitted is hundred and 19 twenty million dollars ($120) over the true value of that 20 equity. Fifty million's ($50m) already left the barn it is 21 up and -- and Arcapita and its creditors have already 22 enjoyed the fruits of that fraud. The question is is the 23 seventy ($70m) that's remaining are we entitled to -- to 24 distributions as a creditor of Falcon before Falcon's equity
25 and the creditors of Falcon's equity receive distributions

1 on that seventy ($70m). Now the ironic thing is they're 2 using 510 for the very purpose it's intended to prevent.
3 They're using 510 so that they're equity interest can jump
4 ahead of our claims. We contacted for the sale of an asset.

5 THE COURT: Well --

6 MR. WOODS: That's the result. That is the net 7 result is -- is that if the court adopts their 8 interpretation then essentially they are jumping ahead --

9 THE COURT: But the -- but the purpose of it is 10 that -- is that security just don't end up robbing unsecured 11 creditors of value and that you -- you have certain upside 12 risks and certain downside risks and they're distinct from - 13 - from what creditors and the position that they're in. But 14 -- but let me get back to the val -- let me get back to the 15 value thing for a second. So in your view when -- when Mr.
16 Millet says that the seventy million ($70m) is not an 17 appropriate proxy for the value here you disagree and think 18 it is because it's the purchase of the stock itself?

19 MR. WOODS: Absolutely.

20 THE COURT: All right.

21 MR. WOODS: It's -- it's -- absolutely.

22 THE COURT: Then, then let me ask you about that as 23 to Arcapita he says as to Arcapita its pretty clear that -- 24 that -- that is -- is -- is not value for the parent and 25 therefore that even under the case you rely on you still end

1 up subordinated down. And so I know the parties have treated 2 these things together but there are some factual 3 distinctions. So what's your -- what's your response on his 4 value point as to Arcapita Bank?

5 MR. WOODS: Well assuming the seventy million
6 ($70m) never leaves Falcon then I agree with them because it 7 will be eaten up by creditors, claims including ours it 8 would never get to Arcapita so I would agree that at that 9 point. They -- Arcapita besides the fifty million ($50m) 10 they've already received there would now be additional 11 distributions up there. And so our claim wouldn't rely on 12 the equity of -- of -- of excuse me, the -- the equity value 13 going up. Our claim would be under VF Brands which said 14 that our claim because we bought stock that is structurally 15 subordinated in the corporate tree which -- that's our 16 position is you look at the corporate tree that's what 17 debtors counsel -- when the court asks the question under 18 what circumstances could affiliates claim ever be senior to 19 a claim or an interest in the debtor. The court -- the 20 response you got was sometimes it could you have to look at 21 the corporate tree. So we're just asking you look at the 22 corporate tree when you buy a wholly owned subsidiary of the 23 debtor then you are structurally superior to those -- all 24 the claims. You can follow that security, meaning you can 25 go behind it. You can't jump ahead of it, go behind it.

1 When you go behind it you have a claim against Falcon. You
2 have a claim against Arcapita. You're subor -- under VF 3 Brands you're subordinated to general unsecured but you're 4 not subordinated to equity.

5 THE COURT: Right but -- but I would have to adopt 6 VF Brands starting point of looking at the unsecured which 7 you will admit is a bit of an out wire compared to other 8 cases that -- that talk about comparing it to -- to not to 9 the unsecured, you use a different starting point, you look 10 at the securities.

11 MR. WOODS: No, Your Honor, I don't believe it's an 12 outlier --

13 THE COURT: I mean for Arcapita Bank I'm referring 14 to because what I think you said is that the value analysis 15 that you don't see the seventy million dollars ($70m) going 16 up. And therefore there is no -- there's no value that 17 would make it appropriate to -- to have -- to come before 18 equity in Arcapita Bank, if I'm understanding Mr. --

19 MR. WOODS: That's correct, Your Honor. But I don't 20 think it's an outlier because again if you look at all the 21 cases that they cite its always someone above the debtor 22 that's buying equity above the debtor trying to jump down 23 into that class. There's nothing that says you can follow - 24 - that you can't follow you're equity and swim upstream.
25 It's just -- and the -- you say that VF Brands is an outlier

1 the problem with VF Brands it's the only case that really 2 address this issue. This is the only public -- I mean 3 published opinion that actually address this specific issue 4 is how do you treat claims that arise from a wholly owned 5 subsidiary downstream that are structurally -- structurally 6 senior to the claims and interest above that. And so that's 7 what Judge Walrath was struggling with and we believe she 8 came to the right decision.

9 THE COURT: Well again there are numerous of these 10 cases that you don't know what the right decision would be 11 on a level without the common stock exception cause the -- 12 the courts apply that and it solves a significant portion of 13 the issues for all these judges. And then there are a 14 couple of circuit decisions that -- and other decisions that 15 address these things only in dicta but tend to be more 16 expansive. So there's -- there's not a whole lot out there 17 that actually grapples with the issue on -- on the terms of 18 making an actual holding.

19 So for -- for purposes of the Arcapita Bank you 20 don't dispute the debtors sort of value analysis but rather 21 you rely on -- on VF for purposes of the part.

22 MR. WOODS: That's correct. Your Honor, the last 23 thing I would -- I would suggest to the court, it's in our 24 pleadings but you know I think it is important that this 25 court not interpret the statute to cause observed results.

1 No one -- it -- Arcapita and its creditors and the Hopper 2 parties they have equity in Falcon. They bore the risk of 3 whether that equity would ever bear any fruit. We -- 4 because we contractually bargained for the purchase of an 5 asset of Falcon, our claims are structurally senior to those 6 claims. And so they want to shift that -- that -- that 7 burden of risk. That's why I'm saying that they're 8 interpretation misuses 510 (b) cause if you look at the -- 9 at the cases they cite they talk about who bore the risk of 10 the equity in Falcon and what's the absolute priority rules.
11 Follow the absolute priority rules. Here our case we 12 contractually bargained for and obtained an agreement to buy 13 an asset of Falcon. The equity in Falcon, which is Arcapita 14 in the Hopper parties they're the ones that bore the risk 15 that it turns out that hey they -- Falcon defrauded us or 16 breached their contract that those claims would stop 17 distributions up to their level.

18 In this instance what they're -- what they're 19 arguing is interpret that to allow us to you know don't let 20 Tide -- they're saying Tide needs to bear all that risk 21 because they're an equity buyer. Well they're an equity 22 holder. And they're the ones that hold the risk of Falcon.

23 THE COURT: All right well let me play devil's 24 advocate for a second. Isn't that consistent with the 25 statute that you -- you find sort of what you're similar to 1 and then you're subordinated to that right? I mean that -- th

2 that's what one -- I think it's the 9 circuit Bap decision 3 with Judge Russell writing it said, "The statute says what 4 it says. You can question its wisdom but it doesn't 5 contemplate the same treatment." And maybe -- maybe the 6 common stock exception is outdated. That it should be more 7 expansive and as a matter of policy I'm sure people in this 8 room could probably write a better statute at this point 9 given the -- the various financial instruments that are out 10 there but at least Judge Russell had a problem with a notion 11 of -- of saying that something that's on the same level with 12 the way 510 (b) operates that -- that it would -- it would - 13 - it would work that way cause the language in the statute 14 doesn't say that way and has that common stock carve out in 15 that one instance where congress thought it was appropriate.

16 MR. WOODS: Your Honor, and -- but remember Judge 17 Rosa what the -- what he was struggling with was they were 18 -- the claimant in there were seeking double recovery. They 19 had filed a proof of interest in one amount and a proof of 20 claim in another amount. And they wanted to double recovery 21 at the level of equity. And that's what they subordinated.

22 THE COURT: I -- I don't know about that because 23 he had language in that where -- wherein he reversed the 24 decision saying you know you're entitled to file both.
25 They've said that they one -- one will be credited against

1 the other so we're going to treat them separately. So I 2 don't know that that was the animating principle of that 3 decision. I think he -- he went on probably as only a trial 4 court Judge would who's sitting in an appellate panel to try 5 to provide some detailed guidance. To -- to address the 6 issue since he was -- had -- should've gotten himself up to 7 speed. So -- so that -- I mean that's my concern is that -- 8 is the statute when sort of treating -- this idea of 9 treating like alike doesn't -- isn't written that way. It - 10 - other than the common stock exception it's really designed 11 to say well if you're alike you go after.

12 And I -- no academics have debated that hotly as 13 to why that is and what it means and whether it makes any 14 sense at all but that's the way it's written and that's -- I 15 spent -- before I got to the cases I spent a few days just 16 trying to read the statute and figure out what the statute 17 on its own meant and it's quite a bit of a challenge.

18 MR. WOODS: The -- but we're not alike because 19 again we did not buy equity in -- in Falcon. That's what 20 Hopper did and that's what Arcapita -- we -- we contracted 21 with Falcon that gave us an unsecured creditor. So we are 22 not like them. We could have bought -- we could have just 23 bought Falcon's interest in -- excuse me, Arcapita's equity 24 interest in -- in Falcon. And we could have bought that.
25 We could have bought it from Hopper but we didn't. The 1 parties contractually negotiated and bargained for a 2 position that was senior to the -- to the interest of 3 Arcapita and the Hopper parties.

4 And, Your Honor, the -- the -- what -- what really 5 is happening here is they're -- they're trying to profit 6 from the fruits of their own fraud. I mean there's seventy 7 million dollars ($70m) left. The fifty million dollars 8 ($50m) has gone out the door. And there's not much we can 9 do to get that money back but there is seventy million 10 ($70m) there.

11 THE COURT: Well I -- I have some questions about 12 that. I mean the -- the statute is written in a way that it 13 contemplates the kind of allegations that are made here 14 being subordinated and then it's just a question of the 15 level. So congress made a decision that these fights about 16 stock and shareholders and various things are subordinated 17 and then the questions what the hell does the rest of it 18 mean. So I don't know if you're going to go down that road 19 then congress would have -- would have carved out certain 20 kinds of exceptions based on conduct, not on class or kind.
21 So I don't know that that's going to get you very far. I 22 think the idea of comparing what -- comparing the different 23 interest is -- is -- is what you've spent a lot of time on 24 and as Mr. Millet is the right way to go because I don't -- 25 I don't know that I have that kind of authority the way

1 congress is -- you know they were certainly aware of fraud 2 allegations and rescission, all sorts of stuff that -- that 3 you know if you're making those allegations you think you've 4 been wronged.

5 MR. WOODS: The only reason I bring that up, Your 6 Honor is because you have to decide between two 7 interpretations. If you decide our interpretation then you 8 avoid those observed results and that -- and that's why I 9 brought it up. And -- and -- and our interpretation is the 10 only one that gives full effect to the entire statute and 11 all the language and recognizes as congress did, is there 12 could be a scenario when affiliates claim -- or claims 13 arising from a sale of an affiliate there's going to be an 14 allowed claim. And it's going to be senior to claims and 15 other interests. When is that scenario? That scenario can 16 only be when you buy a wholly owned subsidiary of the 17 debtor. And if you don't agree with that then what you're 18 interpreting the statute to mean and what congress meant was 19 I want to disallow all claims from all cells involving 20 affiliates except for a common stock exception. Which just 21 does not -- it leads to observed results and it just doesn't 22 make sense why congress would prefer common stock over other 23 interest. Thank you, Your Honor.

24 THE COURT: Thank you.

25 MR. WOODS: Your Honor, can I have 30 seconds to 1 ask my partner one question?

2 THE COURT: Sure, absolutely.

3 MR. WOODS: Your Honor, in answer your question and 4 maybe simplify this hearing, we withdraw our objection to 5 the Arcapita plan treatment.

6 THE COURT: All right. All right --

7 MR. WOODS: So we're just focused on the Falcon --

8 THE COURT: Thank you, that does clarify -- clarify 9 things a little bit cause it's a different analysis.

10 MR. WOODS: Thank you, Your Honor.

11 THE COURT: Thank you. I appreciate pragmat -- 12 pragmatism where I can find it.

13 MR. MILLET: Seeing if Ms. Weiner was back yet.
14 Your Honor, Craig Millet again for the -- for the debtor.
15 That will make my comments more brief in light of the 16 withdrawal of the issues as to Arcapita Bank.

17 There is one thing that is very important that I 18 clear up. At the outset of Mr. Wood's arguments he made 19 comments that Tide is the only party in class 8. Which 20 disturbs me a little bit in that Thronson (Phonetic) is not 21 in class 8. We filed objections to the Thronson claims 22 because they had basically duplicated claims and claimed 23 priority in a variety of things. We don't dispute that they 24 have claims we dispute the amount that they claim and that 25 will get worked out. We also objected to Tide's claim.

1 Tide's claim in the plan is in class 10 (a), not in 8 (a).
2 We entered into a voting stipulation that this court
3 approved pursuant to an order. The voting stipulation 4 expressly provides for purposes of voting only. Tide will 5 be in class 8 (a). And then it went on to recite a litany 6 of words about how this is not admitting that it's in class 7 8 (a), everybody reserves their rights and all that jazz.

8 But we did not put them in class 8(a) as Mr. Woods 9 claims. They are not the only party in class 8(a). They 10 currently are in class 10 (a) and will only move from that 11 if this court makes a decision on the subordination matter 12 to put them someplace other than 10 (a).

13 THE COURT: So you gave them the benefit of the 14 doubt in terms of this argument for purposes of voting on 15 the plan?

16 MR. MILLET: Exactly, so it is not at all correct 17 to say that they are in class 8 or that they are the only 18 party in class 8 or that they're in class 8 (a) at all 19 because they will not go to class 8 (a) unless this court 20 puts them there.

21 Now if this court were to put them there the court 22 has the -- this court would be effecting the rights of the 23 Thronson parties who's claims are based upon common stock of 24 Falcon not LLC membership interest in Nortex it will be 25 changing. So you can't simply do that. It would require

1 the creation of some new class that we don't currently have 2 that would give rise to confirmation issues potentially 3 because of course for voting purposes Tide has voted no. So 4 if you put them in some class we could have a problem with a 5 rejecting class that would cram down in a variety of other 6 issues. So simply creating classes is -- sounds nice 7 perhaps on its face but it has a lot more ramifications and 8 therefore is unsupported by the authorities. There's no 9 cases that have really done that. And I don't believe that 10 you know that Mr. Woods been able to cite to any of his 11 brief while we're here before the court. So we stand on our 12 position that creating a new class at Falcon or anywhere 13 else is -- is not appropriate.

14 Passing over my bank comments now. Mr. Woods 15 focused a great deal on congressional intent on doing what 16 congress intended and giving them the benefit of their 17 bargain and what they bargain for and they said they bargain 18 for a structurally senior position of sale of course but 19 nobody even addressed that they bargained to buy some LLC 20 interest and that was it.

21 But Mr. Woods never tied -- tied, T I E D, his -- 22 his arguments to a specific case with the authority. He 23 strictly said this is the result that the court should 24 impose because it is -- it gives rise to the purpose of the 25 statute. But in their papers Tide said that National Farm

1 was the correct analysis to follow and that it gave meaning
2 to every aspect of the statute. And yet he's rejected
3 National Farm now and said we should do something different 4 instead of looking at what value the Nortex Security still 5 represents to Falcon.

6 And also there is discussion whether in every case 7 there would always be subordinated interest here when you 8 deal with an affiliate, perhaps not so. Falcon could have 9 sold 20 percent of the interest of Nortex to someone who 10 could have then had a claim, Falcon would have of course 11 then still retained 80 percent and the Nortex stock or 12 Nortex LLC membership interest that the Falcon 13 (Unintelligible) would have represented value following the 14 National Farm. And (Unintelligible) therefore would have 15 still been something left in that case so it's not every 16 case but even if it is our position is that's unfortunately 17 what the statute says because it says suborning it to 18 anything equal to the case law have recognized that, Geneva 19 Steel recognized that, USA Commercial recognized that and by 20 the way we don't admit that it was necessarily an oversight 21 of congress. I don't know why congress limited the common 22 stock. Judge Russell said and we quoted that in our papers, 23 that Judge Russell noted it was a commercial. That don't 24 know why this was done. But we have not admitted that it 25 was an oversight in any way, shape or form. It was strictly

1 a quote from the (Unintelligible) said USA Commercial.

2 To argue that there is some specific right to the 3 seventy million dollars ($70m) there was arguing for the 4 imposition of the constructive trust or a lien or some 5 special interest in that fund that has not been provided by 6 any case law and certainly not by 510 (b).

7 THE COURT: Well let me ask a practicing question
8 about the seventy million ($70m). On the merits of the case 9 in -- in front of Judge Wood I'm having some -- and maybe 10 there's an easy answer to this that I haven't seen. If she 11 decides that its property of the debtors estate then you go 12 through this analysis in terms of where the money is 13 distributed, right? And but in which case she is likely to 14 if I understand correctly have rejected the merits of the 15 underlying litigation.

16 MR. MILLET: Perhaps, not necessarily.

17 THE COURT: Not necessarily. Well I guess not 18 necessarily. But I mean conversely if -- if -- if she -- if 19 she sides with Tide then she will have said the seventy 20 million dollars ($70m) is -- is likely not part of the 21 debtors estate. And this will all be moot. So I'm -- I'm -- 22 I'm sort of wondering whether in fact that we're going to 23 have a serious mootness problem if we ever had a meris 24 (Phonetic) decision on it but I guess it doesn't matter 25 anyway.

1 MR. MILLET: True, Your Honor, there's -- there's a 2 claim of fraud in the inducement and if its somehow proven 3 that Tide was excused both -- excused from releasing the 4 money from escrow and that the money had not already passed 5 to the estate, to it was titled that -- and Falcon had not 6 occurred, in that case the money could go directly solely to 7 Tide in that instance. But if the court gets past that it 8 could still address whether it was simple fraud or whether 9 it was a breach of contract. In which case that simply 10 represents a claim at this -- at this courts level that this 11 court will then resolve and as the court quickly observed 12 fraud or no fraud congress has recognized these just as 13 claims without some sort of moral difference between them 14 and how they're treated in bankruptcy.

15 So in that instance it could come to this court 16 without necessarily resolving all of the issues in that -- 17 in that sense.

18 The last point I'll make, Your Honor, is the 19 comments about the VF case and whether the comments like 20 exception can be used to move up or move down the level of 21 interest. And -- and I respectfully submit that the court 22 there are just simply got it wrong. If -- if the court even 23 really analyzed how to use the common stock exception.

24 The Geneva Steel case which the 10th Circuit case 25 cited in our reply brief, spoke as to what that -- the

1 effect of the common stock exception laws and I've said in 2 1984 congress amended the statute to make clear that fraud
3 claims springing from the purchase or sale of common stock 4 are created on the same level as common stock. Springing 5 from the same level as common stock. All other claims are 6 subordinative to their underlying security. So it's -- it's 7 a saver clause if you will, it keeps it up. It's not 8 something used to push down.

9 THE COURT: All right.

10 MR. MILLET: With that, unless the court has any 11 further questions --

12 THE COURT: I -- I do not, thank you.

13 MR. WOODS: The 80 20 split that wouldn't change 14 the effect you just have two claimants. We -- both the 80 15 and the 20 would be subordinated to the equity of Falcon and 16 -- and receive no distribution so if you interpret the 17 statute the way they wanted the court is going to be 18 interpreting the statute to say all claims arising from 19 sales of affiliates at -- securities are disallowed except 20 common stock exception. Common stocks are the only ones 21 that are going to be preserved. Everything else is not 22 subordinated but disallowed. Even on the 80 20 split it 23 wouldn't -- if I -- if I have 20 and there's another 24 creditor with 80 that creditor would also be super 25 subordinated according to them. And they would also be

1 behind equity. And there's nothing behind equity, always.
2 If you put us behind equity once we -- we will always be 3 disallowed. And so that -- so our interpretation is the 4 only interpretation that gives full effect to all the 5 language in (Unintelligible). Thank you, Your Honor.

6 THE COURT: Thank you. All right anyone else wish 7 to be heard? All right well thank you for agreeing to take 8 this subordination piece a day early. I think it'll make 9 the confirmation hearing which I'm sure will have its own -- 10 own issues to address a little more efficient so I'm going 11 to take the matter under advisement and I appreciate the 12 helpful papers and arguments folks. And I do reserve the 13 right to ask a follow up question tomorrow if I -- if I have 14 -- have an epiphany that something that I had not asked 15 today. All right anything else that we need to do today?
16 I assume we need to circle back on the financing issue. I - 17 - I was happy to hear if parties had worked something out 18 but if they haven't I really made what I thought was a 19 ruling and I'll -- I'll stick by it which is that I'll -- 20 I'll grant the interim financing today and then the only 21 question is the scheduling for the --

22 UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: May it please the court I'd 23 like to mention just one thing and I apologize for this. My 24 sons graduating high school tomorrow so I won't be here. I 25 just wanted to explain to the court that I -- I'm not absent

1 from lack of interest but I --

2 THE COURT: You should be there.

3 UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: My colleagues will -- will 4 carry on and I thank the court for its time today.

5 THE COURT: As -- as somebody who had a son 6 graduate this year as well you -- you definitely should be 7 there that's a moment in life you don't want to miss. And I 8 will suspect that you will remember missing that and -- and 9 you might not remember being here on your death bed you -- 10 you never want to have to say your regret is that you should 11 have spent more time at work that's --

12 UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: My wife has promised that 13 she would remind daily if --

14 THE COURT: All right.

15 UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: I will remember it when you 16 ask me, I'll remember it.

17 THE COURT: That's true. I guess it's all a matter 18 of one's perspective. But no congratulations to your son.
19 Where's he going to college?

20 UNIDENTIFIED SPEAKER: He's going to go to Cal Poly 21 San Luis Obispo and he informed me just about a year ago he 22 wants to be a lawyer which was quite a shock.

23 THE COURT: All right awesome. My -- my oldest is 24 -- is decided he's not going to follow in the legal 25 tradition so -- so. Congratulations

1 MR. WILLIAMS: Good afternoon, Your Honor,
2 apologize we were not able to locate Captain Honey's 3 counsel.

4 THE COURT: All right well then what I'm go to do -

6 MR. WILLIAMS: I if I could --

7 THE COURT: Sure.

8 MR. WILLIAMS: -- indulge -- I do think -- well we 9 talked with Captain Honey's counsel outside and Captain 10 Honey's counsel was of the view that Wednesday was too tight 11 for them and it was going to -- and it was -- they were 12 going to continue their objections. So what I -- I think 13 after talking with the DIP lenders and with the committee I 14 think we had some productive discussions and what we'd like 15 to do to avoid this issue you know on appeal to the extent 16 that Captain Honey does determine to appeal and the like but 17 I -- I think where we are is we get the interim order 18 entered today given the fact that we filed the credit 19 agreement on the 6th if we could schedule a hearing on or 20 around the 20th that would obviate the 14 day issue 21 altogether and then we can set objection deadlines 7 days 22 prior to the hearing date.

23 THE COURT: All right well there -- there a couple 24 wrinkles in that. One is I'm assuming if you're doing that 25 that you don't have a problem with the 14 as a date because 1 you had a maturity issue right?

2 MR. WILLIAMS: Well what we would do, Your Honor, 3 we still on the interim basis give in everything we've got 4 going on. We would still draw down the entire amount so 5 we'd be able to deal with the maturity issue.

6 THE COURT: All right. The other is -- is 7 something that's not something you can fix. I'm actually 8 camping on an Island in Lake George on the 20th. And it's a 9 tradition that I started when I was in the US Attorney's 10 office because the only way to actually be away was to go to 11 an island. And have no modern conveniences so I've 12 continued the tradition. I -- I certainly can fit you in 13 shortly after that and I'm looking at the calendar now and 14 think that the 24th, which is the Monday which should be the 15 first day to be available would -- would -- I can squeeze 16 you in then if that works.

17 MR. WILLIAMS: It works for the debtors, Your Honor 18 if could just discuss with --

19 THE COURT: Certainly.

20 MR. WILLIAMS: We think that works, Your Honor.

21 THE COURT: All right so what I'd like to do is 22 schedule that in the afternoon at 2:00 and if you would send 23 out a notice -- well I guess the -- the order can -- can do 24 the trick but just in an abundance of caution I think 25 probably a separate notice to say that there's going to be a

1 hearing on the -- on the final approval of the financing for 2 the 24th at 2:00 and just give me one moment.

3 MR. WILLIAMS: Sure.

4 THE COURT: I just wanted to make sure that there 5 was not matter that I was overlooking and setting that date.
6 All right and if you get me the interim order today I will - 7 - I will sign it and get it in today.

8 MR. WILLIAMS: Yes, Your Honor I believe we have 9 black lines and on a disk as well so we'll hand that into 10 chambers.

11 THE COURT: All right.

12 MR. WILLIAMS: Thank you, Your Honor.

13 THE COURT: Anything else we should discuss this 14 afternoon? All right then I'll see you all tomorrow. Thank 15 you.

16 MULTIPLE SPEAKERS: Thank you, Your Honor.

- (b) Each Party shall promptly enter into any release and/or other document and take any action which the Security Agent may reasonably require to give effect to paragraph (a) above.
- (c) No such release under paragraph (a) above will affect the obligations and/or liabilities of any other member of the Group to the Secured Parties.

- (b) Without prejudice to paragraph (a) above, in the event of:
 - (i) a Default; or
 - (ii) the Security Agent being requested by an Obligor or the Majority Participants to undertake duties which the Security Agent and the Parent agree to be of an exceptional nature or outside the scope of the normal duties of the Security Agent under the Finance Documents; or
 - (iii) the Security Agent and the Parent agreeing that it is otherwise appropriate in the circumstances, the Parent shall pay to the Security Agent any additional remuneration (together with any applicable VAT) that may be agreed between them or determined pursuant to paragraph (c) below.

- (c) If the Security Agent and the Parent fail to agree upon the nature of the duties or upon the additional remuneration referred to in paragraph (b) above or whether additional remuneration is appropriate in the circumstances, any dispute shall be determined by an investment bank (acting as an expert and not as an arbitrator) selected by the Security Agent and approved by the Parent or, failing approval, nominated (on the application of the Security Agent) by the President for the time being of the Law Society of England and Wales (the costs of the nomination and of the investment bank being payable by the Parent) and the determination of any investment bank shall be final and binding upon the Parties

19.18 Declaration of trust

The Security Agent and each other Secured Party agree that the Security Agent shall hold the Charged Property in trust for the benefit of the Secured Parties on the terms of this Agreement.

19.19 Defects in security

The Security Agent shall not be liable for any failure or omission to perfect, or defect in perfecting, the Security created pursuant to any Security Document, including:

The Security Agent and every Receiver, Delegate, attorney, agent or other similar person appointed under any Security Document may indemnify itself out of the Charged Property against any cost, loss or liability incurred by it in that capacity described in Clause 19.16 (Indemnity to the Security Agent) (otherwise than by reason of its own gross negligence or wilful misconduct).

19.23 Basis of distribution

To enable it to make any distribution, the Security Agent may fix a date as at which the amount of the Secured Obligations is to be calculated and may require, and rely on, a certificate from any Secured Party giving details of:

- (a) any sums due or owing to any Secured Party as at that date; and
- (b) such other matters as it thinks fit.

19.24 Rights of the Security Agent

The Security Agent shall have all the rights, privileges and immunities which gratuitous trustees have or may have in England, even though it is entitled to remuneration.

provided that it exercises reasonable care in selecting that agent, delegate or security trustee or agent.

19.31 Unwinding

Any appropriation or distribution which later transpires to have been or is agreed by the Security Agent to have been invalid or which has to be refunded shall be refunded and shall be deemed never to have been made.

19.32 Party

The Security Agent shall be entitled to assume that a Party is acting in a particular capacity stated in this Deed or an Accession Deed unless notified to the contrary.

19.33 Disapplication

Section 1 of the Trustee Act 2000 shall not apply to the duties and powers of the Security Agent in relation to the trusts constituted by any Finance Document save to the extent required by law. Where there are inconsistencies between the Trustee Act 1925 and the Trustee Act 2000 and the express provisions of any such Finance Document, the provisions of such Finance Document shall, to the extent allowed by law, prevail and, in the case of any such inconsistency with the Trustee Act 2000, the provisions of such Finance Document shall constitute a restriction or exclusion for the purposes of that Act.

19.34 Application of Recoveries

Subject to the rights of creditors mandatorily preferred by law applying to companies generally, the proceeds of enforcement of the Security conferred by the Security Documents, all recoveries by the Security Agent under guarantees of the Secured Obligations and all other amounts paid to the Security Agent pursuant to this Deed shall be applied in the following order:

- (a) first, in or towards payment of any unpaid fees, costs, expenses and liabilities (including any profit thereon as provided in the Security Documents) incurred by or on behalf of the Security Agent (or any adviser, Receiver, Delegate, attorney or agent) and the remuneration of the Security Agent (or any adviser, Receiver, Delegate, attorney or agent) in connection with carrying out its duties or exercising powers or discretions under the Security Documents or this Deed;
- (b) second, in or towards payment to the Investment Agent for application towards any unpaid costs and expenses incurred by or on behalf of any Finance Party in connection with such enforcement, recovery or other payment;
- (c) third, in or towards payment to the Investment Agent for application towards the balance of the Secured Obligations and in accordance with the Finance Documents; and
- (d) fourth, the balance, if any, in payment or distribution to the relevant Obligor.

19.35 Clawback

- (a) Where a sum is to be paid to the Security Agent under the Finance Documents for another Party, the Security Agent is not obliged to pay that sum to that other Party (or to enter into or perform any related exchange contract) until it has been able to establish to its satisfaction that it has actually received that sum.

- (b) If the Security Agent pays an amount to another Party and it proves to be the case that it had not actually received that amount, then the Party to whom that amount (or the proceeds of any related exchange contract) was paid shall on demand refund the same to the Security Agent together with profit on that amount from the date of payment to the date of receipt by the Security Agent, calculated by it to reflect its actual cost of making arrangements to pay such amount.

19.36 Payments

All payments by the Obligors to the Security Agent under this Agreement (including damages for its breach) shall be made in Dollars and to such account, with such financial institution and in such other manner as the Security Agent may direct.

19.37 Payments to the Security Agent

Notwithstanding any other provision of any Finance Document, at any time after the Security created by or pursuant to any Security Document becomes enforceable, the Security Agent may require:

- (a) any Obligor to pay all sums due under any Finance Document; or
- (b) the Investment Agent to pay all sums received or recovered from an Obligor under any Finance Document, in each case as the Security Agent may direct for application in accordance with the terms of this Deed.

20. SHARING AMONG THE FINANCE PARTIES

20.1 Payments to Finance Parties

If a Finance Party (a "Recovering Finance Party") receives or recovers any amount from the Purchaser other than in accordance with Clause 8 (Remittances), Clause 19 (Role of Security Agent) or Clause 21 (Payment mechanics) (a "Recovered Amount") and applies that amount to a payment due under the Finance Documents then:

- (a) the Recovering Finance Party shall, within three Business Days, notify details of the receipt or recovery to the Investment Agent;
- (b) the Investment Agent shall determine whether the receipt or recovery is in excess of the amount the Recovering Finance Party would have been paid had the receipt or recovery been received or made by the Investment Agent and distributed in accordance with Clause 8 (Remittances), Clause 19 (Role of Security Agent) or Clause 21 (Payment mechanics), without taking account of any Tax which would be imposed on the Investment Agent in relation to the receipt, recovery or distribution; and
- (c) the Recovering Finance Party shall, within three Business Days of demand by the Investment Agent, pay to the Investment Agent an amount (the "Sharing Payment") equal to such receipt or recovery less any amount which the Investment Agent determines may be retained by the Recovering Finance Party as its share of any payment to be made, in accordance with Clause 21.6 (Partial payments).

20.2 Redistribution of payments

The Investment Agent shall treat the Sharing Payment as if it had been paid by the Obligor and distribute it between the Finance Parties (other than the Recovering Participant) (the "Sharing Finance Parties") in accordance with Clause 21.6 (Partial payments).

20.3 Recovering Finance Party's rights

On a distribution by the Investment Agent under Clause 20.2 (Redistribution of payments) of a payment received by a Recovering Finance Party from an Obligor, as between the Obligors and the Investment Agent and the Investment Agent and the Recovering Finance Party, an amount of the Recovered Amount equal to the Sharing Payment will be treated as not having been paid by the relevant Obligor.

20.4 Reversal of redistribution

If any part of the Sharing Payment received or recovered by a Recovering Finance Party becomes repayable and is repaid by that Recovering Finance Party, then:

- (a) each Sharing Finance Party shall, upon request of the Investment Agent, pay to the Investment Agent for the account of that Recovering Finance Party an amount equal to the appropriate part of its share of the Sharing Payment (the "Redistributed Amount"); and
- (b) as between the Purchaser and the Investment Agent and the Investment Agent and each relevant Sharing Finance Party, an amount equal to the relevant Redistributed Amount will be treated as not having been paid by the relevant Obligor.

20.5 Exceptions

- (a) This Clause 20 shall not apply to the extent that the Recovering Finance Party would not, after making any payment pursuant to this Clause, have a valid and enforceable claim against the relevant Obligor.
- (b) A Recovering Finance Party is not obliged to share with any other Finance Party any amount which the Recovering Finance Party has received or recovered as a result of taking legal or arbitration proceedings, if:
 - (i) it notified that other Finance Party of the legal or arbitration proceedings; and
 - (ii) that other Finance Party had an opportunity to participate in those legal or arbitration proceedings but did not do so as soon as reasonably practicable having received notice and did not take separate legal or arbitration proceedings.

21. PAYMENT MECHANICS

21.1 Payments to the Investment Agent

- (a) On each date on which an Obligor or a Participant is required to make a payment under a Finance Document, that Obligor or Participant shall make the same available to the Investment Agent (unless a contrary indication appears in a Finance Document) for value on the due date at the time and in such funds specified by the Investment Agent as being customary at the time for settlement of transaction in the relevant currency in the place of payment.

- (b) Payment shall be made to such account in the principal financial centre of the country of that currency with such bank as the Investment Agent specifies.

21.2 Distributions by the Investment Agent

Each payment received by the Investment Agent under the Finance Documents for another Party shall, subject to Clause 21.3 (Distributions to the Obligors) and Clause 21.4 (Clawback), be made available by the Investment Agent as soon as practicable after receipt to the Party entitled to receive payment in accordance with this Agreement (in the case of a Participant, for the account of its Facility Office), to such account as that Party may notify to the Investment Agent by not less than five Business Days' notice with a bank in the principal financial centre of the country of that currency.

21.3 Distributions to the Obligors

The Investment Agent may apply any amount received by it for an Obligor in or towards payment (on the date and in the currency and funds of receipt) of any amount due from that Obligor under the Finance Documents or in or towards purchase of any amount of any currency (at a market rate of exchange) to be so applied.

21.4 Clawback

- (a) Where a sum is to be paid to the Investment Agent under the Finance Documents for another Party, the Investment Agent is not obliged to pay that sum to that other Party (or to enter into or perform any related exchange contract) until it has been able to establish to its satisfaction that it has actually received that sum.
- (b) If the Investment Agent pays an amount to another Party and it proves to be the case that the Investment Agent had not actually received that amount, then the Party to whom that amount (or the proceeds of any related exchange contract) was paid by the Investment Agent shall on demand refund the same to the Investment Agent together with an amount, calculated by the Investment Agent to reflect its actual cost of making arrangements to pay such amount.

21.5 Impaired Agent

- (a) If, at any time, the Investment Agent becomes an Impaired Agent, an Obligor or a Participant which is required to make a payment under the Finance Documents to the Investment Agent in accordance with Clause 21.1 (Payments to the Investment Agent) may instead either pay that amount directly to the required recipient or pay that amount to a Shari'ah compliant profit bearing account or, if no such account is available, a non interest-bearing account held with an Acceptable Bank and in relation to which no Insolvency Event has occurred and is continuing, in the name of the Purchaser or the Participant making the payment and designated as a trust account for the benefit of the Party or Parties beneficially entitled to that payment under the Finance Documents. In each case such payments must be made on the due date for payment under the Finance Documents.
- (b) All profit accrued on the amount standing to the credit of the trust account shall be for the benefit of the beneficiaries of that trust account pro rata to their respective entitlements.
- (c) A Party which has made a payment in accordance with this Clause 21.5 shall be discharged of the relevant payment obligation under the Finance Documents and shall not take any credit risk with respect to the amounts standing to the credit of the trust account.

- (d) Promptly upon the appointment of a successor Investment Agent in accordance with Clause 17.11 (Replacement of the Investment Agent), each Party which has made a payment to a trust account in accordance with this Clause 21.5 shall give all requisite instructions to the bank with whom the trust account is held to transfer the amount (together with any accrued profit) to the successor Investment Agent for distribution in accordance with Clause 21.2 (Distributions by the Investment Agent).

21.6 Partial payments

- (a) If the Investment Agent receives a payment that is insufficient to discharge all the amounts then due and payable by the Obligors under the Finance Documents, the Investment Agent shall apply that payment towards the obligations of the Obligors under the Finance Documents in the following order:
 - (i) first, in or towards payment pro rata of any unpaid fees, actual costs and expenses of the Investment Agent, Security Agent or the Arranger under the Finance Documents;
 - (ii) secondly, in or towards payment pro rata of any portion of a Remittance corresponding to the Profit Amount or Supplemental Profit or any portion of Administration Fee due but unpaid under the Finance Documents;
 - (iii) thirdly, in or towards payment pro rata of any portion of a Remittance corresponding to the Cost Price due but unpaid under the Finance Documents; and
 - (iv) fourthly, in or towards payment pro rata of any other sum due but unpaid under the Finance Documents.
- (b) The Investment Agent shall, if so directed by the Majority Participants, vary the order set out in paragraphs (a)(ii) to (a)(iv) above.
- (c) Paragraphs (a) and (b) above will override any appropriation made by an Obligor.

21.7 Refund of payments

- (a) If at any time the Investment Agent becomes obliged:
 - (i) to pay to any liquidator, trustee or other person all or part of an amount previously paid to the Investment Agent (the "Relevant Receipt") by an Obligor; or
 - (ii) to indemnify any liquidator, trustee or other person in respect of a Relevant Receipt, being in any such case an amount which the Investment Agent shall have paid, or, but for this Clause 21.7 would become liable to pay, to the Participants pursuant to this Agreement, then:

- (A) the Investment Agent shall promptly notify each Participant of the relevant circumstances and of the amount (the "Excess Amount") to be repaid by the Investment Agent or, as the case may be, to be paid by way of indemnity by the Investment Agent;
- (B) each Participant shall on demand pay to the Investment Agent an amount equal to its Percentage of the Excess Amount together with any compensation, costs, charges or expenses which the Investment

Agent shall have become liable to pay in respect of such Excess Amount; and

- (C) any amount subsequently payable to a Participant pursuant to this Agreement on the basis of the Relevant Receipt shall be adjusted accordingly.
- (b) The Purchaser shall promptly indemnify each Participant against any payment made by a Participant to the Investment Agent in connection with an Excess Amount payable pursuant to this Clause 21.7.

21.8 Restructuring

If, in connection with any moratorium, rescheduling, refinancing, suspension of payments or other similar arrangement or circumstance (a "Restructuring") affecting any Remittance or any other amount paid by the Investment Agent to the Participants:

- (a) the Remittance (or other amount) is paid in whole or in part but the obligation of an Obligor in respect of the amount paid is substituted by any other payment obligation;
- (b) any sum is paid into a blocked account or in non-convertible currency in or towards discharge or purported discharge of the payment or any part thereof; or
- (c) the Investment Agent is obliged to provide funds in addition to the amount of the aggregate of the Facility Commitments, to any person, then:

- (i) in relation to paragraph (a) above, the Remittance or other amount will be deemed not to have been received by the Investment Agent for the purposes of this Agreement and any substitute payment obligation shall be treated as between the Participants and the Investment Agent in the same way as the relevant Remittance or other amount as if such obligation had been originally contained in the relevant Finance Documents for the purpose of ascertaining the right (if any) of the Participants to receive subsequent payments under this Agreement;
- (ii) in relation to paragraph (b) above, such sum will be deemed not to have been received and the Investment Agent will (at the request and cost of a Participant) assign to the Participants the relevant Percentage of the Investment Agent's rights to any such blocked account or non-convertible currency as is referred to in paragraph (b) above; and
- (iii) in relation to paragraph (c) above, each Participant shall be obliged to pay to the Investment Agent on demand an amount equal to its Percentage of such additional funds by way of additional Contribution in accordance with Clause 6.2 (Payment of Contribution).

21.9 No set-off by the Obligors

All payments to be made by the Purchaser to the Investment Agent pursuant to the Finance Documents shall be calculated and made without (and free and clear of any deduction for) set-off or counterclaim.

21.10 Business Days

Any payment which is due to be made on a day that is not a Business Day shall be made on the next Business Day in the same calendar month (if there is one) or the preceding Business Day (if there is not).

- (b) Each payment in respect of costs, expenses or Taxes shall be made in the currency in which the costs, expenses or Taxes are incurred.
- (c) Any amount expressed to be payable in a currency other than Dollars shall be paid in that other currency.

21.12 Change of currency

- (a) Unless otherwise prohibited by law, if more than one currency or currency unit are at the same time recognised by the central bank of any country as the lawful currency of that country, then:
 - (i) any reference in the Finance Documents to, and any obligations arising under the Finance Documents in, the currency of that country shall be translated into, or paid in, the currency or currency unit of that country designated by the Investment Agent (after consultation with the Purchaser); and
 - (ii) any translation from one currency or currency unit to another shall be at the official rate of exchange recognised by the central bank for the conversion of that currency or currency unit into the other, rounded up or down by the Investment Agent (acting reasonably).
- (b) If a change in any currency of a country occurs, this Agreement will, to the extent the Investment Agent (acting reasonably and after consultation with the Purchaser) specifies to be necessary, be amended to comply with any generally accepted conventions and market practice in the London interbank market and otherwise to reflect the change in currency.

21.13 Disruption to payment systems, etc.

If either the Investment Agent determines (in its discretion) that a Disruption Event has occurred or the Investment Agent is notified by the Purchaser or a Participant that a Disruption Event has occurred:

- (a) the Investment Agent may, and shall if requested to do so by the Purchaser or a Participant consult with the Purchaser or that Participant (as applicable) with a view to agreeing with the Purchaser or that Participant (as applicable) such changes to the operation or administration of the Finance Documents as the Investment Agent may deem necessary in the circumstances;
- (b) the Investment Agent shall not be obliged to consult with the Purchaser or that Participant (as applicable) in relation to any changes mentioned in paragraph (a) above if, in its opinion, it is not practicable to do so in the circumstances and, in any event, shall have no obligation to agree to such changes;

- (c) the Investment Agent may consult with the Finance Parties in relation to any changes mentioned in paragraph (a) above but shall not be obliged to do so if, in its opinion, it is not practicable to do so in the circumstances;
- (d) any such changes agreed upon by the Investment Agent and the Purchaser or that Participant (as applicable) shall (whether or not it is finally determined that a Disruption Event has occurred) be binding upon the Parties as an amendment to (or, as the case may be, waiver of) the terms of the Finance Documents notwithstanding the provisions of Clause 27 (Amendments and waivers);
- (e) the Investment Agent shall not be liable for any damages, costs or losses whatsoever (including, without limitation, for negligence, gross negligence or any other category of liability whatsoever but not including any claim based on the fraud of the Investment Agent) arising as a result of its taking, or failing to take, any actions pursuant to or in connection with this Clause 21.13; and
- (f) the Investment Agent shall notify the Finance Parties and Purchaser of all changes agreed pursuant to paragraph (d) above.

22. SET-OFF

A Finance Party may set off any matured obligation due from the Purchaser under the Finance Documents (to the extent beneficially owned by that Finance Party) against any matured obligation owed by that Finance Party to the Purchaser, regardless of the place of payment, booking branch or currency of either obligation. 26. REMEDIES AND WAIVERS

No failure to exercise, nor any delay in exercising, on the part of any Finance Party, any right or remedy under the Finance Documents shall operate as a waiver of any such right or remedy or constitute an election to affirm any of the Finance Documents. No waiver or election to affirm any of the Finance Documents on the part of any Finance Party shall be effective unless in writing. No or partial exercise of any right or remedy shall prevent any further or other exercise or the exercise of any other right or remedy. The rights and remedies provided in the Finance Documents are cumulative and not exclusive of any rights or remedies provided by law.

27. AMENDMENTS AND WAIVERS

- (a) Subject to Clause 27.3 (Exceptions):
 - (i) any term of the Finance Documents may be amended only with the consent of the Majority Participants and the Purchaser; and

- (c) No amendment or waiver may be made before the date falling ten Business Days after the terms of that amendment or waiver have been notified by the Investment Agent to the Participants, unless each Participant is a "FATCA Protected Participant". The Investment Agent shall notify the Participants reasonably promptly of any amendments or waivers proposed by the Purchaser.

27.2 Excluded Commitments

- (a) Each Participant shall respond to a request for a consent, waiver or amendment of or in relation to any term of the Finance Documents or any other vote of the Participants under the Finance Documents within ten (10) Business Days after receipt of such request or notice, unless the Purchaser and the Investment Agent agree to a longer period in relation to any request.
- (b) The Commitments and/or Participations (as applicable) of any Participant that fails to or does not provide a response within the time specified in paragraph (a) above shall not be included for purposes of calculating the Total Commitments or outstanding Participations under the relevant Facility when ascertaining whether any relevant percentage (including for the avoidance of doubt, unanimity, Majority Participants or Super Majority Participants) has been obtained to approve that request.

27.3 Exceptions

- (a) An amendment or waiver that has the effect of changing or which relates to:
 - (i) the definitions of "Majority Participants" or Super Majority Participants in Clause 1.1 (Definitions);

 - (v) an increase in or an extension of any Facility Commitment or Participation or any requirement that a cancellation of a Facility Commitment or Participation reduces the Facility Commitment or the Participations of the Participants rateably under the relevant Facility;

- (vi) Clause 16.11 (Change of control) of the Murabaha Facility Agreement (including a change to the definition of "Change of Control" in the Murabaha Facility Agreement) or any provision requiring prepayments or reductions in the Facility Limit to be applied either pro rata amongst Participants (or against the Participation or Facility Commitment of a specific Participant);
- (vii) a change to the Purchaser or any Obligor (other than in accordance with Clause 22.4 (Additional Guarantors) or Clause 22.5 (Registration of a Guarantor) of the Murabaha Facility Agreement or Clause 5 (Conversion to Exit Facility) or as a result of a Permitted Disposal or Permitted Transaction;
- (viii) (other than as expressly permitted by the provisions of any Finance Document) the nature or scope of:
 - (A) the guarantee and indemnity granted under Clause 11 (Guarantee and Indemnity) of the Murabaha Facility Agreement;

- (b) An amendment or waiver which relates to the rights or obligations of the Investment Agent, the Security Agent or the Arranger (each in their capacity as such) may not be effected without the consent of the Investment Agent, the Security Agent or the Arranger, as the case may be.
- (c) An amendment or waiver which relates to the rights or obligations of the Obligors under the Finance Documents may not be effected without the consent of the Parent.
- (d)

- (i) After the Exit Conversion Date, if the Investment Agent or a Participant reasonably believes that an amendment or waiver may constitute a "material modification" for the purposes of FATCA that may result (directly or indirectly) in a Party being required to make a FATCA Deduction and the Investment Agent or that Participant (as the case may be) notifies the Company and the Investment Agent accordingly, that amendment or waiver may, subject to paragraph (ii) below, not be effected without the consent of the Investment Agent or that Participant (as the case may be).
- (ii) The consent of a Participant shall not be required pursuant to paragraph (i) above if that Participant is a FATCA Protected Participant.

27.4 Replacement of Participant

- (a) If:
 - (i) any Participant becomes a Defaulting Participant;
 - (ii) any Participant becomes a Non-Consenting Participant (as defined in paragraph (d) below); or
 - (iii) the Purchaser becomes obliged to pay any amount under Clause 9.1 (Illegality), or to pay an additional amount pursuant to Clause 8 (Tax) or Clause 18.5 (Increased costs) of the Murabaha Facility Agreement, to any Participant, then the Purchaser may, on ten (10) Business Days' prior written notice to the Investment Agent and such Participant, replace such Participant by requiring such Participant to (and, to the extent permitted by law, such Participant shall) transfer pursuant to Clause 16 (Changes to the Participants) all (and not part only) of its rights and obligations under this Agreement to a Participant or other bank, financial institution, trust, fund or other entity (a "Replacement Participant") selected by the Purchaser, and which confirms its willingness to assume and does assume all the obligations of the transferring Participant in accordance with Clause 16 (Changes to the Participants) for a purchase price in cash payable at the time of transfer in an amount equal to the outstanding principal amount of such Participant's Participations and other amounts payable in relation thereto under the Finance Documents.

- (b) The replacement of a Participant pursuant to this Clause 27.4 shall be subject to the following conditions:
 - (i) the Purchaser shall have no right to replace the Investment Agent or Security Agent;
 - (ii) neither the Investment Agent nor the Participant shall have any obligation to the Purchaser to find a Replacement Participant;
 - (iii) in the event of a replacement of a Non-Consenting Participant such replacement must take place no later than thirty (30) Business Days after the date on which that Participant is deemed a Non-Consenting Participant;
 - (iv) in no event shall the Participant replaced under Clause 27.4 be required to pay or surrender to such Replacement Participant any of the fees received by such Participant pursuant to the Finance Documents; and

- (v) the Participant shall only be obliged to transfer its rights and obligations pursuant to paragraph (a) above once it is satisfied that it has complied with all necessary "know your customer" or other similar checks under all applicable laws and regulations in relation to that transfer.
- (c) A Participant shall perform the checks described in paragraph (b)(v) above as soon as reasonably practicable following delivery of a notice referred to in paragraph (a) above and shall notify the Investment Agent and the Purchaser when it is satisfied that it has complied with those checks.
- (d) In the event that:
 - (i) the Purchaser or the Investment Agent (at the request of the Purchaser) has requested the Participants to give a consent in relation to, or to agree to a waiver or amendment of, any provisions of the Finance Documents;
 - (ii) the consent, waiver or amendment in question requires the approval of all the Participants; and
 - (iii) Participants whose Facility Commitments aggregate in the case of a consent, waiver or amendment requiring the approval of all the Participants, more than 85% of the Total Commitments (or, if the Total Commitments have been reduced to zero, aggregated more than 85% of the Total Commitments prior to that reduction), have consented or agreed to such waiver or amendment, then any Participant who does not and continues not to consent or agree to such waiver or amendment shall be deemed a "Non-Consenting Participant".

27.5 Disenfranchisement of Defaulting Participants

- (a) For so long as a Defaulting Participant has any Facility Commitment, in ascertaining:
 - (i) the Majority Participants or the Super Majority Participants; or
 - (ii) whether any given percentage (including, for the avoidance of doubt, unanimity) of the Total Commitments, has been obtained to approve any request for a consent, waiver, amendment or other vote of Participants under the Finance Documents, that Defaulting Participant's Commitments under the relevant Facility will be reduced by the amount of its Available Commitments under the relevant Facility and, to the extent that that reduction results in that Defaulting Participant's Commitments being zero, that Defaulting Participant shall be deemed not to be a Participant for the purposes of paragraphs (i) and (ii) above.

- (b) For the purposes of this Clause 27.5, the Investment Agent may assume that the following Participants are Defaulting Participants:
 - (i) any Participant which has notified the Investment Agent that it has become a Defaulting Participant; and
 - (ii) any Participant in relation to which it is aware that any of the events or circumstances referred to in paragraphs (a), (b) or (c) of the definition of "Defaulting Participant" has occurred, unless it has received notice to the contrary from the Participant concerned (together with any supporting evidence reasonably requested by the Investment Agent) or the

in each case, such Confidential Information as that Finance Party shall consider appropriate if:

- (A) in relation to paragraphs (b)(i), (b)(ii) and (b)(iii) above, the person to whom the Confidential Information is to be given has entered into a Confidentiality Undertaking except that there shall be no requirement for a Confidentiality Undertaking if the recipient is a professional adviser and is subject to professional obligations to maintain the confidentiality of the Confidential Information;

28.3 Entire agreement

This Clause 28 constitutes the entire agreement between the Parties in relation to the obligations of the Finance Parties under the Finance Documents regarding Confidential

EACH PARTY HERETO (A) CERTIFIES THAT NO REPRESENTATIVE, AGENT OR ATTORNEY OF ANY OTHER PARTY HAS REPRESENTED, EXPRESSLY OR OTHERWISE, THAT SUCH OTHER PARTY WOULD NOT, IN THE EVENT OF LITIGATION, SEEK TO ENFORCE THE FOREGOING WAIVER AND (B) ACKNOWLEDGES THAT IT AND THE OTHER PARTIES HERETO HAVE BEEN INDUCED TO ENTER INTO THIS AGREEMENT BY, AMONG OTHER THINGS, THE MUTUAL WAIVERS AND CERTIFICATIONS IN THIS CLAUSE.

Conflict of laws—Contract—Proper law—Parties entering into financing agreements—Clauses providing for agreements to be governed by English law subject to principles of Sharia law—Whether non-national system of law capable of being governing law—Contracts (Applicable Law) Act 1990 (c 36), Sch. 1, arts 1, 3

Contract—Construction—Proper law clause—Parties entering into financing agreements—Clauses providing for agreements to be governed by English law subject to principles of Sharia law—Whether clauses apt to incorporate principles of Sharia law into agreements

The claimant bank advanced moneys to the first and second defendants, two Bangladeshi pharmaceutical companies, under various financing agreements which were guaranteed by the third to fifth defendants. The bank was incorporated under the laws of Bahrain and, although the principles of Islamic law were not incorporated into the commercial law of Bahrain, the bank held itself out as applying Islamic principles in the course of its business. The financing agreements sought to circumvent the prohibition under Islamic law against the charging of interest upon a loan by taking the form of a sale contract, known as a Morabaha agreement, which was recognised as valid by Islamic law. The agreements each contained a governing law clause which stated that “Subject to the principles of the Glorious Sharia'a, this agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of England”. The first and second defendants defaulted on their payments and the claimant bank applied for summary judgment against them and against the guarantors. The principal defence advanced by the defendants was that, on the true construction of the governing law clauses, the agreements were only enforceable in so far as they were valid both in accordance with the principles of the Sharia and in accordance with English law, and that the agreements did not in fact comply with Sharia law in that they were in truth disguised loans at interest. The judge gave judgment for the bank. The defendants appealed on the ground, inter alia, that the judge had failed to consider whether the clauses were apt to incorporate the principles of Sharia law into the agreements.

On appeal by the defendants-

Held, dismissing the appeal, that the doctrine of incorporation could only sensibly operate where the parties had by the terms of their contract sufficiently identified specific black letter provisions of a foreign law or an international code or set of rules apt to be incorporated as terms of the relevant contract; that the general reference in the clauses to principles of the Sharia afforded no reference to, or identification of, those aspects of Sharia law which were intended to be incorporated into the contract and stood unqualified as a reference to the body of Sharia law generally, which was repugnant to the choice of English law as the law of the contract and rendered the contract self-contradictory and meaningless; that the references to Sharia law were intended merely to reflect the Islamic religious principles according to which the bank held itself out as doing business and were inadequate *1785 to incorporate the principles of Sharia law, or any part of Sharia law, into the agreements; that, therefore, the validity of the agreements and the defendant's obligations thereunder were to be decided according to English law; and that, accordingly, the agreements were enforceable and the defendants were liable under them to the bank (post, paras 51–55, 61–63).

Per curiam. The Rome Convention on the Law Applicable to Contractual Obligations, scheduled to the Contracts (Applicable Law) Act 1990, contemplates that the law chosen to be the governing law of a contract shall be the law of a country as opposed to a non-national system of law such as Sharia law (post, paras 48, 62, 63).

APPEAL from Morison J

By a claim issued on 8 November 2002 the claimant, Shamil Bank of Bahrain EC, claimed from the defendants, Beximco Pharmaceuticals Ltd, *1786 Bangladesh Export Import Co Ltd, Ahmed Sohail Fasiuhar Rahman, Ahmed Salman Fazlur Rahman and Beximco Holdings Ltd, around US$47m, moneys said to be due under financing agreements entered into by the first and second defendants and guaranteed by the third to fifth defendants. By an application notice filed on 12 May 2003 the claimant sought summary judgment of the claim under CPR Pt 24. On 1 October 2003 Morison J awarded the claimant summary judgment against the defendants jointly and severally in the total sum of US$49.7m.

By an appellant's notice filed on 29 August 2003, and pursuant to permission granted by Clarke LJ on 17 September 2003, the defendants appealed on the grounds, inter alia, (1) that the judge had erred in finding that the defendants were, in substance, contending that the agreements were "governed" by Sharia law, since their case had been that, although governed by English law, the agreements were subject to a condition precedent that they would only be enforceable to the extent that they were consistent with and did not offend the principles of Sharia; (2) that the judge had erred in approaching the defendant's case on the basis that they had argued that article 3(1) of the Rome Convention on the Law Applicable to Contractual Obligations did not permit a contract, rather than parts of a contract, to be governed by the laws of two states since neither side had submitted that it did and the defendants had accepted that it did not; (3) that the judge had erred in finding that the construction advocated by the defendants offended article 3(1) of the Rome Convention; (4) that the judge's finding that article 1(1) of the Rome Convention precluded the choice of Sharia law as a governing law since it was not the law of a country was irrelevant as neither party had contended that it constituted the governing law of the agreements; (5) that the judge's finding that the wording of the relevant clauses could not be construed as a choice of Sharia law as the governing law of the agreements was irrelevant as neither side had in fact submitted that it could or should be so construed; (6) that the judge had erred in rejecting the defendant's submission that their construction of the Sharia clause produced a result no different from the incorporation of a codified system of rules, such as the Hague Rules or the Warsaw Convention, into a contract governed by English law; (7) that the judge's finding that the parties could not possibly have intended to ask an English secular court to determine whether the agreements were compliant with the principles of Sharia was fatally flawed in that it depended upon (a) a finding that the reference to the "principles" of Sharia was a reference to religious as opposed to legal principles, (b) an unwarranted rejection of the evidence of the defendant's Sharia expert that the principles of Sharia relied upon by the defendants were both basic and wholly uncontroversial and (c) a rejection of the defendant's argument that the English courts were well versed, with the assistance of appropriate expert evidence, in resolving issues of Sharia law which came before them; (8) that the judge's construction rendered otiose the reference in the relevant clauses to "the principles of the Glorious Sharia'a" in that it failed to attribute any meaning at all to the words and thus rendered them wholly superfluous; (9) that had the judge reached the correct conclusion on the proper construction of the Sharia clause he would or should have concluded that the guarantees were unenforceable; and (10) that the judge had erred in concluding that the mistake upon which the third to fifth defendants relied would not have rendered the guarantees unenforceable in any event, being a mistake of law.*1787

By a respondent's notice filed on 8 October 2003 the claimant sought to uphold the order of Morison J for the reasons given in his judgment.

POTTER LJ

28 January. The following judgments were handed down.

Introduction

1 This is an appeal from the judgment of Morison J dated 1 August 2003 whereby he gave summary judgment in favour of the claimant Shamil Bank of Bahrain EC (“the bank”) against the first and second defendants as principal debtors in respect of moneys advanced to them by the bank under various financing agreements and against the third, fourth and fifth defendants as guarantors of certain of those agreements. The total judgment sum awarded was some US$49.7m. The appellants were refused permission to appeal by Morison J, but permission was granted by Clarke LJ on 17 September 2003 in relation to a single issue relating to the construction and effect of the form of the governing law clause contained in the financing agreements. That clause reads as follows: “Subject to the principles of the Glorious Sharia'a, this agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of England”

2 It is not in dispute that “the principles of the Glorious Sharia'a” referred to are the principles described by the defendant's expert, Mr Khalil-Ur-Rehman Khan

“the law laid down by the Qur'an, which is the holy book of Islam, and the Sunnah (the sayings, teachings and actions of Prophet Mohammad (PBUH)). These are the principal sources of the Sharia. The Sunnah is the most important source of the Islamic faith after the Qur'an and refers essentially to the Prophet's example as indicated by his practice of the faith. The only way to know the Sunnah is through the collection of Ahadith, which consists of reports about the sayings, deeds and reactions of the Prophet...”

3 One principle expressly stated in the Qur'an and Sunnah is that the charging of interest upon a loan, in whatever form, is “Riba” and is contrary to the Sharia. At Sura II, 275–279 of the Qur'an it is stated that:

“Allah has made buying and selling lawful and has made the taking of interest unlawful. Remember, therefore, that he who desists because of the admonition that has come to him from his Lord, may retain what he has received in the past; and his affair is committed to Allah. But those who revert to the practice, they are the inmates of the fire; therein shall they abide... O Ye who believe, be mindful of your duty to Allah and relinquish your claim to what remains of interest, if you are truly believers. But if you do not, then beware of war from the side of Allah and his Messenger. If, however, you desist, you will still have your capital sums; thus you will commit no wrong, nor suffer any wrong yourself.”*1788 Sura III, 130 states: “O Ye who believe, devour not interest, for it goes on multiplying itself; and be mindful of your obligation to Allah that you may prosper.” (The Qur'an, translated by Muhammad Zafrulla Khan (1971).)

Commerce and Bahrain Monetary Agency. The Kingdom of Bahrain is a constitutional monarchy and 95% of its population are muslims. None the less, while embracing and encouraging Islamic banking practice as a national policy, the principles of Islamic law, in particular the prohibition of Riba, have not been incorporated into the commercial law of Bahrain and there is an absence of any legal prescription as to what does and does not constitute "Islamic" banking or finance. In his survey of the commercial laws of the Arab Middle East, Professor Ballantyne (Commercial Law in the Arab Middle East: The Gulf States (1986), p 133) states that:

"In our other jurisdictions, banking interest is, in practice, tolerated (Saudi Arabia) and even sanctioned by banking laws (Bahrain, Qatar and Oman), while any theoretical or hypothetical conflicts have been largely ignored."

5 The unchallenged position as far as the charging of interest in Bahrain is concerned is that stated in Nabil Saleh, Unlawful Gain and Legitimate Profit in Islamic Law, 2nd ed (1992), p 9:

"The matter of interest is regulated as far as commercial transactions are concerned by the provisions of article 81 of the Commercial Code of 1987. The latest amendment of article 81, effectuated by Law No 4 of 1992, gives the following instructions to courts: (1) interest on overdue payments of commercial debts becomes due by the mere occurrence of maturity dates unless otherwise provided for by law or agreement. (2) Under no circumstances, and with regard to debts whose settlement does not exceed a period of seven years, may the aggregate amount of interest paid to the creditor exceed the initial indebtedness. (3) The provisions of the preceding (2) do not apply to debts which were contracted in foreign currencies. (4) The creditor is entitled to claim complementary damages in addition to interest on overdue payments with no need to prove that the additional damage he suffered was caused by the debtor's fraud or his serious fault."

6 None the less, the bank holds itself out as applying Islamic principles in the course of its business. The bank's full title is "Shamil Bank of Bahrain EC (Islamic Bankers)". The main objects clause in its memorandum of association is in general terms:

"3. Notwithstanding the provisions of this article, the company shall undertake at all times to comply with the Bahrain Monetary Agency Law and any circulars, rules or regulations issued by the Bahrain Monetary Agency from time to time... According to the above, the company will carry on all banking, investment, financial activities, offshore units and all services relating thereto of various commercial, industrial, agricultural, real estate, tourism, housing and other services in the State of Bahrain and outside it."*1789 However, clause 34 of the articles of association provides for the ordinary general meeting to elect and appoint a religious supervisory board "which shall comprise at least three persons who are recognised specialists and qualified in Islamic jurisprudence, religious provisions and Islamic economy".

7 Clauses 35 and 36 of the articles provide:

"35(a) The religious supervisory board shall ascertain that the company's investments and activities (and the activities of its subsidiary and affiliated companies) conform with the principles and provisions of Islamic Sharia'a. It shall, in particular, discuss with the members of the board of directors, managers of the company or of any subsidiary or affiliated company under its control, such conformity and the business carried out by them and shall request any information it deems necessary. In particular, the religious supervisory board shall adopt all the crucial decisions for applying the provisions of Islamic Sharia'a to ensure the realisation of the objects for which the company was incorporated. Also to ensure that the members of the board of directors, managers and employees are co-ordinating their activities according to such decisions which will be binding on all the shareholders. The religious supervisory board shall within six months from the end of the company's financial year, submit a written report stating that it fulfilled the obligations indicated herein and ascertained that the company's investments and business activities (including its subsidiary companies) conform with the provisions of Islamic Sharia'a."

"36. The board of directors shall take the necessary actions to ensure that all the investments and other business transactions have been referred to the religious supervisory board for approval before carrying out any other business transactions by the company or by any subsidiary or affiliate company under its control."

8 As made clear by the bank's expert witness, provisions of this kind are not unusual. In the absence of legal prescription as to what does and what does not constitute "Islamic" banking or finance, most Islamic banks create religious or Sharia supervisory boards which review annually the operations of the bank and determine whether or not these have been carried out in accordance with Islamic law. They examine on a test basis each type of transaction entered into by the bank and evidence to show that the transaction and dealings entered into by the bank are in compliance with Sharia rules and principles, submitting an annual report to the shareholders in that respect. In this case the bank's own religious supervisory board certified in respect of the years 1995 and 1996 that "The board believes that all the bank's business throughout the said year, including investment activities and banking services, were in full compliance with Glorious Islamic Sharia'a"

9 A certificate of compliance was also issued for that period by the bank's auditors, reviewing the bank's operation on the basis of the financial accounting standards issued by the Accounting and Auditing Organisation for Islamic Financial Institutions.

10 Until their defences were filed in this action, the appellants had never given any indication to the bank that they were dissatisfied on religious grounds with the arrangements agreed between the parties or that they *1790 sought to challenge them on the grounds that they did not comply with the principles of Sharia.

11 The first two defendants are Bangladeshi companies (part of the Beximco group) involved in the manufacture, export and import of pharmaceuticals. The third and fourth defendants are directors of the first and second defendants and of the fifth defendant which is their parent company. I shall refer to the third, fourth and fifth defendants collectively as "the guarantors".

12 In 1995 the Beximco group wished to raise additional working capital to be used in its commercial activities. To this end, there were meetings between the bank and, principally, Mr Chowdhury the Beximco Group Director of Finance and a director of the first and second defendants. The moneys were advanced pursuant to the terms of two "Morabaha financing agreements" which, in form, related to the sale of goods.

13 It is not in dispute that a Morabaha agreement is a sale contract recognised as valid by Islamic law whereby the seller (the financier) agrees to purchase goods desired by the buyer and to sell them to the buyer (the client) for a deferred price, the difference between the original purchase price to be paid by the financier and the deferred price payable by the client being a stated profit known to and agreed upon by both seller and buyer. In order to avoid the appearance or characteristics of a loan at interest and to provide for and preserve the features of a contract of sale, the financier purchases the goods in its own name, and the goods must come into its possession (actual or constructive), remaining at its risk until the commodity is sold to the client. However, for that purpose the financier may appoint the client as agent for the purchase on behalf of the financier and, once the client effects such purchase as the agent of the financier, the client may retain possession of the commodity on its own behalf. The detailed form and content of Morabaha agreements varies. There are no standard forms and, in practice, the detailed terms and conditions will be agreed by the bank and its customer around the essential characteristics I have mentioned. It is the function of an Islamic bank's religious supervisory board to ensure that the Morabaha agreement complies with Islamic law as interpreted by the religious supervisory board.

14 Following negotiations in which each side was advised, the bank and the first and second defendants entered into a Morabaha financing agreement dated 28 December 1995 ("the 1995 Morabaha agreement") under which, pursuant to clauses 2.1, 2.2 and 4.2, the bank agreed to purchase, through the second defendant acting as its agent, certain goods from specified sellers for immediate onward sale to the first defendant. In return, pursuant to clause 2.1, the first defendant agreed to pay to the bank the Morabaha price, defined in the agreement as the aggregate of the purchase price of goods purchased plus the profit element, calculated by reference to clause 2 of a market rate agreement also entered into between the parties. Pursuant to clause 4.5 of the Morabaha agreement, the payments to be made were set out in a letter from the bank to the defendants dated 28 December 1995 ("the 1995 payment schedule letter"). Pursuant to clause 3 of the 1995 market rate agreement, if any payment due remained unpaid for any period after its due date, compensation would be payable to the bank.

15 In accordance with clause 4.1 of the 1995

Morabaha agreement, the bank advanced to the second defendant US$15m ostensibly for the *1791 purposes of purchasing the specified goods. Between 28 March 1996 and 28 September 1997, the first defendant made seven payments in accordance with the 1995 payment schedule letter.

16 In April 1996, following an approach by the second defendant seeking further funds, the bank agreed to advance the second defendant a further sum of US$15m. On 11 July 1996 the bank and the first and second defendants entered into a further Morabaha agreement ("the 1996 Morabaha agreement") and market rate agreement in terms similar to those of the 1995 agreements.

17 In accordance with clause 4.1 of the 1996 Morabaha agreement, on 15 July 1996, the bank paid to the first defendant US$15m ostensibly for the purpose of purchasing the specified goods. Between 15 October 1996 and 12 August 1997, the second defendant made four payments in accordance with the 1996 payment schedule letter.

18 By December 1999 the first and second defendants had not paid the amounts due under the 1995 and 1996 Morabaha agreements, although admitting and agreeing in writing that such sums were owed. Following negotiations, the bank and the first and second defendants agreed to enter into new agreements to discharge the first and second defendant's obligations in exchange for the first and second defendants undertaking alternative obligations to the bank which the third, fourth and fifth defendants were to guarantee.

19 On 14 September 1999 the bank and the first and second defendants entered into two exchange in satisfaction and user agreements, one relating to the 1995 Morabaha agreement ("the first ESUA") and the other relating to the 1996 Morabaha agreement ("the second ESUA") which were each subsequently amended and restated by agreement on 4 February 2001 and 30 January 2002. The re-amended ESUAs became effective on 4 April 2002. Under clause 2.1 of the ESUAs the bank agreed to discharge on the effective date the amount then outstanding under the 1995 and 1996 Morabaha agreements in exchange for being granted the right to receive unencumbered title to certain assets. Pursuant to clauses 3.1 and 3.3, the bank agreed to grant the first and second defendants the right to use those assets in the ordinary course of their respective businesses in consideration for payment by instalments of a user fee determined in accordance with clause 3.4. The first and second defendants were also obliged to make certain payments of accrued compensation. Under clause 4.1 of the ESUAs, it was a condition precedent that the third, fourth and fifth defendants guaranteed the first and second defendant's obligations under the ESUAs.

20 The form of the ESUAs, whereby the bank, having acquired the ownership of the first and second defendant's assets, permitted their retention and use in return for regular payment of the scheduled user fees was in principle a method of financing recognised as legitimate by the Sharia as "Ijarah", the giving of something in rent. However, when that method of financing is adopted by a bank in place of a simple interest-bearing loan, the question of whether the transaction is legitimate according to the principles of Sharia depends upon an analysis of the particular terms and conditions of the agreement and may prove controversial.

21 In this case, various defaults and "termination events" provided for under the ESUAs occurred and, as the bank was entitled to do, it sent two default letters dated 18 August 2002 to the defendants under the terms of the *1792 first and second ESUAs in respect of the sums subsequently claimed in this action.

The bank's claims against the first and second defendants

22 The bank's claims against the first and second defendants are made up as follows:

"(1)US$25,207,000 being the amount due under the first ESUA relating to the 1995 Morabaha agreement;

(2)US$21,472,800 being the amount due under the second ESUA relating to the 1996 Morabaha agreement;

(3)US$1,147,540.76 being accrued compensation due under clause 4.2.4 of the first ESUA;

(4)US$1,884,169.75 being accrued compensation due under clause 4.2.4 of the second ESUA."

The bank's claims against the guarantors

23 On 6 February 2001 the bank and the third and fourth defendants entered into two personal guarantees, one relating to the first ESUA and one relating to the second ESUA ("the personal guarantees"). On the same date the bank and the fifth defendant entered into two corporate guarantees, one relating to the first ESUA and one relating to the second ESUA ("the corporate guarantees"). The guarantees were all in materially similar terms. Each states that it is "governed by and shall be construed in accordance with English law", with provision also for the jurisdiction of the English courts. There is no reference to the principles of Sharia.

24 Each guarantee recites the relevant Morabaha financing agreement, the "outstanding amount" pursuant thereto and the relevant ESUA agreement as amended.

25 The relevant provisions of the guarantee for the purposes of this appeal are as follows:

“2.1Covenant to pay Covenant to pay. In consideration of Shamil agreeing to discharge the outstanding amount in return for being granted the right to acquire title to the assets and Shamil permitting Beximco and BEIC to use the assets in return for the user fee pursuant to the exchange agreement”i.e., the ESUA-“the guarantor hereby guarantees to Shamil Beximco and BEIC's obligation to transfer title to the assets to Shamil and guarantee to pay to Shamil, on demand by Shamil, the user fee and all moneys and discharge all obligations and liabilities now or hereafter due, owing or incurred by Beximco and BEIC (or either of them as the case may be) to Shamil under or pursuant to the exchange agreement and the other new transaction documents when the same become due for payment or discharge whether by acceleration or otherwise, and whether such moneys, obligations or liabilities are express or implied, present, future or contingent, joint or several, incurred as principal or surety, originally owing to Shamil or purchased or otherwise acquired by it, denominated in dollars or in any other currency, or incurred on a banking account or any other manner whatsoever...

“2.2Guarantor as principal debtor; indemnity Guarantor as principal debtor; indemnity. As a separate and independent stipulation, the guarantor agrees that if any purported obligation or liability of Beximco and/or BEIC (as the case may be) which would have been the subject of this guarantee had it been valid and enforceable is not or ceases to be valid or enforceable against Beximco *1793 and/or BEIC (as the case may be) on any ground whatsoever whether or not known to Shamil (including, without limitation, any irregular exercise or absence of any corporate power or lack of authority of, or breach of duty by, any person purporting to act on behalf of Beximco and/or BEIC (as the case may be) or any legal or other limitation... the guarantor shall nevertheless be liable to Shamil in respect of that purported obligation or liability as if the same were fully valid and enforceable and the guarantor were the principal debtor in respect thereof...”

26 The bank claims against each of the guarantors the same sums as are claimed against the debtors as set out in para 22 above.

The issues on this appeal

27 A number of defences were advanced by the defendants before the judge below, certain of which were regarded by the judge as having the hallmarks of trumped-up defences designed to avoid or delay payment. However, the principal defence advanced was that (a) on a true construction of the governing law clause quoted in para 1 of this judgment, the Morabaha agreements and the ESUAs were only enforceable in so far as they were valid and enforceable both (i) in accordance with the principles of the Sharia (i e the rules or laws of Islam) and (ii) in accordance with English law; (b) in fact, the agreements were unlawful, invalid and unenforceable under the principles of the Sharia in that, despite their form as Morabaha agreements, in the case of the 1995 and 1996 Morabaha agreements, and as Ijarah leases, in the case of the first and second ESUAs (which would be enforceable if they were a true reflection of the underlying transaction), the transactions were in truth disguised loans at interest. As such they amounted to unlawful agreements to pay Riba and were thus void and/or unenforceable.

28 In this connection it was stated in the witness statement of Mr Chowdhury for the defendants that he made it clear that the moneys sought from the bank by the first and second defendants were required as working capital for the Beximco group and that it was the bank which required that the transaction be structured in the forms adopted in order to comply with Sharia law. The fourth defendant, as a director of the first, second and fifth defendant's and a personal guarantor of the ESUAs, stated that “it is not uncommon for banks, in their enthusiasm to make profitable loans, to use a Morabaha agreement to disguise what is, as a matter of commercial reality, an interest-bearing loan. That is precisely what happened in the present case and both the claimant and the defendants were quite content that this should happen. Neither was under any illusion as to the commercial realities of the transactions, and the claimant was happy to dress the loan transactions up as Morabaha sales (or Ijarah leases), whilst taking no interest in whether the proper formalities of such a sale or lease were actually complied with.”

29 The rival expert evidence as to the validity of the agreements under Islamic law was as follows. The bank's expert, Dr Lau, the former director of the Centre of Islamic and Middle Eastern Law, stated that the precise scope and content of Islamic law in general, and Islamic banking in particular, are marked by a degree of controversy within the Islamic world, *1794 best exemplified by the fact that the actual practice of Islamic banking differs widely within the Islamic world. Even within particular jurisdictions such as Pakistan, which are committed and constitutionally obliged to introduce Islamic financial systems, the issue is subject to ongoing debate and a high degree of uncertainty. In the absence of any agreement on the boundaries of “Islamic banking” or, indeed, on what ought to be the precise ingredients of a Morabaha agreement, it is in practice up to individual banks to determine the issue. In the absence of any legal prescription as to what does and what does not constitute Islamic banking or finance, most Islamic banks, including those in Bahrain, seek the advice of Islamic scholars who examine and approve particular agreements and forms of agreement, the role of the Religious Supervisory Committee being to formulate the bank's interpretation of the Sharia.

30 Strictly interpreted “the Glorious Sharia'a” refers to the divine law as contained in the Qur'an and Sunnah. However, most of the classical Islamic law on financial transactions is not contained as “rules” or “law” in the Qur'an and Sunnah but is based on the often divergent views held by established schools of law formed in a period roughly between 700 and 850 CE. The particular form and content of Morabaha agreements varies. If a bank's religious supervisory board is satisfied that the bank's activities are in accordance with Sharia law, that concludes the matter, there being no provision in Bahrain law, or Islamic law generally, for an appeal by a customer of the bank against the board's rulings and certifications. Finally, even if the relevant agreements amounted to agreements to pay Riba, the principal sums advanced could be validly claimed.

31 Dr Lau's conclusion was that the concern of the defendants that the sums advanced were not used to purchase the goods and/or equipment, the subject of the 1995 and 1996 Morabaha agreements, but rather as part of the general working capital of the first and second defendants was of no relevance to the question whether or not the Morabaha agreements complied with Islamic law. He stated:

“In my opinion for the Morabaha agreements to be in accordance with Islamic law all that is required is that they are certified as such by Shamil Bank's Religious Supervisory Board and the principal amounts are disbursed in accordance with the terms of the 1995 and 1996 Morabaha agreements.”

32 The position of the defendant's expert, Mr Khan, formerly Khan J, chairman of the Sharia Appellate Bench of the Supreme Court of Pakistan, shortly stated was as follows. He acknowledged that “whenever a question of interpretation of the principles contained in the Qur'an and Sunnah is involved, the application of the rules of Sharia'a has and will continue to give rise to disputes between different jurists". He also did not contradict the assertion of Dr Lau that most of the classical Islamic law on financial transactions was not to be found in the Qur'an and Sunnah. However, he made clear (as Dr Lau did not dispute) that the injunction against the payment of Riba is contained in both those holy books and that it is uncontroversial that under Islamic law interest charged on loans by banks is Riba and prohibited. Equally, any agreement in which, in substance, interest is being charged upon a loan is unlawful, void and unenforceable.

33 Mr Khan acknowledged that the Sharia recognises two modes of financing as permissible, namely Morabaha and Ijarah agreements, but *1795 asserted that, for such transactions to be valid, the requirements prescribed and provided for in the agreement must be fulfilled, failing which the transaction as a whole will be void according to the principles and rules of Sharia. On the basis of the (uncontradicted) assertion of the defendants that the advances were never applied or intended to be applied in the purchase or lease of any property, the relevant agreements were void. The ESUAs were similarly void and unenforceable on the basis of a number of arguments advanced, the principal one of which was that, irrespective of their form as purported Ijarah leases of assets, the ESUAs simply constituted a rescheduling or roll-over of the 1995 and 1996 Morabaha agreements, the bank charging interest or an additional amount over and above the sums due in consideration of the giving of time. This too was Riba and accordingly prohibited and void.

34 Finally, so far as the position of the bank's religious supervisory board was concerned, Mr Khan stated that certification by the board that the operations of the bank were according to the Sharia would not be a decision binding on any court dealing with the dispute under the law of Sharia. The dispute would fall to be resolved by the court in the light of its own view of the position under Sharia law. In any event there was no evidence that the board had had knowledge of, nor was it required to approve, the particular transaction in this case, its function being one of overall supervision and approval of the methods and procedures adopted by the bank in the course of its business.

35 So far as the liability of the guarantors was concerned, two arguments were advanced before the judge which are of relevance to this appeal. The first was simply that, under the general law of guarantee, if the principal debtor was discharged from liability in respect of the obligations guaranteed, then the guarantors were similarly discharged.

36 The second defence raised was that the guarantees had been entered into by the parties on the basis of a common mistake of a fundamental nature, namely that the first and second defendants were under enforceable obligations to the bank under the Morabaha agreements at the time when, and in respect of which, the ESUAs and guarantees were entered into.

The decision of Morison J

37 The paragraph numbers referred to in this section reflect the numbered paragraphs of the judgment of Morison J [2003] 2 All ER (Comm) 849.

38 The judge held, and it is accepted by the bank on this appeal, that if, on a proper construction of the applicable law clause, the court is obliged to concern itself with the application of Sharia law and its impact on the lawfulness of the agreements, it is arguable which of the two parties' experts was right and that it would offend the principles underlying CPR Pt 24 to seek to resolve the conflict between them before a trial. That is so not only in respect of the recoverability of sums which were effectively interest upon the capital sums advanced, but also of the capital sums themselves: pp 857–858, paras 32 and 33.

39 However the judge concluded that, on the proper construction of the applicable law clause, he was not concerned with the principles of Sharia at all for the following reasons.

40 First, it was common ground by concession that there could not be two separate systems of law governing the contract: p 857, para 30. Yet, by *1796 contending that Sharia law and not English law would determine the enforceability of the agreement, the appellants were in substance contending that the agreements were governed both by English and Sharia law: p 858, para 35. The judge declined to construe the wording of the clause as a choice of Sharia law as the governing law for the following reasons. First, article 3(1) of the Rome Convention on the Law Applicable to Contractual Obligations (which by section 2\(1\) of the Contracts \(Applicable Law\) Act 1990 has the force of law in the United Kingdom) contemplates that a contract “shall be governed by the law chosen by the parties” and article 1(1) of the Rome Convention makes it clear that the reference to the parties' choice of the law to govern a contract is a reference to the law of a country. There is no provision for the choice or application of a non-national system of law such as Sharia law: pp 856, 858 and 859, paras 27, 35 and 38. In any event, the principles of the Sharia are not simply principles of law but principles which apply to other aspects of life and behaviour: p 859, para 38. Even treating the principles of Sharia as principles of law, the application of such principles in relation to matters of commerce and banking were plainly matters of controversy: pp 858 and 859, paras 36 and 39. In particular there is controversy as to the strictness with which principles of Sharia law will be interpreted or applied. In consequence it was highly improbable that the parties to the agreements intended an English court to determine any dispute as to the nature or application of such controversial religious principles which would involve it in the task of deciding between opposing points of view which themselves might be based on geopolitical and particular religious beliefs:

41 The judge accepted the submission of the bank that the words “subject to the principles of Glorious Sharia'a” were no more than a reference to the fact that the bank purported to conduct all its affairs according to the principles of Sharia. However, in respect of what those principles were and their effect upon the contract, the judge concluded the relevant part of his judgment as follows, at p 859:

“39. Whilst in one sense this court will answer any question posed of it, however difficult, it is improbable, in the extreme, that the parties were truly asking this court to get into matters of Islamic religion and orthodoxy. This is especially so when the bank has its own religious board to monitor the compliance of the bank with the board's own perception of Islamic principles of law in an international banking context.

“40. So far as the bank was concerned, that is likely to have been sufficient for its own regulatory purposes and there is no suggestion that the defendants were in any way concerned about the principles of Sharia'a law either at the time the agreement was made or at any time before the proceedings were started. The Sharia'a law defence is, I think, a lawyer's construct but, for the reasons I have given, in my view it does not work.”

The submissions of the appellants

42 Before this court, Mr Hacker for the appellants has not resiled from his concession that there can only be one governing law of the agreements. He accepts, and indeed asserts that it was his case below, that the governing law is English law and English law alone. However, he submits that this *1797 does not preclude the possibility that the principles of Sharia have relevance. He submits that all the parties have done is to choose English law as the governing law but, at the same time to stipulate as a condition precedent that the contract is only to be enforceable in so far as it is consistent with the principles of Sharia, which principles amount to legal rules ascertainable and applicable by an English court. He submits that that is something different from an assertion that Sharia law governs the agreements.

43 Mr Hacker accepts that the Rome Convention precludes the choice of Sharia, as a governing law, being concerned only with a potential choice between the laws of different countries. However, he submits that the construction of the governing law clause for which he contends produces a result no different from the incorporation by reference of a codified system of rules, such as the Hague Rules or the Warsaw Convention, into a contract governed by English law (cf [Nea Agrex SA v Baltic Shipping Co Ltd \[1976\] QB 933](#)) in which this court rejected the conclusion of Donaldson J at first instance that a paramount clause provision was to be treated as ineffective to incorporate the Hague Rules into a charterparty. He submits that such a construction is fully consistent with the bank's self-proclaimed mode of business as an Islamic bank carrying on an Islamic banking business.

44 Mr Hacker submits that, contrary to the view of the judge, it is neither unusual nor improbable that the parties to the contract should intend the English court to determine and apply the Sharia, nor, as he submits, is the English court ill-equipped to do so when assisted by expert evidence, in which respect he refers to the decision of Moore-Bick J in Glencore International AG v Metro Trading International Inc [2001] 1 Lloyd's Rep 283, 313–315, paras 113–125 and that of Hart J in [Al-Bassam v Al-Bassam \[2002\] EWHC 2281](#) (Ch).

45 He further submits that the reasoning of the judge was influenced by an erroneous view that the principles of Sharia constituted a body of controversial religious (as opposed to legal) principles, which view he was wrong to form on the evidence before him. In this respect, Mr Hacker relies heavily upon the fact that the evidence of Mr Khan was that the principles of Sharia raised in this case, i.e. the proscription of Riba and the essentials of a valid Morabaha agreement, are not controversial. In this respect he referred us to the judgment of Tomlinson J in Islamic Investment Co of the Gulf \(Bahamas\) Ltd v Symphony Gems NV \(unreported\) 13 February 2002 in which, it is clear that, when giving expert evidence in that case, Dr Lau did not suggest that there was any difficulty in identifying the requirements for an effective Morabaha contract under Sharia law. He therefore submits that the judge's conclusion that the principles of Sharia law relevant to this case were controversial, so as to render it improbable that the parties would have chosen the English court to resolve a dispute as to the enforceability of the agreements, was incorrect or, at the very least, involved him in conducting a mini-trial in relation to the parties' expert evidence contrary to the principles laid down in [Swain v Hillman \[2001\] 1 All ER 91](#).

Discussion

The governing law clause

46 The central question in this appeal is one of construction in respect of the relevant “governing law” clause, expressly so described and couched in the short form already quoted in para 1 of this judgment. The task of 1798 construction is to ascertain the presumed intention of the parties bearing in mind that

“In a commercial contract it is certainly right that the court should know the commercial purpose of the contract and this in turn presupposes knowledge of the genesis of the transaction, the background, the context, the market in which the parties are operating”: [Reardon Smith Line Ltd v Yngvar Hansen-Tangen \(trading as H E Hansen-Tangen\) \[1976\] 1 WLR 989](#), 995–996, per Lord Wilberforce.

47 It is common ground in the context of the summary judgment application that, when the parties entered into the Morabaha agreements and subsequently, neither side was under any illusion as to the commercial realities of the transactions, namely the provision by the bank of working capital on terms providing for long term repayment, and both were content “to dress the loan transactions up as Morabaha sales (or Ijarah leases), whilst taking no interest in whether the proper formalities of such a sale or lease were actually complied with” (see para 28 above). Nor, as Mr Hacker expressly accepted at the outset, was it ever intended in relation to any of the agreements made that they should be other than binding on the parties. In those circumstances, as it seems to me, the court, in approaching its task, should lean against a construction which would or might defeat the commercial purpose of the agreements. Accordingly, in so far as each of the clauses provides in clear terms that “this agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of England”, the proviso that such provision shall be “subject to the principles of the Glorious Sharia'a” should be approached on a basis which is reconcilable with the purpose evident from the words which follow, rather than operating to defeat such purpose.

48 It is conceded by Mr Hacker that there cannot be two governing laws in respect of these agreements. He further concedes that the governing law is that of England. It seems to me that he is rightly driven to this concession. The wording of article 1(1) of the Rome Convention (“The rules of this Convention shall apply to contractual obligations in any situation involving a choice between the laws of different countries”) is not on the face of it applicable to a choice between the law of a country and a non-national system of law, such as the lex mercatoria, or “general principles of law”, or as in this case, the law of Sharia. Nevertheless, that wording, taken with article 3(1) (“A contract shall be governed by the law chosen by the parties”) and the reference to choice of a “foreign law” in article 3(3), makes it clear that the Convention as a whole only contemplates and sanctions the choice of the law of a country: cf Dicey & Morris, The Conflict of Laws, 13th ed (2000), vol 2, p 1223, para 32–079 and Briggs, The Conflict of Laws (2002), p 159.

49 Mr Hacker thus opts for a construction that the wording is apt, and intended, to incorporate into English law for the purposes of its application to the contract, the “principles of... Sharia”. In this respect, and no doubt to avoid the difficulty that the principles of Sharia, generally stated, are of broad nature and application (indeed they are unexplored for the purposes of this litigation), Mr Hacker argues that the clause should be read as incorporating simply those specific rules of Sharia which relate to interest and to the nature of Morabaha and Ijarah contracts, thus qualifying the choice of English law as the governing law only to that extent.*1799

50 In that respect, he seeks to rely upon the passage in Dicey & Morris, 13th ed, vol 2, p 1226, para 32–086, which expounds the distinction between reference to a foreign law as a choice of law to govern the contract (or part of a contract) on the one hand and incorporation of some provisions of a foreign law as a term or terms of the contract in question. While observing that it is sometimes difficult to draw the distinction in practice, it is there stated that

“32–086... It is open to the parties to an English contract to agree, e g that the liability of an agent to his principal shall be determined in accordance with the relevant articles of the French Civil Code. In such a case the foreign law becomes a source of law upon which the governing law may draw. The effect is not to make French law the governing law of the contract but rather to incorporate the French articles as contractual terms into an English contract. This is a convenient 'shorthand' alternative to setting out the French articles verbatim. The court will then have to construe the English contract, 'Treading into it as if they were written into it the words' of the French statute.

"32–087. It often happens that statutes governing the liability of a sea carrier, such as the former Harter Act in the United States, or statutes implementing the Hague Rules... are thus 'incorporated' in a contract governed by a law other than that of which the statute forms part. The statute then operates not as a statute but as a set of contractual terms agreed upon between the parties. The parties may make an express choice of one law (e.g. English law) and then incorporate the terms of a foreign statute. In such a case the incorporation of the foreign statute would only have effect as a matter of contract."

51 It does not seem to me that the passage cited or the authorities referred to in the notes thereto, assist the defendants. The doctrine of incorporation can only sensibly operate where the parties have by the terms of their contract sufficiently identified specific "black letter" provisions of a foreign law or an international code or set of rules apt to be incorporated as terms of the relevant contract such as a particular article or articles of the French Civil Code or the Hague Rules. By that method, English law is applied as the governing law to a contract into which the foreign rules have been incorporated. In such a case, in construing and applying those rules, where there is ambiguity or doubt as to their ambit or effect, it may be appropriate for the court to have regard to evidence from experts in foreign law as to the way in which the provisions identified have been interpreted and applied in their "home" jurisdiction. However, that is still only as an end to interpretation by the English court in the course of applying English law and rules of construction to the contract with which it is concerned. The authority of [Nea Agrex SA v Baltic Shipping Co Ltd \[1976\] QB 933](#) is no more than an illustration of this. The trial judge had held that a reference in the contract to the incorporation of a "paramount clause" was ineffective for uncertainty, finding that he could not say whether the parties intended to incorporate the Hague Rules or part of the Hague Rules or, if so, which part. However, the Court of Appeal held that the clear meaning of "paramount clause" was that

"It brings the Hague Rules into the charterparty so as to render the voyage, or voyages, subject to the Hague Rules, so far as applicable *1800 thereto; and it makes those rules prevail over any of the exceptions in the charterparty. The judge, however, took a different view. He said that there are many different paramount clauses and he could not say which of them was applicable... I do not share the judge's view. It seems to me that when the 'paramount clause' is incorporated, without any words of qualification, it means that all the Hague Rules are incorporated. If the parties intend only to incorporate part of the rules (for example article IV), or only so far as compulsorily applicable, they say so. In the absence of any such qualification, it seems to me that a 'clause paramount' is a clause which incorporates all the Hague Rules": per Lord Denning MR, at pp 943–944.

52 The general reference to principles of Sharia in this case affords no reference to, or identification of, those aspects of Sharia law which are intended to be incorporated into the contract, let alone the terms in which they are framed. It is plainly insufficient for the defendants to contend that the basic rules of the Sharia applicable in this case are not controversial. Such "basic rules" are neither referred to nor identified. Thus the reference to the "principles of... Sharia" stands unqualified as a reference to the body of Sharia law generally. As such, they are inevitably repugnant to the choice of English law as the law of the contract and render the clause self-contradictory and therefore meaningless.

53 In these circumstances, having rightly conceded that English law is the governing law of the contract, Mr Hacker is left with little room for manoeuvre, save to assert that the court should accept his submission on the basis that otherwise the proviso to the governing law clause would be mere surplusage.

54 I do not agree. It seems to me that there is an appropriate alternative construction, namely that favoured by the judge, i.e. that the words are intended simply to reflect the Islamic religious principles according to which the bank holds itself out as doing business rather than a system of law intended to “trump” the application of English law as the law to be applied in ascertaining the liability of the parties under the terms of the agreement. English law is a law commonly adopted internationally as the governing law for banking and commercial contracts, having a well known and well developed jurisprudence in that respect which is not open to doubt or disputation on the basis of religious or philosophical principle. I share the judge's view that, having chosen English law as the governing law, it would be both unusual and improbable for the parties to intend that the English court should proceed to determine and apply the Sharia in relation to the legality or enforceability of the obligations clearly set out in the contract. Reference to authority does not assist the defendants in this respect. In Glencore International AG v Metro Trading International Inc [2001] 1 Lloyd's Rep 283 the judge was concerned with, and heard evidence in relation to, the meaning and scope of the word “ghasb” (misappropriation) as a term used but undefined in article 1326 of the Fujairah Civil Code which was the governing law in the case before him. As such he was obliged to interpret and apply the term in the dispute before him, with the assistance of rival experts in the law of Fujairah. The decision has no relevance to this case. As to the decision in [Al-Bassam v Al-Bassam \[2002\] EWHC 2281](#) (Ch) the court was concerned with Sharia law as being the law which the parties agreed was the law of succession applied in Saudi Arabia as the *1801 country of the deceased's domicile at the date of his death. Again, it has no relevance to this case, other than demonstrating that, where it is clear that a particular system of law governs a dispute before the English court, the court is obliged to apply it, with the assistance of expert evidence. Neither case was concerned with the construction of a disputed choice of law clause.

55 Finally, so far as the “principles of... Sharia” are concerned, it was the evidence of both experts that there are indeed areas of considerable controversy and difficulty arising not only from the need to translate into propositions of modern law texts which centuries ago were set out as religious and moral codes, but because of the existence of a variety of schools of thought with which the court may have to concern itself in any given case before reaching a conclusion upon the principle or rule in dispute. The fact that there may be general consensus upon the proscription of Riba and the essentials of a valid Morabaha agreement does no more than indicate that, if the Sharia law proviso were sufficient to incorporate the principles of Sharia law into the parties' agreements, the defendants would have been likely to succeed. However, since I would hold that the proviso is plainly inadequate for that purpose, the validity of the contract and the defendant's obligations thereunder fall to be decided according to English law. It is conceded in this appeal that, if that is so, the first and second defendants are liable to the bank.

The guarantor's liability

56 It has necessarily been conceded that, if that is so, then the guarantors are similarly liable. The sole point relied on in this appeal to avoid their liability is the plea that the bank and the guarantors entered into the guarantees on the basis of a mutual mistake, namely that the ESUAs constituted a binding obligation on the part of the bank to discharge a pre-existing enforceable ble obligation, i e payment of the outstanding amounts as defined in the ESUAs. In this connection the guarantors rely upon the general law of guarantee and the fact that the opening line of the covenant to pay in clause 2.1 of the guarantees expressly made clear that they were given in consideration of the bank agreeing to discharge the outstanding amount under the Morabaha agreements.

57 Although it is not necessary so to decide, I consider that the judge was correct in his view that a common mistake as to the legal consequences of the Morabaha agreements in this case would not qualify as a mistake apt to give rise to a defence.

58 Mr Hacker relies on recent authority to submit that, for the doctrine of mutual mistake to be operative at common law, it is no longer necessary for it to be a mistake of fact as opposed to a “mere” mistake of law. He relies upon the decision of the [House of Lords in Kleinwort Benson Ltd v Lincoln City Council \[1999\] 2 AC 349](#), in which the House of Lords held that there is no rule that only a mistake of fact would entitle a party to claim restitution on the grounds of mistake; also upon the statement of the position in Chitty on Contracts, 28th ed (1999), p 303, para 5–018 and the recent decision of Morland J in [Brennan v Bolt Burdon \[2004\] 1 WLR 1240](#) concerning the setting aside of a compromise agreement on the grounds of mistake of law when that agreement had been reached on the basis of a decision of the court of first instance which was subsequently overturned by the Court of Appeal. In coming to his decision that the agreement should be set aside, Morland J relied upon the speeches of Lord Goff of Chieveley and Lord *1802 Hoffmann in the [Kleinwort Benson case \[1999\] 2 AC 349](#), 379f and 398–399 respectively and the paragraph in Chitty, as well as upon persuasive Commonwealth authority. Assuming, without deciding, that the decision of Morland J was correct, it was none the less reached upon the basis that the partie's common mistaken assumption as to the law “was the fundamental basis for and precondition of the compromise agreement, indeed its only springboard” [\[2004\] 1 WLR 1240](#), 1253, para 52.

59 Before this court Mr Hacker has submitted that the mistake as to Sharia law was properly to be regarded as a mistake of fact by analogy with the position in respect of a mistake of foreign law: see Furness Withy (Australia) Pty Ltd v Metal Distributers (UK) Ltd [1990] 1 Lloyd's Rep 236, 250, per Dillon LJ.

60 If that analogy is correct, it is of course necessary for the guarantors to show that the mistake is such as to “render the subject matter of the contract essentially and radically different from the subject matter which the parties believed to exist” ([Associated Japanese Bank \(International Ltd\) v Crédit du Nord SA \[1989\] 1 WLR 255](#), 268, per Steyn J) or that it renders the thing contracted for “essentially different from the thing as it was believed to be” ([Bell v Lever Bros Ltd \[1932\] AC 161](#), 218, per Lord Atkin, as adopted and confirmed by this court in [Great Peace Shipping Ltd v Tsavliris Salvage \(International\) Ltd \[2003\] QB 679](#), 694, para 47). Whether the mistake asserted should rightly be regarded as a mistake of fact or of law, it is plain to me that it is not a mistake based on a common assumption fundamental to the agreements in question. In that respect, the submissions of Mr Hacker inevitably founder upon the factual assertions of the defendants themselves, which demonstrate that their sole interest was to obtain advances of funds to be used as working capital and that they were indifferent to the form of the agreements required by the bank or the impact of Sharia law upon their validity.

Conclusion

61 In my view the judge was correct in the conclusion to which he came, broadly for the reasons which he gave. I would dismiss this appeal.

1. IMPORTANT NOTICE

This Users Guide has been prepared for the Loan Market Association ("LMA") as a consequence of the growing market for Islamic finance products amongst LMA members. This guide follows the structure of the Users Guide produced by the LMA in connection with the recommended forms of primary loan agreements (the "Primary Documents"). Whilst every care has been taken in the preparation of this Users Guide, no representation or warranty is given by the LMA, Clifford Chance LLP ("Clifford Chance") or any other member of the Users Guide Working Group as to:

- the suitability of any of the suggested solutions or explanations provided in this Users Guide for any particular transaction; and
- the accuracy or completeness of the contents of this Users Guide.

This Users Guide provides limited guidance only on how terms commonly seen in the Primary Documents are imported into a typical Islamic facility. The Users Guide focuses on murabaha facilities and is intended to be a practical guide, rather than scholarly analysis of the relevant issues and is not intended to be a comprehensive analysis of Islamic finance structures. However, aspects of this Users Guide will be applicable in helping develop a wider understanding amongst LMA members of issues that arise in all types of Islamic financing transactions.

Users should satisfy themselves as to the taxation, regulatory and accounting implications of any Islamic finance transactions that they enter into.

The LMA, Clifford Chance and members of the Users Guide Working Group are not liable for any losses suffered by any person as a result of any contract made on the terms suggested or described in this Users Guide or which may arise from the presence of any errors or omissions in this Users Guide and no proceedings shall be taken by any person in relation to such losses.

For the avoidance of doubt, where specific clauses have been considered in this Users Guide, their sole intended purpose is to be used as a starting point for consideration. Individual financiers are free to depart from their terms.

2. INTRODUCTION

2.1 Purpose and Scope

The purpose of this Users Guide is to:

- help promote liquidity for Islamic products amongst LMA members and the banking market generally;
- consider how provisions of the Primary Documents may be addressed or otherwise dealt with in Islamic facilities; and
- serve as an introductory guide for new investors in Islamic facilities or investors who are not yet fully familiar with structures seen in the Islamic finance market.

The LMA has produced a "Users Guide to the Recommended Form of Primary Documents" (last updated in January 2007) and a similar format has been followed for the purposes of this Users Guide.

The principal form of Islamic facility which is described in this Users Guide is a murabaha facility. Reference is made both to a traditional murabaha (as further described in Section 2.5(a)) and the term reverse murabaha or 'tawarruq' (as further described in Section 2.5(b)). Whilst this is the Islamic finance product that is most typically seen as being analogous to a conventional, syndicated facility, many of the issues addressed in the Users Guide are also relevant in the context of other Islamic financing structures, including ijara facilities and musharakas. (See Section 2.5 below for a summary of the principal Islamic financing structures).

2.2 Evolution of the Islamic Finance Market

Islamic finance has grown at a rate of 15 per cent per annum for each of the last three years and, at the date of issue of this Users Guide, is estimated to be worth USD300bn per annum. With the introduction of a licensed Islamic retail and investment bank in the UK and the Finance Act 2005 creating a level playing field between certain Islamic products and their conventional counterparts, the industry is no longer specific to the Middle East and South East Asia but must now be seen as both a global industry and a real alternative to certain conventional financing arrangements.

The current unprecedented level of interest in Islamic finance has been generated by a growth in the wealth of a number of Islamic states together with a change in the socio-political climate in the world over the last few years. This has led to greater demand for opportunities which allow Muslims to invest in accordance with their personal beliefs and in the manner prescribed by Islam. These investments have been made on the basis of traditional techniques and structures that have been available for centuries but which have evolved and been refined, within the parameters of Islamic jurisprudence, to accommodate modern financial institutions and modern financing requirements.

2.3 Overview of the Main Features of Islamic Banking

Islamic banking transactions are based on Islamic principles and jurisprudence (Shari'a) which are derived from a number of sources, including, primarily, the Qu'ran. These principles must be kept in mind when trying to determine the Islamic acceptability of proposed financing techniques. Shari'a is not a codified system of law and interpretations of the key principles can vary, particularly between the different "schools of thought". The four main schools are Shafi (followed predominantly in the Far East e.g. Malaysia), Hanbali (followed predominantly in the Middle East e.g. Saudi Arabia), Hanafi (followed predominantly in South East Asia e.g. Pakistan) and Maliki (followed predominantly in Africa).

Some of the key principles include the following:

(a) Speculation (maisir)

Under Islamic law, contracts which involve speculation are not permissible (haram) and are considered void. Islamic law does not, however, prohibit general commercial speculation (which is evident in most commercial transactions). The concern is to prohibit forms of speculation which are regarded as akin to gambling. The test is whether something has been gained by chance, rather than by productive effort.

In each case, the commercial substance of the transaction must be analysed to evaluate whether or not it is permissible under Islamic law.

(b) Unjust enrichment/Unfair exploitation

Contracts where one party is regarded as having unjustly gained at the expense of another also are considered void under Islamic law. The Shari'a principle of unjust enrichment is wide in its scope; whilst it applies to an enrichment of one party at the expense of another which cannot be justified, it also extends to the enrichment of one party who exercises undue influence or duress over another. For example, it is not possible for a creditor to benefit financially from penalising a non-performing or defaulting debtor by charging and retaining a default fee. It is, however, usually permitted to charge a default fee and pay the proceeds of that fee to charity, since it is considered that the obligation to pay this fee would serve to encourage the debtor to discharge its contractual obligations in a timely manner.

(c) Interest (riba)

Under Islamic law, money is regarded as having no intrinsic value and also no time value - it is seen merely as a means of exchange. Islamic principles require that any return on funds provided by the financiers be earned by way of profit derived from a commercial risk taken by the financiers. The payment and receipt of interest (riba) under Islamic law is prohibited and any obligation to pay interest is considered void.

(d) Uncertainty (gharrar)

Contracts which contain uncertainty (gharrar), particularly any uncertainty as to one of the fundamental terms of the contract (such as subject matter, price or time for delivery), are again considered void under Islamic law. The Islamic principle of gharrar is wide as it requires absolute certainty on all fundamental terms. In addition, the Shari'a does not permit a contract where uncertainty may arise out of the actual subject matter or substance of a contract. For example, a conventional insurance arrangement is not permissible on the basis of, amongst other things, uncertainty (gharrar), it being uncertain whether the insured event will occur.

(e) Unethical investments

Proceeds raised through Islamic financing cannot be used for the purposes of purchasing or investing in products that are prohibited under Shari'a law. These include alcohol, pornography and gambling.

2.4 Shari'a Board/Committee

Most Islamic banks or conventional banks that have an Islamic 'window' (i.e. banks who have capital committed to Islamic business) have a religious board which scrutinises proposed transactions to ensure compliance with Islamic precepts and maintains an overall review of the bank's financing methods and operations. This board is referred to as the bank's Shari'a board or committee.

The board comprises a number of eminent Islamic scholars, who meet at regular intervals to discuss policy and/or specific transactions. Although a single issue may give rise to differing views held by different Shari'a boards as a result of the various schools of thought within Islamic jurisprudence, this is partly mitigated by the fact that the four main schools of thought within Islamic jurisprudence are in mutual agreement on the majority of issues. In addition, many modern day scholars sit on the Shari'a boards of a number of different Islamic institutions.

The relevant Shari'a board will issue its "fatwa" (religious order) as a condition to the transaction proceeding. Following this initial approval, there is usually no need for any subsequent review as to whether a particular financing remains Shari'a compliant in the opinion of the relevant Shari'a board.

2.5 Islamic Financing Techniques

A number of financing techniques have been developed to comply with Islamic principles. They tend to have a common reliance on physical assets as a fundamental part of the contract, since this is a classic method of addressing speculation and riba concerns. Another possibility is to demonstrate that the financiers have assumed some responsibility for the commercial risk inherent in the underlying venture. Sometimes these approaches are combined.

Whilst details of the main structures are set out below, readers should note that many variations of these structures are seen in the Islamic finance market.

(a) Murabaha (cost plus financing)

This method of Islamic financing is frequently used in trade financing arrangements and has also been used for the acquisition of shares. The financier will buy the asset in question from the Supplier (either directly or through an agent (who is often its customer acting in a different capacity)) and will then on-sell the asset to the customer at an agreed marked-up price. The financier may hold title to the asset for a brief period, perhaps just a few seconds, but the profit generated by the financier on the marked-up sale price is nevertheless regarded as a profit derived from a sale of goods transaction and is not therefore prohibited as interest paid on monies lent. The marked up sale price may be payable immediately or deferred for payment at a later date. Typically, the mark-up charged will be based on a benchmark such as LIBOR plus a margin, so the economic effect is similar to an interest calculation under a conventional facility.

The principal steps of a murabaha transaction are as follows:

- (i) The customer indicates an interest to purchase a particular asset from the financier for a certain price (a combination of cost price plus profit) at a certain time (the utilisation date).
- (ii) The financier acquires the asset and offers to sell it to the customer. (Often the financier will appoint the customer as its agent to acquire the asset on the financier's behalf.)
- (iii) The customer accepts the offer and the financier immediately sells the asset to the customer, with payment due on the agreed date in the future.

The murabaha agreement will also contain the covenant package for the transaction as well as financier protection provisions such as indemnities.

Whilst the contracts scheduled to the murabaha agreement will only be entered into between the financier and the customer (in each case in the appropriate capacities as buyer, seller or agent), the financier could be a party to a murabaha agreement as a fronting entity for a syndicate of other financiers, e.g. as mudareb under a mudaraba agreement, or as Investment Agent under an investment agency agreement. A mudaraba agreement or investment agency agreement (both referred to as "funding agreements") will contain the funding mechanics as between the financiers and also voting and sharing provisions. Accordingly, the murabaha agreement and relevant funding agreement together will contain provisions analogous to those in one of the Primary Documents.

(b) Tawarruq/Reverse Murabaha

This product is a relatively new development in Islamic finance. The tawarruq facility enables Shari'a compliant funding for customers who require a cash sum to be advanced to them.

In general terms, the financier (either directly or indirectly) purchases an asset at market value for spot delivery and spot payment and then immediately sells the asset at an agreed mark-up price to the customer on a spot delivery and deferred payment basis. The customer then immediately sells the asset at market value to a third party for spot delivery and spot payment. (The third sale contract is often documented separately to avoid any inference that the three back-to-back sale contracts are merely a disguised loan.)

The end result is that the customer receives a cash amount and has a deferred payment obligation for the marked-up price to the financier. Under a conventional facility, the primary risk is that of the borrowing entity whereas under a tawarruq structure, the financier takes both asset risk and risk on the third party Supplier (in addition to the customer risk).

As with a murabaha financing, the financier that is a party to the tawarruq could be acting on behalf of other financiers pursuant to a funding agreement.

The concept of a "revolving" tawarruq has also been developed in recent years. Whilst this is akin to a conventional revolving facility in certain respects, the 'rollover' mechanics are dealt with differently. There are a number of different methods used to deal with rollovers on Islamic facilities but the most common approach, albeit not universally accepted, is to 'net-off' the cashflows from each of the maturing and new Murabaha Contracts on the equivalent of the "rollover date". This is usually done pursuant to a "netting letter" between Broker A, the Investment Agent, the Purchaser and Broker B, whereby the four parties will agree to the netting of the cashflows. The settlement risk is usually mitigated to some extent by having all the relevant currency accounts held with the same Account Financier.

(c) Ijara (lease)

This is Islamic financing's equivalent of leasing and may be seen as a hybrid between conventional operating and finance leases. As with murabaha financings, ijara rental payments will reflect an agreed profit element (again, typically calculated using LIBOR as a benchmark) and comparisons with rentals on conventional leases (where interest considerations would often be relevant) can readily be made. If the intention is to provide the lessee with title to the goods at the end of the lease this can be achieved through a variant of ijara called ijara wa-iktina.

Unlike a finance lease, the obligation to insure and undertake any major maintenance to the leased asset remains with the lessor, although the lessor will typically appoint the lessee as its service agent or manager with responsibility for discharging these obligations. In addition, the lessee is only responsible for payment of rent whilst the use of the asset continues. If, therefore, the lessee is no longer able to use the leased asset due to its total destruction, the lease payments will cease. In these circumstances, however, to the extent insurance proceeds are not sufficient or are not paid within an agreed period, it may be a requirement for the lessee (in its capacity as service agent or manager) to compensate the lessor for a failure to arrange adequate insurance, although there are divergent views amongst Shari'a scholars on this point.

The lessor could be acting on behalf of other financiers under a funding agreement. Typically, the covenant package would be contained in the lease agreement, save for those particular covenants that address the obligations of the servicer (which will be included in the Service Agency Agreement).

As there are certain issues that need careful consideration as a result of risks inherent from the use of an ijara structure (such as owner liability, regulatory and tax issues), there is occasionally a preference in some jurisdictions for an SPV to own the relevant asset and act as lessor rather than a financial institution. As a result, in those markets it is quite common to see the use of an SPV with the facility structured so that the SPV borrows funds under a conventional facility and then uses these funds to acquire an asset and lease it to the relevant customer under a Shari'a compliant ijara structure. (It should also be noted that for similar reasons, SPVs are sometimes also used in other Islamic structures (including murabahas.)

(d) Musharaka (equity financing)

Under a simple musharaka arrangement, the financier and the customer provide financing for a project in agreed proportions in the form of either cash contributions or contributions in kind. The musharaka partners share the profit in agreed proportions but losses are shared in proportion to their initial investment. The customer will usually act as manager of the musharaka with the responsibility for investing the musharaka assets to earn a return for the musharaka partners. Typically, the profit sharing arrangements are structured in a way that ensures the financier receives his initial contribution plus an agreed profit. The party providing the management or technical expertise may charge a fee, although typically this will be nominal.

A variation of this is the diminishing musharaka where the investment participation of the financier decreases gradually over time as its ownership interest is transferred to the customer, in return for payment.

A financier could enter into the musharaka on behalf of other financiers under a funding agreement.

The management agreement would usually contain the covenant package and, upon an event of default, the customer will be obliged to buy out the financier's share of the musharaka at a price that will be calculated in a way that ensures that the financier would be entitled to the full amount of its investment plus anticipated profit (as at the relevant date) being repaid.

(e) Mudaraba (participation financing) and Investment Agency Agreements

A mudaraba is a contractual arrangement between a group of investors (Rab al Maal) and a manager (Mudareb). The investors put up capital which the manager invests. This arrangement is flexible and may be used in a number of ways. For example, it may be:

- considered akin to a funded participation arrangement in conventional financing where the investors are similar to the participants who provide funds to the grantor or, in this case, Mudareb, who in turn has a direct relationship with the customer; and
- used for the establishment of investment funds with the fund manager acting as Mudareb. Customers subscribe to the mudaraba fund where the Mudareb exercises its professional investment skills.

Although the Mudareb can be any entity, the Mudareb's investments have to be Shari'a compliant. In each case, the Mudareb will charge a fee for providing its expertise, customarily a proportion of the profits. Savings accounts operated by Islamic financiers operate on this basis, striving to provide a rate of return which is comparable to conventional savings accounts by investing those funds in Shari'a compliant transactions.

A mudaraba arrangement can also be used as part of a syndicated murabaha facility with the financiers as the Rab al Maal and the Mudareb as the fronting entity.

An investment agency agreement is a common alternative structure. The main distinctions between a Mudareb and an Investment Agent are that:

- an Investment Agent has very limited autonomy and will often act on specific instructions from the financiers;
- a Mudareb will often have more autonomy with regard to management of the funding;
- a Mudareb (at least in Shari'a) is perceived to underwrite the financing so the Purchaser is reliant solely upon the Mudareb for funding and not the Participants (although the Mudareb will share its profits with the Participants); and
- a Mudareb can set-off any losses it may make firstly against any profits it may generate and, to the extent such profits are insufficient, against the capital provided by the Rab-al-Maal.

Current market preference is to use an investment agency structure on the basis that this is most similar to the 'facility agent/bank' role in a conventional facility and an equivalent to a Mudareb-financier relationship is generally not contemplated under a conventional facility. This Users Guide therefore uses the term Investment Agent in the remainder of this document.

(f) Istisna'a (construction financing)

An Istisna'a is used for the advance funding of major industrial projects or large items of equipment such as ships or aircraft where the financiers fund the supplier, acquire title to the equipment on completion and immediately pass title to the purchaser on agreed deferred payment terms or lease the asset to the developer under an ijara-wa-iktina.

(g) Bai salam (forward financing)

This technique may be used to provide working capital. Essentially bai salam financing is a forward financing transaction where the financiers pay in advance for the purchase of specified assets which the seller will supply on a pre-agreed date. As a mode of financing, the financiers are able to acquire the assets by advance payment at a discounted price. The financiers may sell the asset to be acquired on delivery for an increased price or may enter into a parallel bai salam contract. The sale by the financiers will not be back to the original seller. This financing technique can be used when providing a pre-export facility.

(h) Sukuk (Islamic Bond)

A sukuk is a type of certificate or note which represents or evidences a proportionate interest in an underlying tangible asset and revenue. It is a negotiable instrument which, depending on the underlying asset, can be sold and purchased in the secondary market. It is used in conjunction with another underlying Islamic structure such as a musharaka or an ijara. In the latter, for example, lease revenues form the profit to be passed to the sukuk holders and the sukuk holders will have a pro rata ownership interest in the asset being leased. The purchaser of a sukuk replaces the seller in the pro rata ownership of the relevant assets and acquires all the rights and obligations of the original subscriber. Although the sukuk may be considered the Islamic equivalent of a bond or capital market debt instrument, it is important to distinguish between a sukuk and a conventional bond. The sukuk is an asset based security where the primary credit risk is that of the issuer which is obliged to pay the sukuk holder irrespective of the performance of the underlying asset. To the extent that the sukuk is rated, the rating cannot exceed the rating given to the entity which is ultimately responsible for providing the funds for the repayment of principal on maturity or early redemption of the sukuk. A conventional unsecured bond, although with a similar risk profile, does not give any ownership rights in an underlying asset but rather just a contractual claim against the issuer. It is also important to distinguish the sukuk from a traditional securitisation. In a securitisation the bondholder takes credit risk on the cash-flow being securitised, with the issuer simply being used to pass through the underlying debtor credit risk. Accordingly, to the extent a securitisation is rated, the rating of the issuing entity may be improved by credit enhancement features and may also exceed the rating given to the parent of the issuing entity.

2.6 Legal and Practical Issues

The contracts and techniques used in Islamic financing, such as ijara and Murabaha, may give rise to risks and liabilities for the financiers or for the transaction that need to be assessed and, if appropriate, mitigated. However, many of these arise in conventional financing structures, such as traditional leasing, and are not unique to Islamic finance. For example:

- Owner liability may be incurred if the financiers own an asset for a period before transferring it to the end-user, such as liability for death or injury or environmental damage. Although typically a financier would seek to ensure that it does not own the asset for any period of time so as to avoid this risk, this may not be avoidable in instances where the asset is to be leased by the financier to the end-user.
- A financier may want to obtain insurance against such liabilities (although Islamic insurance (takaful) is increasingly available and could be used).
- Tax liability - e.g. do taxes arise on the acquisition or on-sale of an asset? What are the income and capital gains tax consequences for a financier? How can the transaction be made tax neutral?
- Warranties - e.g. is the financier, as owner or seller of an asset, making any warranty (e.g. as to its title to the asset or the condition or usability of the asset) which it would want to disclaim?
- Effectively interposing a third party between a supplier and an end-user may give rise to certain issues - e.g. can the end-user receive the benefit of a supplier's warranties?

- Loss, destruction or delays in the production or construction of the asset may be an issue for the Islamic financier: if there is no 'deliverable' asset, can the Islamic financier claim any payments from the end-user? In other words, can the Islamic financier pass on the asset risk to its customer?
- Loss (total or partial) in the operating phase of the ijara may also raise issues. If there is no asset (and therefore no usufruct) can the financier continue to claim payments from the end-user?

3. PARTIES TO AN ISLAMIC FACILITY

3.1 Introduction

As a number of murabaha structures have been developed over the last few years, the terms used to refer to certain parties may differ (as discussed in Section 2.1 (Purpose and Scope)). Similarly, terminology may differ depending on whether the Purchaser is appointed as an agent (or "Wakeel") for the Investment Agent under a specific agreement to purchase the relevant Commodity or acts as the undisclosed agent for the Investment Agent in purchasing the relevant Commodity itself. This section sets out the most common terminology used to describe parties in murabaha structures.

In addition (and as with conventional finance transactions), the parties will differ depending on whether the financing is bilateral or syndicated. On a syndicated transaction, it is more common to have a mudaraba agreement or investment agency agreement (in each case in addition to a murabaha agreement) which will, subject to the areas specifically set out in this Users Guide, contain all of the 'financier specific' provisions found in conventional facilities documentation, such as funding mechanisms.

(a) The Purchaser

In a murabaha facility, the Purchaser is the equivalent of a borrower in a conventional facility. Whilst the exact role of the Purchaser can vary depending on the type of murabaha transaction it is party to, one certainty in all murabaha transactions is that the Purchaser is under an obligation to purchase the Commodity from the Investment Agent.

In cases where the Purchaser is appointed as agent for the Investment Agent, the Purchaser's role is also to procure the relevant Commodity from the Supplier.

(b) Investment Agent

In addition to a Purchaser, each syndicated murabaha agreement must also have an Investment Agent as a party. The Investment Agent represents the financier group and is therefore akin to a 'facility agent' on a conventional transaction. Whilst certain facilities may refer to a Mudareb, the rights and obligations of a Mudareb are slightly different (see Section 2.5(e)).

Whilst the Investment Agent will enter into the murabaha agreement on behalf of itself and the other financiers (or Participants), the relationship between the Investment Agent and the other Participants will be governed by an investment agency agreement.

In addition to entering into the murabaha agreement with the Purchaser, the Investment Agent will countersign the offer and acceptance documents with the Purchaser to effect each murabaha transaction. Typically, the Participants will not enter into any agreement directly with the Purchaser, although sometimes this does happen, for example, to enable the Purchaser to have a right to consent in relation to transfers by Participants.

(c) Wakeel

The Purchaser may occasionally be appointed as agent (Wakeel) by the Investment Agent to (i) obtain the Commodity as agent for the Investment Agent and then (ii) purchase it from the Investment Agent. In such cases, the Purchaser is appointed as a Wakeel under a separate Wakala Agreement between the Investment Agent and the Wakeel. The decision as to whether this appointment should happen is dependant on whether the Purchaser wants its relationship with the Suppliers interrupted. In a murabaha trade financing, the Purchaser will often be appointed by the Investment Agent as its undisclosed buying agent. The appointment of a Wakeel is less common in a reverse murabaha/tawarruq transaction.

(d) The Participants

The financiers on each syndicated murabaha transaction are commonly referred to as 'Participants'. The Participants enter into an investment agency agreement with the Investment Agent to govern the relationship between the agent and the financier group. Whereas in conventional facilities this would normally be dealt with within a single facility agreement, this is not possible in the case of a murabaha agreement, which documents a Purchaser/seller relationship.

The investment agency agreement will usually contain the standard agency provisions/protections which financiers would normally expect to be covered in a facility agreement in a conventional transaction. This includes provisions on the appointment of the Investment Agent, powers of the Investment Agent, payments by the Participants, payments by the Investment Agent, refunds of payments, sharing provisions, duties and discretions of the Investment Agent, indemnities and any relevant commission or other costs provisions.

(e) Commodity Broker/Supplier

A reverse murabaha/tawarruq transaction will require the involvement of commodity brokers. Whilst these brokers will not be a party to the murabaha agreement itself, their involvement in the transaction will be documented in separate commodity sale and purchase agreements.

In a reverse murabaha transaction, the commodity brokers will be involved at both the initial and final stages of each murabaha transaction. The first broker will be involved in selling the chosen Commodity to the Investment Agent (or the Purchaser as the Investment Agent's Wakeel). After conclusion of the murabaha contract, the Purchaser will then on-sell the Commodity to a second broker. For Shari'a purposes, it is important that the two brokers are not the same.

If the transaction is a trade financing (i.e. the Commodity is required by the Purchaser and will not be on-sold to a broker), the choice of Supplier will be at the Purchaser's discretion as the Commodity being acquired will be for its business/operations. In a reverse murabaha, the broker will usually be an entity which has provided competitive pricing for supplying the Commodity.

4. DEFINITIONS

4.1 Introduction

This Section is only intended to include those additional definitions (compared to those in a conventional facility agreement) which are exclusive to a typical murabaha facility. Those definitions which are exclusive for a reverse murabaha/tawarruq are marked with an asterisk (*).

4.3 Third Party Rights

As the murabaha agreement is usually a bilateral agreement between the Investment Agent and the Purchaser, the Participants will require the benefit of certain of the clauses in the murabaha facility. Such clauses include the tax gross-up, costs and expenses, increased costs (to the extent applicable) and various indemnities. In an English law governed transaction, this is often achieved by granting the Participants rights under the murabaha agreement pursuant to the Contracts (Rights of Third Parties) Act 1999.

5. THE FACILITIES

5.1 Introduction

As in the LMA's Primary Documents, a murabaha agreement will include a section dealing with the mechanics and structure of the murabaha facility (for example, the conditions precedent to each murabaha transaction and the steps required to complete each murabaha transaction).

5.2 Conditions of Utilisation

The conditions required to be satisfied prior to the submission of a Notice of Intent to Purchase by the Purchaser are similar to those seen on conventional facilities. Examples of conditions which need to be satisfied before a Notice of Intent to Purchase can be submitted are:

- (i) conditions that have to be met before the first Notice of Intent to Purchase can be submitted (i.e. usual corporate authorisations and any transaction specific requirements);
- (ii) the Notice of Intent to Purchase must be submitted on a Business Day during the availability period;
- (iii) the Notice of Intent to Purchase must be above a certain minimum level (akin to minimum drawdown amounts);
- (iv) no default is continuing or would result from the proposed Murabaha Contract; and
- (v) the amount of the Purchase Price cost price is equal to or less than the available commitment.

Upon the relevant conditions being met the Investment Agent (or, where appropriate, the Purchaser as Wakeel) purchases the Commodity from the Supplier in accordance with the terms of the Notice of Intent to Purchase, determines the Profit Amount and the Deferred Payment Price, and sends the Purchaser an Offer Notice. Upon receipt of a valid Offer Notice, the Purchaser then purchases the Commodity from the Investment Agent by sending the Investment Agent an Acceptance Notice.

It is common for murabaha facilities to specify the point at which the Murabaha Contract is completed between the Investment Agent and Purchaser to ensure that it is clear when title and risk to the Commodity passes over to the Purchaser.

5.3 Mitigation of Risk

As the financier (or the Investment Agent on behalf of the financiers) will be the legal owner of the Commodity for a brief period of time, the financiers will be taking additional risk over and above that which they would customarily take in a conventional facility. Please see Section 2.6 for an overview of the additional risks that could be involved. Whilst documentation safeguards may be put in place to mitigate against some of these risks, it will not be possible to completely remove these as the transaction would no longer be Shari'a compliant.

As the financiers will be the owners of the Commodity, they will take all the risks associated with ownership, including any devaluation of the price of the Commodity and any third party liability arising from ownership.

To mitigate against price devaluation risk, it is usual to limit the length of time for which the financier will be the owner. It is not uncommon to see a 'time is of the essence' clause which imposes a time limit on the Purchaser to accept the Offer Notice. To the extent the Acceptance Notice is not issued within that pre-agreed time frame, the financier would then be free to cancel the offer and dispose of the Commodity to a third party. If the financiers suffer any loss as a result of the price devaluation, they may seek to recover the difference from the Purchaser by virtue of a covenant that will usually be included in the Notice of Intent to Purchase.

As the financiers will be owning and selling an asset, it will be important to ensure that no warranties are given by the financiers by virtue of the operation of law or otherwise. This therefore needs to be expressly excluded, to the extent possible.

5.4 Other clauses

Other common clauses which are found in this section of the murabaha agreement are:

- (i) limitations on the number of Murabaha Contracts which can be entered into whilst others are outstanding (similar to outstanding 'loans' on conventional facilities); and
- (ii) payment of the Purchase Price plus Profit Amount. It is customary to see an undertaking from the Purchaser to pay the Deferred Payment Price in respect of each Murabaha Contract on the relevant Deferred Payment Date either as a lump sum at the end of the term for that transaction or, alternatively, amortised, whichever is the commercially agreed position.

6. PAYMENT, PREPAYMENT AND CANCELLATION

6.1 Payment

Payment of the Deferred Payment Price will normally take place at a designated date specified in the initial documentation at the time that the Murabaha Contract is concluded.

6.2 Prepayment

On a conventional financing, prepayments can be beneficial from a borrower's perspective in saving the 'interest' portion for the remaining period of that 'loan'. On Islamic transactions, however, as the Profit Amount is determined at the outset (on the day the Murabaha Contract is entered into), the amount outstanding at any given time is inclusive of the total 'profit' amount.

Whilst there is a consensus among Shari'a scholars that prepayment under Islamic facilities is possible, there is no clear direction on how the Purchaser obtains the benefit of any prepayment. As almost all murabaha agreements include the right for the Purchaser to prepay the Deferred Payment Price, it is important that provisions concerning entitlement to any rebate are appropriately documented.

Whilst prepayment can be at the discretion of the Purchaser, whether any benefit is given to the Purchaser in respect of such prepayment is at the discretion of the Investment Agent and the Participants. It is not possible for the murabaha agreement to oblige the Investment Agent to provide a rebate to the Purchaser as the Murabaha Contract has already been entered into and the payment terms agreed between the parties. In most cases, the murabaha agreement will state that if the Investment Agent so decides (following the agreement of either all or the Majority Participants) a portion of the Profit Amount in respect of the Deferred Payment Price may be refunded to the Purchaser.

As with conventional facilities, notice periods for prepayment will be applicable and a minimum amount will be stipulated for prepayment. As Islamic financings are generally trade or leasing transactions, it is not usual for Participants to be able to recover break costs in the event of a prepayment.

6.3 Cancellation

A Purchaser will usually have the ability to cancel part of the available facility. As with prepayments, notice periods and minimum amounts are applicable to any cancellation. However, as Shari'a does not permit a person to simply use money to make money and charge a commitment fee for making money available, there is often no economic benefit to the Purchaser in cancelling the available facility. Conversely, as it is not possible to charge a commitment fee, it is in the financiers' interest to keep the available facility period as short as possible.

7. COSTS OF UTILISATION

7.1 Determination of Profit

'Profit' is the term given to the return obtained (i.e. the equivalent of 'interest' earned under a conventional facility) on an Islamic transaction. It is calculated on the Value Date, using LIBOR or another reference rate and is used to calculate the Deferred Payment Price to be paid.

A key element of a Murabaha Contract is that the Profit Amount is calculated at the time the transaction is entered into. This is essential as the Deferred Payment Price needs to be made known at the outset.

7.2 Late payment amounts

In the event that the Purchaser fails to make a payment due to the Investment Agent and/or a Participant, an additional amount is payable for such a default. Whilst this is normally referred to as 'default interest' in a conventional facility, the usual term in a murabaha facility is 'late payment amount'.

Whilst there are no rules under Shari'a on the permitted level of late payment amounts, it is typically dealt with in the same way as on conventional facilities (i.e. by reference to the quantum of the unpaid amount, a reference rate such as LIBOR and a pre-agreed margin).

A common practice/standard has been developed as to how late payment amounts, once paid, should be treated. It is now common to direct all late payments to an Islamic charity. If not expressly named in the murabaha agreement, the charity will normally be one of the Purchaser's choice (as approved by the Majority Participants). In certain cases, it may also be left to the recommendation of the Investment Agent's Shari'a supervisory board.

The Investment Agent may be entitled to deduct any actual costs it (or the Participants) has incurred as a result of late payment of the unpaid sum before the remaining amount is donated, on behalf of the Purchaser, to charity.

It is important to note that certain Islamic institutions still do not approve of the charging of any late payment amount.

7.3 Commitment Fees

Whilst commitment fees are a key part of any conventional financing, they are not expressly provided for in Islamic financings. This is primarily because Shari'a forbids a person to charge money as a result of simply making money available. To mitigate the exposure of banks in this regard, Availability Periods under murabaha facilities are usually of a short duration (e.g. one month).

8. ADDITIONAL PAYMENT OBLIGATIONS

8.1 Tax Gross-up and indemnities

As in the Primary Documents, a murabaha agreement will also include a section dealing with the protection of the Participants from imposition of tax on amounts received from the Purchaser.

(a) Tax gross-up

The provisions of the murabaha agreement will provide that if the Purchaser is required by law to deduct tax from a payment under the murabaha agreement, the Purchaser must make a payment which puts the relevant Participant in the position it would have been in had there been no deduction.

(b) Tax indemnity

Provisions of the murabaha agreement will operate to require the Purchaser to indemnify the Participants against any tax (other than normal profits tax) imposed on or in relation to sums received or receivable by any Participant.

(c) Stamp taxes

Murabaha agreements will also customarily provide for an undertaking from the Purchaser to indemnify the Participants for any stamp duty or similar tax arising on the execution of the finance documents.

8.2 Increased Costs

Murabaha agreements may include a mechanism to permit a Participant to recover any increased costs incurred.

Different approaches are adopted by different Shari'a scholars. However, to the extent it is accepted that increased costs can be recovered, it is not customarily recovered by way of indemnity but rather is addressed by being added to the Profit Amount of the first Murabaha Contract concluded after the date the increased costs were incurred. The effect is that the Participants are able to recover the full amount of increased costs incurred although there will be a time delay from the conventional "on-demand" indemnity.

8.3 Asset/Commodities indemnities

As indicated above (see Sections 2.6 and 5.3), owner liability may be incurred as a result of the financiers owning the Commodities for a period of time before transferring these to the Purchaser. Typically, murabaha agreements will provide for an undertaking of the Purchaser to indemnify the Participants against actions, claims, costs and expenses incurred in connection with the Commodities other than any such actions, claims, costs and expenses that arise from ownership by the Participants.

8.4 Other Indemnities

As in the Primary Documents, murabaha agreements would also include indemnities against certain risks, costs or liabilities, including currency indemnity and indemnities to the Investment Agent.

8.5 Mitigation by Participants

Murabaha agreements will usually include a provision requiring the Participants to take reasonable steps to mitigate any circumstances resulting in an additional payment obligation for the Purchaser.

Although the murabaha agreement is usually a bilateral agreement between the Purchaser and the Investment Agent, the Participants require the benefit of these indemnities. In an English law governed transaction, this is often achieved by granting the Participants rights pursuant to the Contracts (Rights of Third Parties) Act 1999.

9. REPRESENTATIONS, UNDERTAKINGS, EVENTS OF DEFAULT AND TERMINATION EVENTS

As with the Primary Documents, the murabaha agreement will contain representations, undertakings and events of default. Although the scope of these representations, undertakings and events of default will largely be driven by credit requirements of the financiers which will include jurisdictional based requirements of the Purchaser, a number of Shari'a factors do need to borne in mind.

9.1 Representations

The representations to be included are largely a matter for commercial negotiation. However it would not be uncommon to ask the Purchaser to provide a non-Shari'a reliance representation, or in other words, confirmation that it has not relied upon the Investment Agent or any of the Participants in establishing the Shari'a compliant nature of the transaction and documentation. This seeks to remove any possible duty of care in relation to Shari'a compliance.

9.2 General undertakings

The extent and purpose of the covenants required from the Purchaser will depend upon the terms of the transaction and the nature of the business conducted by the Purchaser. However to the extent there is an agreement to incorporate a disposals covenant this will need to be drafted to permit the disposal of Commodities as part of the financing arrangements.

It is also common to amend the conventional "financial indebtedness" definition to refer to Islamic finance and often it is expressly contemplated in the covenant package that a Purchaser's insurance and hedging arrangements must be carried out in a Shari'a compliant manner.

9.3 Events of Default and Termination Events

It is often necessary to distinguish between Purchaser fault based events on the one hand (i.e. events of default) and non-fault based events on the other (i.e. termination events).

Purchaser fault based events, or events of default, are usually those events that arise as a result of the action or inaction of the Purchaser e.g. failure to pay. Non-fault based events, or termination events, are usually those that arise as a result of no action or inaction of the Purchaser e.g. appropriation of the Purchaser's assets by a third party/nationalisation.

There is no difference in the consequences of the occurrence of either an event of default or a termination event and both will result in the same as the consequence of an event of default under a conventional facility i.e. undrawn commitment may be immediately cancelled or Murabaha Contracts become immediately due and payable, etc.

10. CHANGES TO PARTIES

As with conventional facilities, Participants in a murabaha facility usually require the ability to transfer their relevant 'commitment' and/or participation to other financial institutions. These provisions are usually contained in the Investment Agency Agreement, which is the principal 'investor' document (see Section 2.5(e)). Whilst there are no issues under Shari'a with trading undrawn commitments, consideration needs to be given to the Shari'a issues which arise on transfer of funded participations or existing Murabaha Contracts.

One fundamental Shari'a requirement of any debt transfer is that it must be made at par value (i.e. at no profit to the exiting Participant). Whilst this does not raise any issues in the context of the transfer of an 'unfunded' amount (i.e. commitment), issues do arise when contemplating the transfer of a 'funded' Murabaha Contract. Whilst there is no uniform accepted method of dealing with this issue in documentation, two solutions are widely accepted in the market:

- (i) the documentation may state that any assignments and transfers must be carried out in a Shari'a compliant manner. In relation to what is "Shari'a compliant" for such purposes, the Shari'a board of a particular financier or that of the Investment Agent is often stated as being the reference point for such matters. (In such cases the transfer provisions will be a slightly modified version of those in a typical conventional facility); or
- (ii) the documentation may stay silent on any additional requirements for an effective assignment or transfer on the basis that it is for each financial institution to make its own determination on whether it can only transfer in accordance with the Shari'a (and if so, what should be used as the Shari'a reference point). (In such cases the transfer provisions will be the same as those in a typical conventional facility).

Notwithstanding that the Investment Agency Agreement is usually between the Investment Agent and the Participants, the Purchaser may require the benefit of certain of the clauses (e.g. a right to give its consent to proposed transfers). In an English law governed transaction, this is often achieved by granting the Purchaser rights under relevant provisions of the Investment Agency Agreement pursuant to the Contracts (Rights of Third Parties) Act 1999.

11. GOVERNING LAW

The governing law and jurisdiction provisions in an Islamic facility are typically the same as for any equivalent conventional facility.

An issue is sometimes raised as to whether a reference to Shari'a law should be made in the governing law clause, either by providing that Shari'a law should govern the relevant agreement or that the chosen governing law should be interpreted subject to Shari'a law. (The issues were considered at a case before the Court of Appeal in England in 2004¹.)

In practice, neither of these methods is likely to be recognised by an English court, which will only recognise the laws of a particular country as being the governing law, so "Shari'a law" could not in itself be a valid choice of law for a contract. Although it is possible for specific black-letter provisions of the Shari'a to be incorporated (in the same way as, for example, it is possible for references to a Hague Convention to be incorporated which in itself is not a part of English law), the bankability of the transaction may be likely to be impaired.

IN THE GRAND COURT OF THE CAYMAN ISLANDS FINANCIAL SERVICES DIVISION

CAUSE NO. FSD 45 of 2012 - ASCJ

BEFORE THE HONOURABLE CHIEF JUSTICE IN CHAMBERS ON 6 JUNE 2013

IN THE MATTER OF THE COMPANIES LAW (2012 REVISION)

AND IN THE MATTER OF ARCAPITA INVESTMENT HOLDINGS LIMITED (IN

ORDER

UPON the application by summons of Arcapita Investment Holdings Limited (in Provisional Liquidation) (the "Company") dated 27 May 2013 coming on for hearing;

AND UPON reading the Sixth Affidavit of Mohammed Chowdhury sworn on 3 June 2013;

AND UPON hearing Counsel for the Company and Counsel for Goldman Sachs International;

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED THAT:

1. Pursuant to section 99 of the Companies Law (2012 Revision)(the "Law"), no disposition of the Company's property made under, in connection with or resulting from the proposed Debtor-in-Possession Murabaha facility or the proposed exit Murabaha facility with Goldman Sachs International (together the "Goldman Sachs Facilities"), and the budget prepared by the Company and agreed thereunder (the "DIP Budget") including but not limited to:

- a) the grant of security over the property and assets of the Company (including over shares in the Company's subsidiaries);
- b) the purchases and sales of commodities in the Goldman Sachs Facilities;
- c) the making of all payments required under the Goldman Sachs Facilities, including any repayments thereunder;
- d) the making of all payments and other dispositions, including all costs and expenses (including legal fees) in accordance with the DIP Budget; and
- e) the release which is proposed to be granted by the Company to the Finance Parties (as defined in the Goldman Sachs Facilities) in accordance with such Orders of the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Southern District of New York (the "Bankruptcy Court") as are entered on or around 11 June 2013 (the "US Orders") shall be void in the event that the Company is wound up.

2. Pursuant to section 99 of the Law, no transfer of the Company's shares made by virtue of, or by way of perfection or enforcement of, the charges over the Company's shares to be granted as part of the Goldman Sachs Facilities in accordance with the US Orders, shall be void in the event that the Company is wound up.
3. Effective immediately upon entry into the Initial DIP Purchase Contract (as defined in the Goldman Sachs Facilities) under the Goldman Sachs Facilities, the Secured Parties (as defined in the US Orders) shall have leave pursuant to section 97(1) of the Law to take any action necessary to enforce their rights under the Goldman Sachs Facilities and US Orders, and neither paragraph 8 of this Court's Order dated 19 March 2012 (as amended) nor any other provision of any other Order this Court has made to date shall operate so as to prevent any such action being taken.

4. For the avoidance of doubt, paragraph 3 of this Order relates only to enforcement proceedings commenced by the Secured Parties (as defined in the US Orders) to enforce their rights under the Goldman Sachs Facilities and US Orders and should not be construed as any wider modification of paragraph 8 of this Court's Order of 19 March 2012, nor any broader leave pursuant to section 97(1) of the Law than is provided by paragraph 3 of this Order.
5. The Provisional Liquidators' costs of this application shall be paid out of the assets of the Company as an expense of the provisional liquidation and the Company's costs of this application shall be paid out of the assets of the Company, provided that this costs order is made without prejudice to any subsequent reallocation of costs between the Company and Arcapita Bank B.S.C.(c) and, for the avoidance of doubt, does not obviate the need for the amount of the Company's costs to be approved by the Bankruptcy Court.
